2009 Amendment: Chapter 56 made section gender neutral; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2009.

1987 Amendment: In (2), at end of second sentence after "invest the same in", substituted language concerning backed, insured, or guaranteed federal or state investments for "state or federal bonds or in savings certificates of institutions insured by the federal deposit insurance corporation".

Case Notes

County Debtor of District: When funds of an irrigation district are deposited with the County Treasurer they become county funds for which the district has a credit on the books of the Treasurer, i.e., the relation of debtor and creditor is created between the county and the district. State ex rel. Blenkner v. Stillwater County, 104 M 387, 66 P2d 788 (1937).

Power to Levy Taxes:

Authority to issue irrigation bonds implies an authority to levy a tax to pay them. Judith Basin Irrigation District v. Malott, 73 F2d 142, 97 ALR 504 (9th Cir. 1934).

An irrigation district organized under the laws of this state exercises some governmental functions; for example, it may levy taxes (this section), which is the exercise of one of the highest prerogatives of sovereignty. Crow Creek Irrigation District v. Crittenden, 71 M 66, 227 P 63 (1924).

1993 Special Session Amendment: Chapter 27 in first sentence of (1), after "furnish", deleted "the agent of" and after "revenue" deleted "in each county in which any of the lands of the district are situated" and in second sentence, before "department", deleted "agent of the", after "revenue" deleted "in each county", after "list" deleted "and prior to the delivery of the assessment book to the county treasurer", and near end substituted "property tax record" for "assessment book"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 1994.

Applicability: Section 171(2), Ch. 27, Sp. L. November 1993, provided that the amendments to this section apply to tax years after December 31, 1993.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 485 inserted (3) requiring County Treasurer during water delivery season to make available to commissioners of irrigation district notice of receipt of payments of district assessments by 9 a.m. of day following receipt of payment; and made minor changes in style.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 485 inserted (3) requiring County Treasurer during water delivery season to make available to commissioners of irrigation district notice of receipt of payments of district assessments by 9 a.m. of day following receipt of payment; and made minor changes in style.

1989 Amendment: Inserted (3) relating to receipt by a County Treasurer of assistance from an irrigation district employee or commissioner for certain district-related tax functions; and made minor changes in phraseology and punctuation.

Case Notes

Collection of Taxes: In the collection of tax or assessment levied by an irrigation district for the payment of the interest on bonds issued by it, the County Treasurer is not authorized to seize and sell personal property of a delinquent owner of lands within the district but must proceed in the manner prescribed by Ch. 173, part III, R.C.M. 1921, as amended by Ch. 96, L. 1923 (15-16-101, et seq.), for the collection of state and county taxes made a lien upon real property. State ex rel. Spokane & E. Trust Co. v. Nicholson, 74 M 346, 240 P 837 (1925).

85-7-2140. Investment of funds.

Compiler's Comments

1987 Amendment: In first sentence, after "sinking fund", substituted language concerning backed, insured, or guaranteed federal or state investments for "in interest-bearing securities whenever in their judgment the investment may be to the best interest of the district"; and near beginning of second sentence substituted "investments" for "securities".

Case Notes

Distribution Pro Rata When Funds Insufficient — When Interest Should Be Retired First: Where the bonds issued by an irrigation district were straight maturity and not serial bonds and the fund out of which they were payable was insufficient to make full payment of them all and could not be replenished by further assessments, the money remaining was properly distributed pro rata, irrespective of the fact that other holders had been paid in full. If the fund is insufficient to pay the principal but is sufficient to pay the only remaining unpaid coupon holder, his coupons should be paid first, placing all holders on a parity in that respect. State ex rel. Cent. Auxiliary Corp. v. Rorabeck, 111 M 320, 108 P2d 601 (1940).

Case Notes

Limitation to Compel Payment of District Warrant: The County Treasurer, by law custodian of the funds of an irrigation district the office of which is located in his county and therefore charged with duty not to pay out funds on claims believed by him to be invalid, could properly assert the defense of the 5-year limitation in a proceeding to compel payment of a registered district warrant under 27-2-215 (renumbered 27-2-231). State ex rel. DeKalb v. Ferrell, 105 M 218, 70 P2d 290 (1937).

Right of Warrant Holder to Writ of Mandamus: To entitle a registered warrant holder to a Writ of Mandate to compel payment thereon by the County Treasurer out of the funds of an irrigation district, he must show Treasurer's clear legal duty to pay and ability to comply with the Writ, with sufficient money on hand in the fund to pay outstanding unpaid prior registered warrants with interest (7-6-2605 and 7-6-2606). State ex rel. DeKalb v. Ferrell, 105 M 218, 70 P2d 290 (1937).

85-7-2167. Sale or transfer of lands.Case Notes

Highway Condemnation: The state Highway Commission (now Transportation Commission) acquiring land for highway purposes is not liable for assessment and taxes by irrigation district since land taken will no longer benefit from services provided by district, notwithstanding the contention of district that takings so reduced total irrigable acreage of district as to increase per-acre cost of operation and maintenance of remainder. Helena Valley Irrigation District v. St. Highway Comm'n, 150 M 192, 433 P2d 791 (1967).

Final Judgment: Under 25-1-111 (since repealed), providing that the final determination of the rights of a party to a special proceeding is a judgment, an order of the District Court directing the exclusion of the lands of a protestant from a proposed extension of an irrigation district is a final judgment. In re Bitter Root Irrigation District, 67 M 436, 218 P 945 (1923), distinguished in In re Fort Shaw Irrigation District, 81 M 170, 261 P 962 (1927), and State ex rel. Bole v. Lay, 89 M 541, 300 P 238 (1931), explained in Wills v. Morris, 100 M 504, 50 P2d 858 (1935).

Absence of Bill of Exceptions: Where in a proceeding for the extension of an irrigation district, the evidence heard at the trial was not taken and preserved by the court stenographer as it should have been and the evidence was not incorporated in a bill of exceptions duly settled and allowed as it might have been as far as obtainable, it will be presumed on appeal, in the absence of the evidence, that the District Court heard and determined the question whether appellant's lands were benefited or not. In re Crow Creek Irrigation District, 63 M 293, 207 P 121 (1922).

85-7-2205. Definition of irrigable land.

Case Notes

When Land Considered Susceptible of Irrigation: A party objected to the extension of an irrigation district's boundaries on grounds that the land proposed for inclusion did not meet the definition of irrigable land and was not legally susceptible of irrigation. The Supreme Court noted that 85-7-1808 allows inclusion of lands susceptible of irrigation by the works of the district, which means that the land can physically receive irrigation water from the district's works. The court declined to redefine the statutory language "susceptible of irrigation" to mean only land that meets the definition of irrigable land or that is legally susceptible of irrigation. The land in question had been irrigated for decades from the irrigation district works and was therefore susceptible of irrigation for the limited purposes of the petition to extend the district boundaries. In re Formation of E. Bench Irrigation District, 2009 MT 135, 350 M 309, 207 P3d 1097 (2009).

85-7-2212. Irrigation ditches — nonliabilities.

Case Notes

Both Parties Equally Liable for Landslide Damage Caused by Ditch Seepage: The hillside near parallel irrigation ditches owned by plaintiff and defendant gave way, causing damages. Each party blamed the other for engaging in activity that caused the landslide, presenting extensive exhibits and expert testimony. After a 4-day hearing, the District Court concluded that the activities of both parties jointly caused the landslide and that both parties were equally liable for the costs of the damages. After reviewing the voluminous transcript, the Supreme Court deferred to the discretion of the District Court in determining the weight of the evidence and credibility of the witnesses regarding the two credible though contradictory reports and declined to set aside the judgment. Graveley Simmental Ranch Co. v. Quigley, 2003 MT 34, 314 M 226, 65 P3d 225 (2003).

Permanent Injunction Inappropriate Limitation of Lawful Irrigation Practices: The Wellses built a home on property adjacent to land that had been flood irrigated by the Youngs for generations. Between 1994 and 1998, the Youngs' land was irrigated three times, and on each occasion, the Wellses experienced flooding in the crawl space of their home. The Wellses sought damages in excess of $80,000 based on tort theories of negligence, nuisance, and trespass. The District Court reasoned that because the irrigation practices predated the construction of the Wellses' home, they could not recover damages or recover on their trespass claim under this section. The court also concluded that the nuisance claim was barred by 27-30-101. The court held that the Youngs breached the general obligation imposed by 28-1-201 because their irrigation practices caused immediate, irreparable, and substantial harm to the Wellses' home, but the negligence claim was disposed of because the Wellses failed to establish that the irrigation practiced breached the standard of care of a reasonable farm irrigator engaged in flood irrigation.

Nevertheless, the District Court permanently enjoined the Youngs from irrigating their property because future irrigation without modification of the head ditch would result in an unreasonable and substantial risk of continuing harm and irreparable injury to the Wellses' property. The Youngs moved to vacate the injunction based on the determination that their irrigation practices were lawful, but the motion was denied, so the Youngs appealed. The Supreme Court examined the record for abuse of discretion, noting that a District Court must find a breach of an obligation by the party sought to be enjoined before imposing a permanent injunction. The District Court's general finding that the Youngs breached the duty imposed under 28-1-201 conflicted with the specific findings that the Youngs did not trespass or create a nuisance and conformed to the applicable standard of care. Absent a specific breach of obligation, the District Court abused its discretion in issuing a permanent injunction enjoining the Youngs from engaging in lawful flood irrigation practices. Wells v. Young, 2002 MT 102, 309 M 419, 47 P3d 809 (2002), distinguishing Madison Fork Ranch v. L&B Lodge Pole Timber Prod., 189 M 292, 615 P2d 900 (1980).

No Negligence by Irrigation District for Failure to Warn of Unforeseeable Flood: Plaintiffs' property was damaged by an unprecedented flood caused by an ice jam on the Clark Fork River. Plaintiffs alleged that the local irrigation district was liable for breaching its duty to construct and maintain an irrigation system that would protect the property and for failing to warn of the flooding conditions to allow plaintiffs the opportunity to protect their property. The District Court held that the irrigation district had no duty to prevent the flood or to warn of the impending natural disaster, and the Supreme Court affirmed. The first element that plaintiffs must establish in a negligence action is the existence of a duty of care, and the measure of a duty of care owed is the scope of the risk that the negligent conduct foreseeably entails. Thus, the primary factor in determining whether the irrigation district owed a duty of care was whether it was foreseeable, as a matter of law, that the district's acts or omissions would pose a risk of injury to plaintiffs. Here, substantial evidence supported the conclusion that the risk that flooding would damage plaintiffs' property was unforeseeable, so the district had no duty to erect or maintain flood control structures to prevent the unforeseeable event. The district also exercised reasonable care in the maintenance of the irrigation system that was in place. Further, plaintiffs failed to advance any applicable authority that would impose upon the district a duty to warn of the unforeseeable flood because mere knowledge of the dangerous situation, of which plaintiffs themselves had become aware the night of the flood, did not impose a legal duty to warn. Gaudreau v. Clinton Irrigation District, 2001 MT 164, 306 M 121, 30 P3d 1070 (2001), following Estate of Strever v. Cline, 278 M 165, 924 P2d 666 (1996).

Failure to Allege Error — Denial of New Trial: Plaintiffs appealed from directed verdict and order by the District Court denying a new trial, claiming that the court erred in determining that plaintiffs had failed to establish a prima facie case against defendants for the overflow of a drainage ditch near plaintiffs' residence. The Supreme Court affirmed the lower court decision, holding that because subsection (2) of this section is an independent, sufficient, and clearly articulated ground for granting defendants' direct verdict motion, plaintiffs' failure to allege error under the subsection constituted a waiver of plaintiffs' claim. Schaubel v. Iversen, 257 M 164, 848 P2d 489, 50 St. Rep. 213 (1993).

No Liability for Damage From Irrigation Ditch Seepage: Home owners appealed a District Court order granting the irrigation ditch owners summary judgment, alleging that the ditch owners negligently diverted water through the ditch, resulting in ground saturation and subsequent flood damage to the home owner's property. Although the home owners asserted that no seepage occurred before the ditch owners overused the ditch, the undisputed facts established that the damage occurred either because of weather conditions or from the same kind of seepage from the ditch that had existed for at least 53 years before the home owners arrived or obtained an interest in the land. Alexander v. McCauley, 250 M 216, 819 P2d 176, 48 St. Rep. 798 (1991).

CHAPTER 8 DRAINAGE DISTRICTS

Part 1 Creation of Districts

85-8-101. Petition for creation of district.

Case Notes

County Subject to Assessment for Benefits: A drainage district created in 1921 under the provisions of 85-8-101, et seq., could recover assessments made against the county for benefits accruing to its highways from its system, since the act, as it existed prior to amendment by Ch. 169, L. 1929 (85-8-307, 85-8-341, 85-8-350, and 85-8-351), was broad enough to authorize such assessments, as against contention that the county could not be held for costs unless it owned lands in the district. State ex rel. Valley Center Drain District v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 100 M 581, 51 P2d 635 (1935), explained in Burke v. Sullivan, 127 M 374, 265 P2d 203 (1954).

Disqualification: Since drainage District Commissioners act only in an advisory capacity and their assessments of benefits and damages are reviewable on appeal after notice to all interested parties, the provision of this section that the fact that a person owns land in the proposed district shall not disqualify him from acting as Commissioner does not violate the principle that no one shall be the judge of his own cause. 2015 Amendment: Chapter 49 in (1) substituted "13-1-502(4)" for "subsection (2)", before "election of" deleted "regular", after "annually" inserted "and conducted", substituted "Title 13, chapter 1, part 5" for "13-1-104 and 13-1-401", and substituted "the day of their election" for "the first Tuesday in May following their election"; in (2)(a) substituted "primary or general" for "regular" and after "divisions" deleted "at the first regular election following the date of the order making the division"; in (2)(c) substituted "for 1 year" for "until the first Tuesday in May in the year following election", substituted "for 2 years" for "until the first Tuesday in May in the second year following election", and substituted "for 3 years" for "until the first Tuesday in May in the third year following election"; in (3) in second sentence after "Commissioners" inserted "elected after the initial election" and after "3 years" deleted "and until a successor is elected and qualified"; deleted former (2) that read: "(2) If the number of candidates is equal to or less than the number of positions to be elected, the election administrator may cancel the election in accordance with 13-1-304. If an election is not held as provided in this subsection, the county governing body shall declare elected by acclamation the candidate who filed a nominating petition for the position. If no candidate filed a nominating petition for the position, the board of commissioners shall make an appointment to fill the position, and the term is the same as if the commissioner were elected"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective November 4, 2015.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 349 in (1) at beginning of first sentence inserted exception clause; inserted (2) providing that if the number of candidates is equal to or less than the number of positions to be elected, the election administrator may cancel the election, providing for a declaration of election by acclamation, and providing for an appointment to fill a position if there are no candidates; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 15, 2003.

The amendments to this section made by Ch. 367, L. 2003, were rendered void by sec. 5, Ch. 367, L. 2003, a coordination section.

1981 Amendment: Added "and 13-1-401" at end of first sentence; substituted "first Tuesday in May" for "first Monday in January" throughout section.

85-8-304. Results of election.

Compiler's Comments

1981 Amendment: Substituted "secretary" for "clerk" and "commissioners" for "directors"; substituted "first Tuesday in May" for "first Monday in January".

Composite Section: This section was amended by Ch. 171 and Ch. 571, L. 1979, and a composite section has been prepared by the Code Commissioner, 1979. Ch. 171 extended the closing time for the polls to 8 p.m., while Ch. 571 rewrote the section as part of a general revision of the election laws. Under this revision, drainage district elections are subject to the general election laws, including a provision for polls remaining open until 8 p.m. Consequently the language in Ch. 171, which is covered in 13-1-106, is not incorporated into the composite.

85-8-306. Commissioner candidate filing.

Compiler's Comments

2015 Amendment: Chapter 49 substituted "A person eligible to vote in the district may file a declaration of candidacy" for "Candidates", substituted "within the time period specified in 13-1-502" for "to be filled by election may be nominated by petition filed with the election administrator or deputy election administrator at least 75 days before the election and signed by at least five electors of the district", substituted "If a write-in candidate has filed pursuant to 13-1-502, the elector may" for "If no nominations are made, the electors of the district shall", and deleted last sentence that read: "This section does not prevent an elector from voting for any qualified person, although the name does not appear on the official ballot"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective November 4, 2015.

1985 Amendment: In first sentence substituted "75 days" for "30 days".

1981 Amendment: Deleted "under the provisions of this part", substituted "election administrator or deputy" for "county", and inserted "at least 30 days before the election" in the first sentence.

Improvements: Special assessments for flood control purposes are limited to land exclusive of improvements. In re W. Great Falls Flood Control & Drainage District, 159 M 277, 496 P2d 1143 (1971). (Decision prior to 1973 amendment.)

Commission Property: A flood control district could assess property and improvements consisting of graded land, drainage culverts, highway bridges, roadbeds, and pavement, within the district's exterior boundaries, that were owned or under lease by State Highway Commission (now Transportation Commission). State ex rel. St. Highway Comm'n v. W. Great Falls Flood Control & Drainage District, 155 M 157, 468 P2d 753 (1970), explained in In re W. Great Falls Flood Control & Drainage District, 159 M 277, 496 P2d 1143 (1971).

County Subject to Assessment for Benefits: This section, both before and after amendment by Ch. 169, L. 1929, was broad enough to authorize assessments against a county for benefits to highways resulting from the system of a drainage district although the county did not own land within the district. State ex rel. Valley Center Drain District v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 100 M 581, 51 P2d 635 (1935), explained in Burke v. Sullivan, 127 M 374, 265 P2d 203 (1954).

2009 Amendment: Chapter 56 made section gender neutral; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2009.

Case Notes

Constitutionality: The fact that the drainage statute by this section permits the Commissioners to go upon a landowner's property, in advance of an award, for the purpose of necessary investigation to determine the special benefits received or damages suffered by it does not render it violative of the constitutional provision that private property shall not be taken or damaged for public use without compensation having been first made to or paid into court for the owner. 85-8-619. Assessments to have effect of judgment.

Case Notes

Liquidated Claims Against County: Under this section assessments made by a drainage district, levied against a county for benefits accruing to its highways, are liquidated claims that do not require an audit by the Board of County Commissioners, but in their payment, provisions of the budget law must be observed, under 7-6-2311 through 7-6-2319 and 7-6-2303 (all sections now repealed). State ex rel. Valley Center Drain District v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 100 M 581, 51 P2d 635 (1935), explained in Burke v. Sullivan, 127 M 374, 265 P2d 203 (1954).

1993 Amendment: Chapter 418 in definition of dam, after "or divert water", deleted "with an impounding capacity of 50 acre-feet or greater measured at maximum normal operating pool"; in definition of high-hazard dam inserted reference to impounding capacity at maximum normal operating pool; in definition of reservoir, after "that contains", deleted "50 acre-feet or more of" and after "impounded water" deleted "measured at maximum normal operating pool"; and made minor changes in style.

1993 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 418, L. 1993, provided: "A statement of intent is required to provide guidance to the department of natural resources and conservation in adopting rules to implement this bill. It is the intent of the legislature to provide a uniform process for complaints regarding unsafe dams and to reduce the potential for nuisance actions against dam owners. It is further the intent of the legislature to authorize the department to investigate all complaints regarding unsafe dams."

1991 Amendment: At end of definitions of dam and reservoir inserted "measured at maximum normal operating pool". Amendment effective April 6, 1991.

House Bill No. 121 was passed and approved as Ch. 612, L. 1993.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 612 in (1), after "of", deleted "85-15-105, 85-15-106", after "85-15-401" deleted "85-15-501, and", and after "85-15-502" inserted "and 85-15-503"; in (1)(b), at beginning, deleted "The provisions of 85-15-108 through 85-15-110, 85-15-209 through 85-15-216, 85-15-305, 85-15-401, 85-15-501, and 85-15-502 do not apply to" and after "reservoirs" deleted "to nonfederal dams and reservoirs located on federal lands if they are subject to a dam safety review by a federal agency, or to"; in (1)(c), after "commission", deleted language that read: "The provisions of 85-15-105, 85-15-106, 85-15-108 through 85-15-110, 85-15-209 through 85-15-216, 85-15-305, 85-15-401, 85-15-501, and 85-15-502 do not apply to"; deleted former last sentence of (1)(d) that read: "In addition, the provisions of 85-15-108 through 85-15-110, 85-15-209 through 85-15-216, 85-15-305, 85-15-401, 85-15-501, and 85-15-502 do not apply until July 1, 1990, to high-hazard dams that have been inspected by the U.S. army corps of engineers pursuant to P.L.

92-367 and for which resultant dam safety reports have been submitted to the owner"; inserted (2) relating to inapplicability of provisions to nonfederal dams and reservoirs on federal lands; inserted (3) relating to dams and reservoirs at national priority list site; and made minor changes in style.

Applicability: Section 8, Ch. 612, L. 1993, provided: "[This act] applies to causes of action accruing on or after October 1, 1993."

1991 Amendment: Near middle of second sentence inserted "to nonfederal dams and reservoirs located on federal lands if they are subject to a dam safety review by a federal agency". Amendment effective April 6, 1991.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 366, L. 1991, provided: "[Section 2] [85-15-107] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all nonfederal dams and reservoirs located on federal lands if a federal agency provides a dam safety review for the nonfederal dams or reservoirs."

1987 Amendment: Inserted third sentence concerning certificate of environmental compatibility.

1985 Amendment: Substituted language concerning provisions of state law inapplicable to dams, dikes, and reservoirs licensed and subject to inspections by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for "The provisions of 85-15-102 and 85-15-103 shall not apply to dams, dikes, and reservoirs which are subject to federal power commission inspections under federal laws."

1985 Amendment: Inserted "dam or" before "reservoir".

Case Notes

Common-Law Negligence: An instruction in the precise language of this section should not be given where the plaintiff is suing on the theory of common-law negligence. Richland County v. Anderson, 129 M 559, 291 P2d 267 (1955).

Measurement of Water in Reservoir: Devices for measuring the water in a storage reservoir should be such that at a glance anyone may tell the exact number of acre-feet therein at any time, thus obviating the necessity of calling in engineers or others to measure it. The details of operation present a practical or engineering problem rather than a judicial one, and therefore should properly be left to the parties interested. If the court's intervention or assistance is required in that behalf, a motion for modification of the decree should suffice. Fed. Land Bank v. Morris, 112 M 445, 116 P2d 1007 (1941).

Rights of Person Reservoiring Water: Briefly stated, the rights of a person to reservoir water are as follows: He may, in any one year, store for use in that or succeeding years what he has a right to use and also any additional amounts which others would not have the right to use and which otherwise would go to waste. The appropriation and use of water, as well as the sites for reservoirs for collecting it, constitute a public use under Art. III, sec. 15, 1889 Mont. Const. (Art. IX, sec. 3, 1972 Mont. Const.), since it is in the interest of the public that water be conserved rather than wasted, so that arid lands may be made productive. Fed. Land Bank v. Morris, 112 M 445, 116 P2d 1007 (1941).

Storage of Flood Water: Under Title 85, ch. 15, et seq., reservoirs may be constructed for the purpose of storing flood water, in the course or at the headwaters of an adjudicated stream, provided their construction does not interfere with the use by prior appropriators of the natural flow in the stream to the extent of their appropriations. Donich v. Johnson, 77 M 229, 250 P 963 (1926).

If, upon the examination, the department finds that the dam, dike, or reservoir is unsafe or is diverting or is being filled with water to such an extent as to render it unsafe, it shall notify the county attorney of the county in which the dam, dike, or reservoir is located, setting forth its findings, and the county attorney shall immediately take the necessary steps to abate the danger and make the structure safe.

(3) If either party is dissatisfied with the findings of the department, it may appeal to the district court of the district wherein the dam, dike, or reservoir is located, and the court shall hear and determine the matter at the earliest practical time, subject to the right of either party to appeal as in other civil cases; however, the judgment of the department shall control until the final determination of the case."

Part 1 Yellowstone River Compact

Part Case Notes

Commerce Clause Immunity: The Yellowstone River Compact was approved by Congress. Because it was approved by Congress, it is federal, not state, law for purposes of Commerce Clause objections. Therefore, the Compact cannot by definition be a state law impermissibly interfering with commerce but is instead a federal law, immune from attack. Intake Water Co. v. Yellowstone River Compact Comm'n, (D.C. Mont. 1983, cv 1184, apparently not reported), affirmed 769 F2d 568 (1985).

Compact Applies to All Waters of Yellowstone River Basin: A diversion of water from the Yellowstone River at a point on the river that is not specifically apportioned by Article V of the Yellowstone River Compact is subject to the terms of the Compact because the proposed diversion is within the Yellowstone River Basin and is on the Yellowstone River system. Intake Water Co. v. Yellowstone River Compact Comm'n, (D.C. Mont. 1983, cv 1184, apparently not reported), affirmed 769 F2d 568 (1985).

Compact Not in Violation of Equal Protection: In a suit for declaratory and injunctive relief, Intake Water Company challenged the Yellowstone River Compact, claiming that it was a violation of equal protection under the Fourteenth Amendment for the Compact to restrict interbasin transfer of Yellowstone River water, while other water appropriations from other river basins in Montana do not require consent of all the signatory states to the compact. A three-judge panel (required under 28 U.S.C. § 2281 repealed by Act of August 12, 1976, 90 Stat. 1119) upheld the Compact, ruling: (1) it is well settled that the Fourteenth Amendment does not prohibit legislation that operates on a limited geographical area within a state; (2) differing conditions in different geographic areas may provide a reasonable basis for different legislative treatment; and (3) Intake cannot meet its required heavy burden to show that the Compact is not rationally related to a legitimate government purpose. Intake Water Co. v. Yellowstone River Compact Comm'n, (D.C. Mont. 1983, cv 1184, apparently not reported), affirmed 769 F2d 568 (1985).

Jurisdiction of Federal and State Courts Concurrent: Where the defendant private corporation appropriating water from the Yellowstone River in Wyoming for use in Montana brought an action in state court in Montana to compel certain actions of the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation under the Yellowstone River Compact and the plaintiff subsequently brought an action in the federal District Court in Montana under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331(2) and 2201 to declare the rights of the parties under the Yellowstone River Compact, both the state courts of Wyoming and Montana had subject matter jurisdiction to construe the terms of the Compact and enforce its provisions. Utah Int'l, Inc. v. Intake Water Co., 484 F. Supp. 36, 36 St. Rep. 2270 (D.C. Mont. 1979).

Jurisdiction of Federal Court — Abstention in Favor of State Court Proceedings: Where the defendant private corporation had instituted an action in state District Court to compel certain actions of the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation under the Yellowstone River Compact and the plaintiff water company subsequently brought an action in federal District Court under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331(2) and 2201 to declare the rights of the parties to waters appropriated by each under the Compact, the assumption of jurisdiction of the federal court was discretionary and the court should, in accordance with the principles of abstention announced in Colorado River Water Conservation District v. U.S., 424 US 800 (1976), abstain from exercising its jurisdiction, as there were significant questions of state policy which would appropriately be determined in the case pending before the state District Court. Utah Int'l, Inc. v. Intake Water Co., 484 F. Supp. 36, 36 St. Rep. 2270 (D.C. Mont. 1979).

Jurisdiction of Federal Court — Compact Law as Federal Question: Where the defendant private corporation had instituted an action in state District Court to compel certain action of the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation and where the plaintiff subsequently brought an action in federal District Court for a declaratory judgment under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331(2) and 2201 to declare the rights of the parties to waters appropriated by each under the Yellowstone River Compact, the Compact constituted a law of the United States under 28 U.S.C. § 1331(2), giving the federal District Court jurisdiction to declare its terms and enforce its provisions. Utah Int'l, Inc. v. Intake Water Co., 484 F. Supp. 36, 36 St. Rep. 2270 (D.C. Mont. 1979).

Diversion in Wyoming — Use in Montana — Priority Dates: Corporation filed a Wyoming application to appropriate water, as required by the Yellowstone River Compact, because Wyoming was the state of diversion (Montana being the state of ultimate use of the water). Corporation then filed the same information in Montana, which assigned the date of the Wyoming filing as the priority date in conformity with Wyoming law. Water company did not attack the Wyoming filing but claimed mandamus should issue requiring Montana to assign the Montana filing date as the priority date. Montana correctly assigned the Wyoming filing date as the priority date, as required by the Compact, and mandamus would not issue, since there was no clear legal duty for Montana to assign the Montana filing date as the priority date. State ex rel. Intake Water Co. v. Bd. of Nat'l Resources & Conserv., 197 M 482, 645 P2d 383, 39 St. Rep. 717 (1982).

Appropriation Filing — Correction of Defect — Priority Date: Corporation filed application in Wyoming, as required by the Yellowstone River Compact, to appropriate water in Wyoming for use in Montana. Montana notified corporation that it should also file the same information on Montana forms and that if it did so the corporation would retain the priority date of the date it filed in Wyoming. The corporation filed in Montana within 18 months of its Wyoming filing. Since 85-2-302 gives Montana discretion of allowing up to 18 months for a correction of a defective filing without the applicants losing the original filing date as the priority date, corporation was entitled to have Montana, in its discretion, assign as a priority date the date of the Wyoming filing. Montana had no clear legal duty to do otherwise and was not subject to a mandate that it assign as the priority date the date of the Montana filing. State ex rel. Intake Water Co. v. Compact as Treaty — State Law Subordinate: The Yellowstone River Compact, signed by Wyoming, North Dakota, and Montana and ratified by Congress, has the status of a treaty; and state law, including Montana's water law statutes, is subordinate to it. State ex rel. Intake Water Co. v. Bd. of Nat'l Resources & Conserv., 197 M 482, 645 P2d 383, 39 St. Rep. 717 (1982).

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 7, Sp. L. November 1993, provided: "WHEREAS, in accordance with section 85-2-702, MCA, the 52nd Montana Legislature ratified the Northern Cheyenne-Montana Compact as Chapter 812, Laws of 1991; and

WHEREAS, by its terms, the Compact required the participation of the United States in the project to repair and rehabilitate the Tongue River Dam in southeastern Montana, which required certain authorizations and appropriations by the Congress of the United States; and

WHEREAS, in the Northern Cheyenne Indian Reserved Water Rights Settlement Act of 1992, referred to in this preamble as the federal act (Public Law 102-374, 106 Stat. 1186), Congress approved the Compact and obligated, under certain terms and conditions, the federal government and the state to provide funding for the project; and

WHEREAS, because of a clerical error in the federal act Montana may lose some of the federal funding for the project, and accordingly, Congress, in S. 1654 (103d Cong. 1st Sess.), is considering an amendment to correct that error; and

WHEREAS, some of the terms of the federal act and the pending amendment vary from the Compact, thereby creating uncertainty in efforts to obtain federal funding for the project and secure judicial approval of the Compact; and

WHEREAS, the Northern Cheyenne Tribe, the Montana Reserved Water Rights Compact Commission, and the Montana Department of Natural Resources and Conservation have given their consent to, adopted, and ratified the terms of the federal act and the pending amendment; and

WHEREAS, the judicial confirmation of the Compact and timely completion of the project is of high priority to the State of Montana, the Northern Cheyenne Tribe, and the United States.

THEREFORE, the 53rd Legislature of the State of Montana, meeting in special session, finds it appropriate to give its consent to, adopt, and ratify the terms and conditions of the federal act and the pending amendment and to modify the Compact to the extent necessary to conform therewith."

1995 Amendment: Chapter 149 after Compact title inserted second paragraph relating to Bighorn Canyon National Recreation Area and Little Bighorn Battlefield National Monument; in Article I DEFINITIONS, in definition of abstract, inserted "[and] the copy of the document entitled "Abstract of National Park Service Water Rights - BCNRA and LBBNM" referenced in this Compact as Appendix 2", in definition of consumptive use adjusted subsection reference, in definition of current consumptive use inserted "[with respect to BHNBA, GNP, or YNP and] on or before the effective date of the compact [with respect to BCNRA and LBBNM]", in definition of future consumptive use inserted "[with respect to BHNBA, GNP, or YNP and] after the effective date of the compact [with respect to BCNRA and LBBNM]", inserted definition of Crow Tribal water rights, inserted definition of curtailment, at end of definition of Little Bighorn Battlefield National Monument inserted "and by Act of March 22, 1946, 60 Stat. 59", in definition of non-consumptive use, in three places, inserted "[with respect to BHNBA, GNP, or YNP and]" and reference to the effective date of this Compact with respect to BCNRA and LBBNM, inserted definition of Parkman sandstone, inserted definition of quaternary alluvium, and inserted definition of quaternary terrace deposits; in Article II IMPLEMENTATION, under "Abstract" near middle of first sentence, inserted "[for Big Hole National Battlefield, Glacier

National Park, and Yellowstone National Park, and] Appendix 2, which is a specific listing of all of the United States' water rights for Bighorn Canyon National Recreation Area and the Little Bighorn Battlefield National Monument"; in II, B. Method of Allocation of Water on Category 3 and 4 Streams and of Determining Rights Subject to Curtailment on the Little Bighorn River and its Tributaries, in catchline, inserted "and of Determining Rights Subject to Curtailment on the Little Bighorn River and its Tributaries" and at end of second sentence inserted "and whether a water right on the Little Bighorn River and its tributaries upstream from the LBBNM shall be subject to curtailment to satisfy the reserved instream flow water right for LBBNM"; in II, B., 1. Allocation to Instream Flow, at beginning of introductory paragraph, inserted "With the exception of the reserved instream flow rights for LBBNM"; in II, B., 2., b. Groundwater inserted introductory paragraph, inserted iv. relating to calculation of total future consumptive use on Category 3 or 4 streams at BCNRA, and inserted v. relating to determination of whether an appropriation of groundwater after effective date of Compact is subject to curtailment to satisfy the instream flow water right at LBBNM; in II, C. Subordination of Instream Flow Right, in 1. at end, substituted "sections I and K" for "section I" and in 2. inserted reference to 85-2-212 and at end inserted "provided that water allocated to future consumptive use pursuant to Article III [B.] of this Compact may be used to satisfy claims filed pursuant to 85-2-221(3), MCA in order of priority"; in II, F. Prohibition on Future Impoundments, near end of first sentence, inserted "[and] no new impoundments may be permitted on the mainstem of the Little Bighorn River in Montana upstream of the LBBNM"; in II, G. Management to Maximize Use by Montana Water Users of the Water Allocated to Consumptive Use Rights Recognized Under State Law, near middle after "January 1, 1993", inserted "[with respect to BHNB, GNP, and YNP and] before the effective date of this compact [with respect to BCNRA and LBBNM]"; in II, H. Basin Closure inserted "Big Horn Canyon National Recreation Area: Dry Head, Deadman, Davis and Layout Creeks"; in II, I. Enforcement of Water Right, in 5. at end, inserted last four sentences requiring United States to install and maintain rated gauge to measure instream flows in Little Bighorn River and restricting curtailment of junior water uses; inserted II, K. Administration of Little Bighorn Instream Flow relating to administration of instream flow rights of United States on Little Bighorn River; in Article III WATER RIGHT, in introductory paragraph, inserted second sentence recognizing that water rights for certain NPS Units are junior to Crow Tribal water rights; in III, B. Bighorn Canyon National Recreation Area substituted current Compact language relating to Bighorn Canyon National Recreation Area water rights, including Table 3 and Table 4, for former language that read: "B. Bighorn Canyon National Recreation Area

The parties were unable to finalize agreement on quantification of the water rights for BCNRA prior to the effective date of this Compact. The parties agree to continue to pursue, in good faith, quantification of water rights, and further agree that all other relevant provisions of this Compact apply to a settlement of this water right through this process. In the event the parties are unable to agree on quantification, the United States retains its right to have the quantity of any reserved water right for BCNRA adjudicated in a state or federal court of competent jurisdiction"; in III, E. Little Bighorn Battlefield National Monument substituted current Compact language relating to Little Bighorn Battlefield National Monument water rights, including Table 7, for former language that read: "E. Little Bighorn Battlefield National Monument

The parties were unable to finalize agreement on quantification of the water rights for LBBNM prior to the effective date of this Compact. For the purposes of settlement of the reserved water rights for land administered by the National Park Service in Montana, the parties agree that a water right for instream flow is necessary for the historic purposes of LBBNM. The parties agree to continue to pursue, in good faith, quantification of water rights and further agree that all other relevant provisions of this Compact apply to a settlement of this water right through this process. In the event the parties are unable to agree on quantification, the United States retains its right to have the quantity of any reserved water right for LBBNM adjudicated in a state or federal court of competent jurisdiction"; and throughout Article III WATER RIGHT renumbered existing Tables to reflect insertion of new Tables and changed internal references to Tables, as appropriate; in Article V GENERAL PROVISIONS, in V, A. No Effect on Tribal Rights or Other Federal Reserved Water Rights, in 1. near middle of first sentence, inserted "[with respect to BHNB, GNP, and YNP or] the nature or extent of the rights to water or the right to administer water [with respect to BCNRA and LBBNM]" and inserted last sentence recognizing seniority of Crow Tribal water rights; in V, C. General Disclaimers inserted 10. relating to alteration or amendment of Yellowstone River Compact; in V, G. Severability, at end, inserted "provided that for the purposes of Sec. 85-2-702(3) MCA, the water rights described in this Compact for the LBBNM and BCNRA Units shall be considered as separate Compacts"; in VI FINALITY OF COMPACT AND DISMISSAL OF PENDING CASES, in B., 2. Disposition of Federal Suits, at end of first sentence, inserted "and any claims made by the United States for LBBNM or BCNRA in federal court"; in VI, C. Settlement of Claims, in first paragraph in second sentence, substituted "retained in Article III, sections D. and F. in the Compact for YNP, GNP, and BBNM" for "retained in Article III, sections B., D., E, and F." and inserted last paragraph exempting water rights Claims No. 43P-W-162354-00 and 43P-W-162348-00, relating to Big Horn Canal and Pete's Spring, from this Compact; adjusted internal references to reflect codification of new material within existing compact; and made minor changes in style.

Codification Instruction — Explanation: Section 2, Ch. 149, L. 1995, provided: "[Section 1] is intended to be codified as an integral part of the United States National Park Service-Montana Water Rights Compact, as provided in 85-20-401, and the provisions of the United States National Park Service-Montana Water Rights Compact, as provided in 85-20-401, apply to [section 1]." Accordingly, the Code Commissioner has inserted portions of [this act] into 85-20-401, and those changes are reported in the 1995 amendment note.

Effective Date — Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 149, L. 1995, provided: "(1) [This act] is effective upon signature by the parties as provided in [this act]."

(2) Because [this act] requires Montana and United States approval and incorporates provisions of the existing water rights compact between the United States National Park Service and the State of Montana as provided in 85-20-401, [this act] applies only to the Bighorn Canyon National Recreation Area and the Little Bighorn Battlefield National Monument. The provisions of the existing compact, as provided in 85-20-401, continue in effect and are not affected by [this act] and are incorporated into [this act]."

Part 9Crow Tribe-Montana Compact*Part Case Notes

Water Court's Dismissal of Objections to Crow Water Compact Proper — No Error in Refusal to Stay Proceedings: A group of Crow tribal members holding interests in parcels of former tribal land appealed the Water Court's dismissal of their objections to the Crow Water Compact (Compact) and the Water Court's refusal to stay the proceedings pending the resolution of a lawsuit that the tribal members filed in federal court, arguing that the Water Court erred in treating them as represented parties for the purposes of considering the Compact; that the Water Court should have stayed the proceedings until the resolution of the federal lawsuit; and that a current use list of the tribal water rights is a prerequisite to the validity of the Compact. The Supreme Court affirmed, finding that the Water Court properly determined that the adequacy of the tribal members' representation was not within the scope of its review and, following Officers for Justice v. Civil Service Comm'n, 688 F.2d 615 (9th Cir. 1982), properly limited its review to determining whether the Compact was the product of fraud, collusion, or overreaching. The Water Court acted within its discretionary powers in denying the stay because staying the proceedings until the federal lawsuit was resolved would work a hardship and injustice on the parties who negotiated the Compact and potentially risk the repeal of the Compact. The Compact and the congressional ratification do not require that the specific water rights of the tribal members be quantified prior to implementing the Compact; therefore, there are no grounds for concluding that the Water Court should have deferred action on the Compact. Case Notes

Crow Compact Upheld — Compact Held Reasonable — Public Property and Water Rights Reasonable Under Compact — Public Comment Satisfied Due Process: Individual objectors to the Crow Water Compact appealed to the Supreme Court following the Water Court's determination that the Compact was valid. This action was subsequent to In re Crow Water Compact, 2015 MT 217, 380 Mont 168, 354 P.3d 1217. The objectors, who were not parties to the Compact but who owned land and water rights near the reservation, argued that the Water Court did not apply the proper legal standard, that they sustained injury because the Compact was unreasonable, and that their due process rights were violated during the Compact negotiation process. The Supreme Court disagreed with the objectors, holding that the Water Court correctly applied the correct standard articulated in Crow I, that the Compact was reasonable and had reasonable protection of state water and property rights, that the objectors' argument of future potential problems was beyond the scope of its review, that reservation of water for public recreation, wildlife, and aquatic life was for the benefit of the public, and that the record demonstrated sufficient opportunities for public comment during the Compact approval process. WHEREAS, the Montana Reserved Water Rights Compact Commission and the Blackfeet Tribe have reached agreement on a water rights compact; and

WHEREAS, a Blackfeet Tribe-Montana water rights compact is essential to provide legal certainty with regard to the water rights of Indian and non-Indian water rights holders; and

WHEREAS, implementation of the compact will require state and federal cost sharing; and

WHEREAS, the State of Montana has expressed a commitment to share the costs of the construction, renovation, and upgrade of infrastructure relating to Four Horns Reservoir in the amount of $20 million; and

WHEREAS, state law requires legislative ratification of any compact entered into pursuant to 85-2-702, MCA.”

General Provisions

Compiler's Comments

2013 Amendment: Chapter 235 inserted definition of board; in definition of commission substituted "fish and wildlife commission" for "fish, wildlife, and parks commission"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2013.

Saving Clause: Section 40, Ch. 235, L. 2013, was a saving clause.

1991 Name Change: Section 2, Ch. 28, L. 1991, directed the Code Commissioner to change the name of the Fish and Game Commission to the Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission wherever the name appears in the MCA. Accordingly, the name was changed in this section as directed.

Redundant Language Not Codified: The language contained in section 26-1802(1), (2), R.C.M. 1947, was not codified in the MCA because it is redundant with 87-1-101. The language not codified is still valid law. Citation may be made to sec. 2, Ch. 461, L. 1973. See 1-2-208.

1983 Amendment: Substituted reference to state special revenue fund for reference to earmarked revenue fund.

Attorney General's Opinions

Payment of Medical Expenses Incurred by Fish and Game Violator: Medical expenses incurred by a prisoner incarcerated in a county jail for a violation of state fish and game laws are not chargeable against the state or county, with two exceptions: (1) if the medical condition threatens the health or well-being of other prisoners or persons present in the jail and the county incurs expenses pursuant to section 16-2822, R.C.M. 1947 (7-32-2204, MCA), such expenses are "costs" as defined in section 26-1002, R.C.M. 1947 (87-1-104, MCA), and should be borne by the state; and (2) if a prisoner is financially unable to provide such necessities for himself, in which case the provisions of Title 71, ch. 3, R.C.M. 1947 (Title 53, ch. 3, part 3, MCA), apply. 30 A.G. Op. 36 (1964). (Annotator's note: An amendment to section 16-2818, R.C.M. 1947 (7-32-2222, MCA), by sec. 1, Ch. 179, L. 1965, provided that medical expenses "shall be borne by the agency or authority at whose instance the prisoner is detained". The applicability of this provision to fish and game violations was affirmed in 34 A.G. Op. 24 (1971). An amendment to 7-32-2222 by sec. 1, Ch. 768, L. 1991, provided that medical expenses must be borne by the arresting agency and made an exception for arrests by the Department of Corrections and Human Services (now Department of Corrections).)

2011 Amendment: Chapter 258 in (2) at end substituted "87-6-905 through 87-6-908" for "87-1-111 through 87-1-113". Amendment effective October 1, 2011.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 258, L. 2011, provided: "WHEREAS, the 2007 Legislature passed House Joint Resolution No. 16, urging that revision of the criminal codes within Title 87 of the Montana Code Annotated be given priority; and

WHEREAS, House Joint Resolution No. 16 noted that practitioners, judges, and citizens find that the criminal codes intertwined within the fish and game laws in Title 87 are difficult to read, understand, and prosecute; and

WHEREAS, House Joint Resolution No. 16 directed that revision of the Title 87 criminal code should not include policy changes to current laws and should adhere to the intent of the legislatures that crafted the laws; and

WHEREAS, in 2008, the Director of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks appointed a Title 87 criminal code revision working group, consisting of Justices of the Peace, County Attorneys, an Assistant Attorney General, legal counsel and the enforcement administrator of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, and legislative staff; and

WHEREAS, the working group met numerous times and spent countless hours crafting a revision that makes the Title 87 criminal code more understandable without making substantive or policy changes to present law; and

WHEREAS, revision of the fish and game criminal statutes will benefit the hunting and fishing public, magistrates, and prosecutors by codifying crimes and penalties in a separate chapter of Montana law, rather than being intertwined throughout Title 87."

2011 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 370 in (1), (2), and (7) at beginning inserted exception clause; inserted (11) prohibiting regulation of firearms; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2011.

Chapter 395 in (9)(a)(iv) at beginning inserted "in accordance with the forest management plan required by 87-1-622". Amendment effective July 1, 2011.

2011 Code Commissioner Correction: In (11)(c) the Code Commissioner substituted "87-6-401(1)(f)" for "87-3-301" and in (11)(e) substituted "87-6-401(1)(g) or (1)(h)" for "87-3-401". Sections 87-3-301 and 87-3-401 were repealed by Ch. 258, L. 2011. Subsections (1)(f), (1)(g), and (1)(h) of 87-6-401, enacted by Ch. 258, deal with the same subject matter as the repealed section. The authority for the correction is contained in sec. 49, Ch. 19, L. 2011.

2009 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 10 in (3) near end of second sentence after "sources is" deleted "appropriated to and" and after "department" inserted "and is available for appropriation to the department"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2009.

Chapter 330 inserted (9)(a)(iv) requiring department to address fire mitigation, pine beetle infestation, and wildlife habitat enhancement; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2009.

2007 Amendment: Chapter 262 in (9)(a)(iii) inserted second sentence requiring department to request, as part of elk management plan, that public lands and public roads remain open to public access during big game hunting season. Amendment effective April 26, 2007.

Termination Provision Deleted: Sections 2 and 3, Ch. 235, L. 2005, amended sec. 6, Ch. 544, L. 1999, and sec. 18, Ch. 459, L. 1995, removing the provision that terminated amendments to this section March 1, 2006. Effective April 15, 2005.

2003 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 454 inserted (10) requiring department to publish annual game count in state hunting districts and administrative regions, authorizing department to incorporate field observations, hunter reporting statistics, or other suitable method of determining game numbers, and requiring publication to explain basis used in determining game count. Amendment effective April 21, 2003.

Chapter 461 inserted (9)(c) providing that management plans developed by department are subject to Montana Environmental Policy Act; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 21, 2003.

Chapter 553 in (2), (3), and (5) after “preservation” inserted “management”; inserted (9)(a)(iii) relating to management of elk, deer, and antelope populations; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 5, 2003.

Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 461, L. 2003, provided: “[This act] applies to all management plans that have not been finalized by the department of fish, wildlife, and parks prior to January 1, 2003.”

1999 Amendment: Chapter 369 inserted (9) requiring department programs that manage fish and wildlife so as to prevent the need for listing under 87-5-107 or the Endangered Species Act and that manage listed, sensitive, or potentially listed species under 87-5-107 or the Endangered Species Act so as to assist in their maintenance or recovery, requiring department to balance maintenance or recovery with social and economic impacts of maintenance or recovery, and providing that subsection (9) does not affect ownership or possession of a privately held listed, sensitive, or potentially listed species; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 20, 1999.

Extension of Termination Date: Section 6, Ch. 544, L. 1999, amended sec. 18, Ch. 459, L. 1995, by extending the termination date imposed by Ch. 459 to March 1, 2006.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 459 in temporary version in (1), at end of first sentence, inserted clause authorizing implementation of voluntary programs to encourage hunting access and to promote harmonious relations between landowners and public; and made minor changes in style. Amendment terminates October 1, 2001.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 459, L. 1995, provided: “WHEREAS, Montana has a cherished hunting heritage based on a deep knowledge of and respect for wildlife and the land; and

WHEREAS, private landowners provide wildlife habitat and hunting opportunities, the hunting public provides financial and political support for sound wildlife management, and the combined efforts of landowners and the hunting public have sustained Montana’s hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, landowner/outfitter/sportsperson relations have become increasingly strained over the past several years, leading to increased polarization between the groups; and

WHEREAS, the 1993 Legislature addressed this problem through the passage of House Joint Resolution No. 24, which requested the Governor, through the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, to coordinate a sustained, ongoing, cooperative effort to address these issues by establishing statewide, regional, and local groups to develop mutually satisfactory solutions that would preserve Montana’s hunting and wildlife heritage and encourage the continuance of a viable outfitting industry; and

WHEREAS, in response to that request, the Governor appointed the Advisory Council on Private Land/Public Wildlife, consisting of representatives of the affected groups, to study the issues in anticipation of legislation that reflects the mutual interests of landowners, outfitters, and the sporting community; and

WHEREAS, after considering extensive input and advice from individual private citizens, local working groups, agencies, and nonprofit organizations involved in conservation, the Advisory Council by consensus developed recommendations for improving hunting access to private lands and for providing tangible benefits for landowners who allow access to their lands for hunting; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council has made efforts to break new ground philosophically in designing its recommendations, requiring that all interested parties be willing to accept change in order to benefit everyone who has an interest in Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council finds it appropriate to present the following recommendations to the Legislature in the spirit of a cooperative and positive effort to enhance relations between landowners, outfitters, and sportspersons."

1995 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 459, L. 1995, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because [sections 1 through 3] [87-1-265 through 87-1-267] grant rulemaking authority to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks and the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement programs for hunter management and hunting access enhancement. It is intended that in addition to the statutory guidelines set out in those sections, any rules be adopted with the purpose of optimizing hunting opportunity and access while minimizing administrative costs in providing benefits to landowners who voluntarily participate in the programs. In addition, [section 6] [87-1-268, now repealed] grants rulemaking authority to the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement the provisions of variable pricing for Class B-10 and Class B-11 outfitter-sponsored licenses. It is intended that the fish, wildlife, and parks commission use its licensing authority to adjust the price of those licenses as necessary and that any additional revenue generated by variable pricing be used to fund the hunting access enhancement program."

Saving Clause: Section 14, Ch. 459, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

Study of Recreational User Fees — 1992 Report: Section 5, Ch. 659, L. 1991, provided for a study by the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, in cooperation with the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation, of the feasibility of charging recreational beneficiaries of water storage projects fees to assist in the repayment of a portion of those project costs. A written report must be submitted to the Water Policy Committee by July 1, 1992.

1983 Amendment: Substituted reference to state special revenue fund for reference to earmarked revenue fund.

Seasonal Rules Adopted Annually: Section 2-4-102 excludes from the Montana Administrative Procedure Act seasonal rules adopted annually relating to hunting, fishing, and trapping if the rules are published in accordance with statutory requirements. Section 87-1-202 sets out those requirements. Although the rules do not appear in the Administrative Register of Montana, they are published and copies are available in state and regional offices of the Department.

Case Notes

Transfer of Alternative Livestock to Unlicensed Tribal Lands Illegal: The Wallaces, licensed alternative livestock ranchers, sought to reduce the size of their elk herd by transferring about 500 elk to the Crow Indian Reservation for subsequent release into the wild. The elk had been certified as free of tuberculosis, brucellosis, and elk-red deer hybridization by the Department of Livestock (DOL). Despite notification by the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks (DFWP) that such an act violated state law, the Wallaces transferred 68 elk to the tribe. DFWP requested and received a permanent injunction prohibiting any further transfer of elk to the tribe, and the Wallaces appealed, questioning DFWP jurisdiction. The Supreme Court noted that DFWP has a statutory basis for its jurisdiction over the Wallaces as licensees. Based on DFWP jurisdiction over exterior fencing, and the Department's knowledge that the elk would not be contained behind a game-proof fence upon delivery to the tribe, DFWP had statutory authority to seek the permanent injunction to prevent the transfer. Also, the introduction or transplantation of any wildlife into the wild, including game farm elk, requires the approval of DFWP. Further, 87-4-414 provides that alternative livestock may be kept only on a licensed alternative livestock ranch, and because the tribe is not a licensed facility under Montana law, neither DFWP nor DOL had authority to permit the transfer. The Wallaces knew that the elk were destined for an unlicensed location where they would be released into the wild and could migrate back into Montana, so the transfer violated the Wallaces' duty as licensees to act in accordance with law, and the District Court correctly enjoined the transportation of the elk. Hagener v. Wallace, 2002 MT 109, 309 M 473, 47 P3d 847 (2002).

Hours of Hunting Sufficiently Clear to Withstand Due Process Challenge: After he shot a bull elk half an hour before sunrise, Johnston was arrested for hunting before the allowed time. Johnston challenged the rules of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks as being inconsistent, ambiguous, vague, and factually erroneous. The Supreme Court held that the rules establishing the time of sunrise within the hunting district where Johnston shot the elk were clear in that they precisely defined the time of sunrise on the day Johnston shot the elk, leaving no room to guess at what time a hunter could begin shooting. St. v. Johnston, 263 M 179, 867 P2d 1090, 51 St. Rep. 5 (1994).

Evidence Sufficient to Support Conviction for Game Farm (now Alternative Livestock Ranch) Violations: Evidence of the presence of wild elk on Brogan's game farm (now alternative livestock ranch), gathered by wardens through direct observation and supported by circumstantial evidence, such as animal tracks, the presence of hay near gates, the absence of electric power in the game farm (now alternative livestock ranch) fence, and Brogan's evasive conduct, was sufficient to support Brogan's conviction for capturing wild elk for use on the game farm (now alternative livestock ranch) and for failure to maintain fences. St. v. Brogan, 261 M 79, 862 P2d 19, 50 St. Rep. 1204 (1993).

Removal Proceedings: Summary dismissal of employee by the State Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission) (holder of such authority under former law) without prior charges by the Commission, reasonable notice and hearing thereon, and without affording the employee an opportunity to refute the charges was prohibited. State ex rel. Ford v. St. Fish & Game Comm'n, 148 M 151, 418 P2d 300 (1966), distinguished in Steer v. Missoula, 169 M 398, 547 P2d 843 (1976).

Construction and Application: The power of discharge must be "for cause" and there is no distinction between officers and employees, and removal may be effected only after notice of the charges made has been given and the person involved has been given an opportunity to be heard in his defense. State ex rel. Opheim v. St. Fish & Game Comm'n, 133 M 362, 323 P2d 1116 (1958), distinguished in Steer v. Missoula, 169 M 398, 547 P2d 843 (1976), and State ex rel. Hollibaugh v. St. Fish & Game Comm'n, 139 M 384, 365 P2d 942 (1961).

Attorney General's Opinions

Game Harvesting — Game Ranch: The Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission) does not have the authority to regulate the hunting and killing of privately owned game through the imposition of licensing requirements on individual hunters or open and closed seasons. 36 A.G. Op. 112 (1976).

Fines by District Court in Game Violation Case: A court imposing a fine in a fish and game violation case must pay the money collected to the Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission). 36 A.G. Op. 39 (1975).

Department Regulation of Ice Fishing: The State Fish and Game Department (now Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks) has authority to regulate the use and abandonment of ice fishing facilities after proper findings of fact and pursuant to an agreement with the owner of the private waters involved. 28 A.G. Op. 45 (1959).

2013 Amendment: Chapter 235 in (1) inserted "or by the board setting seasonal land use regulations". Amendment effective July 1, 2013.

Saving Clause: Section 40, Ch. 235, L. 2013, was a saving clause.

2007 Amendment: Chapter 16 in (1) substituted provisions for posting annual and biennial commission rules for former language that read: "The orders, rules, and regulations of the department shall be published and posted in the following manner:

(1) Those having general application throughout the state shall be published in such manner and to such an extent as the department deems necessary and may direct"; substituted (2) regarding posting of site-specific land use regulations for former (2) that read: "(2) Those of general or special character having local application only shall be published once in some newspaper having general circulation in the locality or district wherein such rules, regulations, or orders are applicable and shall be posted in three conspicuous places in the locality or district in which they are applicable"; inserted (3) regarding publication of certain commission orders; inserted (4) regarding public notification of emergency closures; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 16, 2007.

Seasonal Rules Adopted Annually: Section 2-4-102 excludes from the Montana Administrative Procedure Act seasonal rules adopted annually relating to hunting, fishing, and trapping if the rules are published in accordance with statutory requirements. Section 87-1-202 sets out those requirements. Although the rules do not appear in the Administrative Register of Montana, they are published and copies are available in state and regional offices of the Department.

2009 Amendment: Chapter 56 made section gender neutral; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2009.

Case Notes

Department Employees Not Prohibited From Lobbying or Legislative Activity: Plaintiff contended that the language in this section prohibiting a Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks (FWP) employee from using the employee's official authority or influence for the purpose of interfering with an election or affecting election results or for the purpose of coercing or influencing the political actions of any person or body meant that FWP employees could not lobby the Legislature or appear before the Legislature as proponents or opponents of legislation. The Supreme Court held that a general prohibition on FWP political activity would lead to an absurd result, given the Department's numerous statutory mandates to report to the Legislature and recommend legislation, and to interact with other governmental agencies on various levels. Rather, the prohibition in this section applies to FWP employees only in the partisan political sense and does not prohibit FWP employees from lobbying the Legislature or appearing before the Legislature as proponents or opponents of legislation. Mont. Sports Shooting Ass'n, Inc. v. St., 2008 MT 190, 344 M 1, 185 P3d 1003 (2008). See also St. v. Sullivan, 98 M 425, 40 P2d 995 (1935).

District Court Bound by Factual Findings of Board of Personnel Appeals — Wrongful Discharge — Reinstatement — No Backpay: An employee of the state was discharged from employment because he used a state-owned vehicle for private purposes. He appealed the decision of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, and the Board of Personnel Appeals ruled that though his discharge was properly justified, the Department had never adopted a policy regarding such use of vehicles and had not punished similar usage; thus, the discharge was wrongful and he was entitled to reinstatement. He was offered a substantially equivalent position but appealed the Board's denial of backpay and benefits and, upon losing the District Court appeal, pursued the issues before the Supreme Court. The court upheld the District Court on all issues, observing that both courts were bound by factual findings of the Board and stipulations by the parties. The District Court was not obligated to hold a hearing on the facts. Hutchin v. St., 213 M 15, 688 P2d 1257, 41 St. Rep. 1916 (1984).

Based on Clark's actions, the warden suspected that Clark might have stopped to hide or change something before reaching the check station, so wardens stopped Clark's vehicle. Clark exhibited signs of intoxication and was subsequently arrested by the Highway Patrol for DUI. Clark contended that wardens had no particularized suspicion to stop the vehicle for a possible fish and game violation and that evidence from the vehicle search should be suppressed. The District Court denied Clark's suppression motion, and on appeal the Supreme Court affirmed. The game warden possessed a reasonable suspicion based on articulable facts and experience from which to draw an inference that Clark might have committed a game violation sufficient to warrant stopping Clark's vehicle. St. v. Clark, 2009 MT 327, 353 M 1, 218 P3d 483 (2009).

1981 Amendments: Chapter 230 deleted “condemnation” after “may acquire by purchase” in the introductory clause of (1) and added subsection (2) relating to condemnation for historical or archaeological sites.

Chapter 418 inserted “and, in the case of land acquisition involving more than 100 acres or $100,000 in value, the approval of the board of land commissioners” near the beginning of (1).

Severability: Section 3, Ch. 379, L. 1979, was a severability section.

Case Notes

Nature of Road to Fishing Access Site — Easement — No Deprivation of Landowner's Property: A landowner brought an action to prevent the state from opening a fishing access site and from paving a road to the site, based on a claimed fee title to the roadway. The District Court granted the state a summary judgment as a matter of law. The Supreme Court found the landowner's interest was an ordinary easement. The words “private road” did not clearly indicate intent to create in him an “exclusive” easement. The state's use of the road cannot be declared inconsistent with the landowner's on the basis of speculation. Furthermore, under various statutory provisions, the state obtained its land lawfully. The plaintiff had not yet been deprived of his property interest. Any damages remained speculative at the time of the decision. The summary judgment was accordingly affirmed. Titeca v. St., 194 M 209, 634 P2d 1156, 38 St. Rep. 1533 (1981).

Attorney General's Opinions

Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Subject to Local Review in Creation of Recreational Vehicle Camping Area: The term “subdivision” is defined in 76-3-103 to include the provision of multiple space for recreational camping vehicles. The Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks argued that, as a state agency, it was exempt from the review requirement. Because exemptions are provided for some state activities but not for activities to provide multiple space for recreational camping vehicles on state land, the clear implication is that the state is to stand on the same footing with a private person in this matter. It was noted that there is a trend toward abandoning the traditional view that activities of the state may be exercised free of local control. The Department is subject to local subdivision review to the extent that it creates an area that will provide multiple space for recreational camping vehicles. 39 A.G. Op. 14 (1981).

2003 Amendment: Chapter 604 in (2)(c) inserted third sentence concerning public hunting of wild buffalo or bison; deleted former (3) that read: "(3) The department and the department of livestock are strongly urged to enter into an agreement with the national park service for the long-term management of the Yellowstone national park wild buffalo or bison herd. If the national park service does not proceed in good faith in a timely manner to enter a long-term management agreement that, in the determination of the department and the department of livestock, responds adequately to the needs of Montana, the departments are strongly urged to take appropriate court action. The department and the department of livestock shall prepare a joint report to the 55th legislature regarding the present state of wild buffalo or bison management in Montana and any progress on an agreement for the long-term management of the Yellowstone national park herd"; inserted (4) concerning rules regarding special wild buffalo or bison license; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 9, 2003.

1995 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 346, L. 1995, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because the department of livestock is authorized in [section 1] [81-2-120] to adopt rules with regard to management of publicly owned wild buffalo or bison that enter Montana on private or public land and that are from a herd that is infected with a contagious disease that may spread to persons or livestock and may jeopardize compliance with federally administered livestock disease control programs. The department may determine that rulemaking is necessary with regard to feasible methods of taking wild buffalo or bison allowed within [section 1(1)] [81-2-120(1)] or with regard to disposal of the carcasses of wild buffalo or bison as provided for in [section 1(2) and (3)] [81-2-120(2) and (3)].

A statement of intent is also required because [section 2] [87-1-216] authorizes the department of fish, wildlife, and parks to adopt rules with regard to wild buffalo or bison that have not been exposed to or infected with a contagious disease but are in need of management because of potential damage to person or property. The department may determine that rulemaking is necessary if management of wild buffalo or bison under the provisions of [section 2] [87-1-216] includes public hunting."

Effective Date: Section 5, Ch. 346, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] is effective on passage and approval." Approved April 10, 1995.

Case Notes

Phrase "Private or Public Land in Montana" Not Applicable to Tribal Lands — Injunction Prohibiting Transfer of Bison Improper: The Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks transferred some Yellowstone bison to the Fort Peck Reservation, with part of the herd to be subsequently transferred to the Fort Belknap Reservation. The District Court issued a preliminary injunction to prohibit the transfer of some of the bison to Fort Belknap on the basis that the Department had not complied with the requirements of 87-1-216, which provides that the Department may not release, transplant, or allow wild buffalo or bison on any private or public land in Montana that has not been authorized for that use by the private or public owner. The Supreme Court reversed on the basis that the phrase "private or public land in Montana" does not apply to tribal lands and therefore it was error on the District Court's part to issue an injunction based on a violation of 87-1-216. Citizens for Balanced Use v. Maurier, 2013 MT 166, 370 Mont. 410, 303 P.3d 794.

Federal Court Action Against State Barred Absent State Consent to Be Sued: The Fund for Animals alleged that federal and state officials violated the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA) and the Montana Environmental Policy Act (MEPA) by failing to prepare an environmental impact statement before adopting a plan to kill bison leaving Yellowstone National Park. The District Court properly denied a preliminary injunction to halt implementation of the plan in light of public support of the plan, given the serious threat of brucellosis to Montana cattle, the large number of excess bison, and the lack of feasible alternatives to control bison migrating out of the park. Although nonfederal actors may be enjoined under NEPA if their proposed action cannot proceed without prior approval of a federal agency, state actors may not be enjoined simply because the state project involves major federal action. Penalizing the State of Montana for consenting to participate in a plan with the federal government, designed to limit the killing of bison, would be inequitable. Further, the 11th amendment to the U.S. Constitution barred the organization from proceeding in federal court against either the State of Montana or its officers for violations of MEPA, absent a demonstration that the state had consented to be sued in federal court for alleged MEPA violations. Fund for Animals, Inc. v. Lujan, 962 F.2d 1391 (9th Cir. 1992).

Stephens, governor and superintendent of Indian affairs for the territory of Washington, and the chiefs, headmen, and delegates of the confederated tribes of the Flathead, Kootenai, and Upper Pend Oreille Indians, the said Indians were given the exclusive right to fish and hunt on the Flathead Indian reservation and the privilege of hunting in their usual hunting grounds on large areas of Montana; and whereas, nonmembers of such tribes have the right to hunt and fish on Indian lands by sufferance of such tribes only; and whereas, it appears to be to the common advantage of the state and such Indian tribes that hunting and fishing regulations and privileges on other lands of the state and on Indian lands shall be uniform and that hunting and fishing on such Indian lands shall be in common with the public, now, therefore, the department may negotiate and conclude an agreement with the council of the Confederated Salish and Kootenai tribes of the Flathead Indian reservation for the purpose of:

(a) obtaining and establishing for the citizens of Montana, regularly licensed to hunt and fish in the state, the privileges of hunting and fishing on Indian lands on the Flathead Indian reservation;

(b) the conservation and protection of fish and game and fur-bearing animals on such Indian lands and on lands adjacent thereto;

(c) setting dates for the opening and closing of seasons for hunting and fishing on such lands for Indians and non-Indians alike, opening and closing of streams and land areas for hunting and fishing;

(d) doing what in its judgment is necessary by way of granting to such tribal Indians state permits to hunt and fish, to be issued without charge to such Indians;

(e) stocking streams and land areas of such Indian lands for the common benefit;

(f) policing such Indian lands for the protection of fish and game; and

(g) in general carrying out the purposes of this section.

Case Notes

Closure to Nontribal Member of Big Game Hunting on Indian Reservation Permissible Exercise of Authority of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission: It is not necessary that state fish and game laws specifically mention Indian hunting rights in order for the Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission to have proper authority to promulgate a regulation that recognizes those rights under state law, nor is it necessary that the Commission be directed by legislative intent, studies, or committee minutes specific to the issue in order to recognize Indian hunting rights. In promulgating hunting regulations, the Commission must take this section into account, which explicitly recognizes tribal hunting rights on the Flathead Indian Reservation, as well as federal court decisions regarding the issue of jurisdiction to regulate hunting on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Thus, the Commission properly exercised its authority in prohibiting hunting by nontribal members on reservations. Here, Shook, who was not a tribal member, was convicted of killing a whitetail buck on private property on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Shook's conviction did not conflict with 87-1-305. Further, 18 U.S.C. 1165, which gives tribes exclusive jurisdiction to regulate hunting on reservations, did not apply to Shook because the violation was charged under state rather than federal law. St. v. Shook, 2002 MT 347, 313 M 347, 61 P3d 863 (2002). See also State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754 (1985), and Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. St., 750 F. Supp. 446 (1990).

Summary of Holdings in Litigation Over Hunting and Fishing Rights on Crow Indian Reservation: "The explicit holdings of the Supreme Court in Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. 544, 101 S.Ct. 1245, 67 L.Ed.2d 493 (1981), and of the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in United States v. State of Montana, 604 F.2d 1162 (9th Cir. 1979), to the extent not reversed by the Supreme Court, are as follows:

1. The Crow Tribe can proscribe all hunting and fishing by non-members on those lands described in 18 U.S.C. § 1165. Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254.

2. The Crow Tribe, within 18 U.S.C. § 1165 lands, has power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members of the tribe (whether Indian or non-Indian) subject to the following conditions:

(a) That the Crow Tribe lacks the power to impose criminal sanctions on non-Indians who violate its hunting and fishing regulations,

(b) That the exercise by the Crow Tribe of its power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-Indians must be within the constraints recognized by this court in Quechan Tribe of Indians v. Rowe, 531 F.2d 408 (9th Cir. 1976). Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254; United States v. Montana, 604 F.2d at 1165, 1170.

3. The title to the bed and banks of the Big Horn is in the State of Montana. 450 U.S. at 556-57, 101 S.Ct. at 1253-54.

4. The Crow Tribe has no power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members on non-member owned fee patent land located within the exterior boundaries of the Crow Reservation. Id. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254.

5. The State of Montana cannot regulate hunting and fishing by members of the Crow Tribe within 18 U.S.C. § 1165 lands. 604 F.2d at 1172.

6. The State of Montana has the power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members of the Crow Tribe within the exterior boundaries of the Crow Reservation subject to the following limitations:

(a) That such regulations of the State of Montana not regulate indirectly the hunting and fishing by members of the Crow Tribe on 18 U.S.C. § 1165 lands.

(b) That such regulations of the State of Montana must have as their purpose the conservation and proper management of game and fish and not to discriminate against, nor to impede, authorized regulation by the Crow Tribe. Id. at 1166.

7. Such rights as the State of Montana has to regulate fishing on the Big Horn River by the Crows and all others are not limited by either (a) the treaties of 1851 and 1868 (except to such extent as these treaties might acknowledge pertinent aboriginal title rights of the Crow Tribe not heretofore asserted or recognized in this litigation) or (b) the inherent sovereignty of the Crow Tribe. 604 F.2d at 1170-71." (Quoting from U.S. v. Mont., 686 F.2d 766 (9th Cir. 1982), at pp. 768-769.)

Tribal Regulation of Flathead Lake Usage: Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation have authority to regulate federal common-law riparian rights of non-Indians who own reservation land bordering the south half of Flathead Lake. The Circuit Court held that the decision in Mont. v. U.S., 450 US 544, 67 L Ed 2d 493, 101 S Ct 1245 (1981), regarding ownership and control of the Bighorn River, was not controlling. The decision in Mont. Power Co. v. Rochester, 127 F2d 189 (9th Cir. 1942), was given deference under the principle of stare decisis. Rochester held that the United States holds title to the bed and banks of the south half of Flathead Lake in trust for the tribes. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation v. Namen, 665 F2d 951 (9th Cir. 1982), followed in In re Estate of Hobbs, 2002 MT 85, 309 M 308, 46 P3d 594 (2002).

Airborne Hunting — Non-Indian Hunters on Indian Reservations: The Airborne Hunting Act, 16 U.S.C. § 742j-1, was declared unconstitutional in a challenge by non-Indian hunters caught hunting on an Indian reservation. The statute was found to be an unlawful preemption of reserve state regulatory authority. The federal government is not empowered to displace Montana's regulation in this area. U.S. v. Helsley, 463 F. Supp. 1111 (D.C. Mont. 1979), reversed in U.S. v. Helsley, 615 F2d 784 (9th Cir. 1979).

Indians Hunting on Open and Unclaimed Land: Members of the Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes have a right to hunt free from the regulation of Montana game laws on "open and unclaimed lands" by virtue of Article II of the Treaty of Hell Gate and this includes National Forest Service land. St. v. Stasso, 172 M 242, 563 P2d 562 (1977).

Jurisdiction — Hunting and Fishing: Flathead Tribe had jurisdiction to regulate fishing upon Crow Creek Reservoir, and violation of tribal ordinance requiring permit for fishing constituted federal offense. U.S. v. Zempel, 32 St. Rep. 1130 (D.C. Mont. 1975). (Annotator's Comment: This case was not published in F. Supp.)

Treaty of 1855: Indians were not subject to state fish and game laws on reservation property since under the Treaty of 1855 between the Indians of Flathead Reservation and the United States, the exclusive right to hunt and fish within the boundaries of the Reservation was reserved by the Indians. *St. v. Termination Provision Repealed: Section 1, Ch. 50, L. 2005, repealed sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, sec. 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, and secs. 1 and 2, Ch. 241, L. 1993, which terminated this section March 1, 2006. Effective March 24, 2005.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 241, L. 1993, provided: "WHEREAS, the lease or purchase of land suitable for wildlife habitat and the acquisition of conservation easements to protect and enhance habitat are necessary; and

WHEREAS, the program instituted by the 1987 Legislature to allocate revenue from increased hunting license fees to fund the protection and enhancement of wildlife habitat has proved to be an effective and valuable tool in maintaining the quality of wildlife habitat in Montana; and

WHEREAS, it is in the interests of the people and the wildlife of the State of Montana to continue the wildlife habitat acquisition program on a permanent basis."

Extension of Termination Date: Section 1, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006. Section 2, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006.

Extension of Termination Date: Section 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 1996. Amendment effective April 2, 1991.

1989 Amendment: Inserted (1)(e) requiring analysis of significant potential social and economic impacts. Amendment effective April 12, 1989.

1987 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 598, L. 1987, provided: "House Bill No. 526 [Ch. 598, L. 1987] requires a statement of intent because section 1 [87-1-241] requires the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] to adopt rules establishing its policy regarding wildlife habitat acquisitions provided for by this act.

It is the intent of this act to provide a means for the department of fish, wildlife, and parks to acquire an interest in land for the purpose of protecting and enhancing wildlife habitat. Such interest in land must be gained by the purchase of leases, conservation easements, or fee title. While it is preferable to acquire such interest through lease or conservation easement, the legislature acknowledges that the willing seller will determine the manner by which such interest is obtained and thus provides for all three alternatives.

It is intended that the rules will address policy considerations for making acquisitions generally, as well as establishing procedures for determining in each case of a proposed acquisition whether the interest will be acquired.

It is intended that the commission identify habitat needs by administrative region and compile these needs in a consolidated statewide habitat acquisition plan. The rules must ensure that acquired interests in habitat lands are reasonably distributed around the state in accordance with the statewide habitat acquisition plan and that emphasis is placed upon those areas where important habitat is seriously threatened.

It is intended that the department exercise good land management practices on all land acquired, and multiple uses of such land when not detrimental to its value as wildlife habitat are specifically authorized. The department shall identify management objectives for each proposed acquisition, analyze potential impacts to adjacent private land resulting from those objectives, and develop plans to address such impacts.

A public hearing must be held in the area of each proposed acquisition after the required analysis has been completed by the department, for the purpose of obtaining comment from the interested public. The analysis and related public concerns are to be presented to the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] prior to its final action on any acquisition of interest and also to the board of land commissioners if that body is required to make a decision on the proposal under 87-1-209.

The policy and an analysis for each proposal acted upon in a biennium must be presented to the members of both the house and senate fish and game committees when they next meet in regular session."

Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 598, L. 1987, read: "WHEREAS, the lease or purchase of land suitable for wildlife habitat and the acquisition of conservation easements to protect and enhance habitat are necessary; and

WHEREAS, allocating revenue from increases in hunting license fees is appropriate to fund the protection and enhancement of wildlife habitat."

2010 Amendment by Initiative: Initiative Measure No. 161, proposed by initiative petition and approved at the general election held November 2, 2010, in (2) after "subsection (1)" deleted "except outfitter-sponsored Class B-10 and Class B-11 licenses subject to variable pricing under 87-1-268". Amendment effective March 1, 2011.

Sections 2 and 3, Ch. 235, L. 2005, amended sec. 6, Ch. 544, L. 1999, and sec. 18, Ch. 459, L. 1995, removing the provision that terminated amendments to this section March 1, 2006. Effective April 15, 2005.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 7 in (1)(i) after "Class AAA" substituted "combination sports" for "sportsman's". Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Extension of Termination Date: Section 6, Ch. 544, L. 1999, amended sec. 18, Ch. 459, L. 1995, by extending the termination date imposed by Ch. 459 to March 1, 2006.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 459 in version effective March 1, 1996, in (2) inserted variable pricing exception; deleted former (4)(a) that read: "(a) Until March 1, 1991, 20% of the money allocated by this section must be credited to the account created by 87-1-601(5) for use in the manner prescribed therein for the development and maintenance of real property used for wildlife habitat"; in (4), at beginning, deleted "On and after March 1, 1991"; adjusted subsection references; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1996, and terminates October 1, 2001.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 459, L. 1995, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana has a cherished hunting heritage based on a deep knowledge of and respect for wildlife and the land; and

WHEREAS, private landowners provide wildlife habitat and hunting opportunities, the hunting public provides financial and political support for sound wildlife management, and the combined efforts of landowners and the hunting public have sustained Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, landowner/outfitter/sportsperson relations have become increasingly strained over the past several years, leading to increased polarization between the groups; and

WHEREAS, the 1993 Legislature addressed this problem through the passage of House Joint Resolution No. 24, which requested the Governor, through the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, to coordinate a sustained, ongoing, cooperative effort to address these issues by establishing statewide, regional, and local groups to develop mutually satisfactory solutions that would preserve Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage and encourage the continuance of a viable outfitting industry; and

WHEREAS, in response to that request, the Governor appointed the Advisory Council on Private Land/Public Wildlife, consisting of representatives of the affected groups, to study the issues in anticipation of legislation that reflects the mutual interests of landowners, outfitters, and the sporting community; and

WHEREAS, after considering extensive input and advice from individual private citizens, local working groups, agencies, and nonprofit organizations involved in conservation, the Advisory Council by consensus developed recommendations for improving hunting access to private lands and for providing tangible benefits for landowners who allow access to their lands for hunting; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council has made efforts to break new ground philosophically in designing its recommendations, requiring that all interested parties be willing to accept change in order to benefit everyone who has an interest in Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council finds it appropriate to present the following recommendations to the Legislature in the spirit of a cooperative and positive effort to enhance relations between landowners, outfitters, and sportspersons."

1995 Statement of Intent: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because [sections 1 through 3] [87-1-265 through 87-1-267] grant rulemaking authority to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks and the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement programs for hunter management and hunting access enhancement. It is intended that in addition to the statutory guidelines set out in those sections, any rules be adopted with the purpose of optimizing hunting opportunity and access while minimizing administrative costs in providing benefits to landowners who voluntarily participate in the programs. In addition, [section 6] [87-1-268, now repealed] grants rulemaking authority to the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement the provisions of variable pricing for Class B-10 and Class B-11 outfitter-sponsored licenses. It is intended that the fish, wildlife, and parks commission use its licensing authority to adjust the price of those licenses as necessary and that any additional revenue generated by variable pricing be used to fund the hunting access enhancement program."

Saving Clause: Section 14, Ch. 459, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 241, L. 1993, provided: "WHEREAS, the lease or purchase of land suitable for wildlife habitat and the acquisition of conservation easements to protect and enhance habitat are necessary; and

WHEREAS, the program instituted by the 1987 Legislature to allocate revenue from increased hunting license fees to fund the protection and enhancement of wildlife habitat has proved to be an effective and valuable tool in maintaining the quality of wildlife habitat in Montana; and

WHEREAS, it is in the interests of the people and the wildlife of the State of Montana to continue the wildlife habitat acquisition program on a permanent basis."

Extension of Termination Date: Section 1, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006. Section 2, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006.

1991 Amendment: At beginning of (4)(a) inserted "Until March 1, 1991"; and inserted (4)(b) reallocating 20% of the money collected under this section for development and maintenance of real property used for wildlife habitat. Amendment effective April 2, 1991.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 319, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, wildlife is a major historical, social, and economic resource of Montana; and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interests of the people, the wildlife, and the State of Montana to have a permanent wildlife habitat and conservation easement acquisition program; and

WHEREAS, sportsmen and others have demonstrated their commitment to wildlife by supporting, through license fees, the acquisition of wildlife habitat; and

WHEREAS, private landowners provide significant habitat for Montana's wildlife resources and have legitimate concerns regarding the operation and maintenance of neighboring lands acquired by the Fish and Game Commission [now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission] for wildlife habitat; and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interests of the people, the wildlife, and the State of Montana that relations between landowners and sportsmen be cooperative and mutually respectful in nature and that the concerns of both landowners and sportsmen be taken into consideration in the formulation of a wildlife habitat and conservation easement acquisition program; and

WHEREAS, an independent and detailed study is needed to determine the character and application of the state's permanent wildlife habitat and conservation easement acquisition program."

Study Required — Report to 1993 Legislature: Section 2, Ch. 319, L. 1991, provided: "(1) The department of fish, wildlife, and parks shall commission an independent comprehensive study of wildlife habitat acquisition, improvement, and development, to be funded in an amount up to $150,000 from money allocated under 87-1-242(3).

(2) The study must analyze the department's current wildlife habitat acquisition, improvement, operations, maintenance, and development program and develop a comprehensive plan for a permanent wildlife habitat acquisition, improvement, operations, maintenance, development, and land management program, including the use of conservation easements, leases, and fee title acquisition. The study must also include a comprehensive and detailed accounting of expenditures authorized by 87-1-242(4). The department shall ensure participation by the public, including landowners and sportsmen, in the development of the comprehensive plan. The study and plan must be completed by December 1, 1992, and presented to the 1993 legislature."

Effective Date — Contingent Retroactive Applicability: Section 4, Ch. 319, L. 1991, provided: "[This act] is effective on passage and approval and, if passed and approved on or after March 1, 1991, applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to funds allocated under 87-1-242(4) on and after March 1, 1991." Approved April 2, 1991.

Extension of Termination Date: Section 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 1996. Amendment effective April 2, 1991.

Coordination Instruction: Section 11, Ch. 598, L. 1987, a coordination section, in (1)(a) substituted $77 for $100; in (1)(i) substituted $7 for $9; and inserted (1)(j) relating to the Class B-11 license.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 216, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, the Private Land/Public Wildlife Advisory Council is charged with the responsibility to make suggestions for funding, modification, or improvement of the hunting access enhancement program; and

WHEREAS, although the hunting access enhancement program has enjoyed considerable success to date in providing greater opportunities for Montana hunters, the Private Land/Public Wildlife Advisory Council recognizes the potential to increase hunting access through expansion of the program; and

WHEREAS, increasing the size of the current program through a once-a-season hunting access enhancement fee on resident and most nonresident hunters would provide revenue to allow greater landowner incentives, improve hunting access to private and public lands, improve program management and services, increase upland bird hunting opportunities, and provide for future increased program costs because of inflation."

Extension of Termination Date: Section 6, Ch. 544, L. 1999, amended sec. 18, Ch. 459, L. 1995, by extending the termination date imposed by Ch. 459 to March 1, 2006.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 459, L. 1995, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana has a cherished hunting heritage based on a deep knowledge of and respect for wildlife and the land; and

WHEREAS, private landowners provide wildlife habitat and hunting opportunities, the hunting public provides financial and political support for sound wildlife management, and the combined efforts of landowners and the hunting public have sustained Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, landowner/outfitter/sportsperson relations have become increasingly strained over the past several years, leading to increased polarization between the groups; and

WHEREAS, the 1993 Legislature addressed this problem through the passage of House Joint Resolution No. 24, which requested the Governor, through the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, to coordinate a sustained, ongoing, cooperative effort to address these issues by establishing statewide, regional, and local groups to develop mutually satisfactory solutions that would preserve Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage and encourage the continuance of a viable outfitting industry; and

WHEREAS, in response to that request, the Governor appointed the Advisory Council on Private Land/Public Wildlife, consisting of representatives of the affected groups, to study the issues in anticipation of legislation that reflects the mutual interests of landowners, outfitters, and the sporting community; and

WHEREAS, after considering extensive input and advice from individual private citizens, local working groups, agencies, and nonprofit organizations involved in conservation, the Advisory Council by consensus developed recommendations for improving hunting access to private lands and for providing tangible benefits for landowners who allow access to their lands for hunting; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council has made efforts to break new ground philosophically in designing its recommendations, requiring that all interested parties be willing to accept change in order to benefit everyone who has an interest in Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council finds it appropriate to present the following recommendations to the Legislature in the spirit of a cooperative and positive effort to enhance relations between landowners, outfitters, and sportspersons."

1995 Statement of Intent."A statement of intent is required for this bill because [sections 1 through 3] [87-1-265 through 87-1-267] grant rulemaking authority to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks and the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement programs for hunter management and hunting access enhancement. It is intended that in addition to the statutory guidelines set out in those sections, any rules be adopted with the purpose of optimizing hunting opportunity and access while minimizing administrative costs in providing benefits to landowners who voluntarily participate in the programs. In addition, [section 6] [87-1-268, now repealed] grants rulemaking authority to the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement the provisions of variable pricing for Class B-10 and Class B-11 outfitter-sponsored licenses. It is intended that the fish, wildlife, and parks commission use its licensing authority to adjust the price of those licenses as necessary and that any additional revenue generated by variable pricing be used to fund the hunting access enhancement program."

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 463, L. 1995, provided: "WHEREAS, the rivers and streams of Montana hold one of the state's most important and economically valuable resources—wild fish; and

WHEREAS, the loss of historic spawning areas and other crucial habitats of native fish species is one of the greatest threats to the natural reproduction and propagation of the fish resource; and

WHEREAS, the state is presently in a position to address the key issue of these aquatic habitats in order to promote the future viability of Montana's wild fisheries before the continued loss of spawning areas and other habitats diminishes or destroys the resource; and

WHEREAS, a wild fisheries enhancement program will immensely benefit landowner-sportsperson relations; and

WHEREAS, a wild fisheries enhancement program will benefit Montana's economy; and

WHEREAS, it is fiscally sound state policy to enhance natural habitats and spawning areas to improve fishing opportunities now and preserve fishing opportunities for future generations; and

WHEREAS, voluntary cooperation between landowners, interested citizens, public and private organizations, and the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks will help accomplish the purposes of the future fisheries improvement program."

Termination: Section 5, Ch. 463, L. 1995, provided: "(1) [Sections 1 and 2] [87-1-272 and 87-1-273] terminate July 1, 2005.

(2) [Section 3] [not codified] terminates July 1, 1997."

Effective Date: Section 6(2), Ch. 463, L. 1995, provided that this section is effective April 14, 1995.

Chapter 235 in (1) substituted “subsections (7) and (8)” for “subsection (7)”; in (1)(a) after “department” inserted “related to fish and wildlife”; in (1)(c) and (1)(e) inserted “23-1-111 and”; in (1)(e) substituted “87-1-209(2) and (4)” for “87-1-209(4)”; in (1)(f) and (1)(g) inserted exception clauses; in (1)(f) substituted “office of budget and program planning” for “budget office”; inserted (8) concerning commission oversight restrictions; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2013.

2011 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 174 inserted (5)(b) requiring commission to square the number of points purchased by an applicant when conducting drawings for licenses or permits; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2012.

Chapter 254 in (1)(c) at beginning inserted exception clause. Amendment effective April 21, 2011.

Chapter 370 in (1) at beginning inserted exception clause; inserted (7) prohibiting regulation of firearms; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2011.

Chapter 391 in (5) at beginning inserted “Subject to the provisions of 87-2-115”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2011.

2011 Code Commissioner Correction: In (7)(c) the Code Commissioner substituted “87-6-401(1)(f)” for “87-3-301” and in (7)(e) substituted “87-6-401(1)(g) or (1)(h)” for “87-3-401”. Sections 87-3-301 and 87-3-401 were repealed by Ch. 258, L. 2011. Subsections (1)(f), (1)(g), and (1)(h) of 87-6-401, enacted by Ch. 258, deal with the same subject matter as the repealed section. The authority for the correction is contained in sec. 49, Ch. 19, L. 2011.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 254, L. 2011, provided: “WHEREAS, the Montana Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks (MDFWP) is considering whether to deem and classify domestic livestock trailing as a commercial use that is subject to licensing or permitting by the department, the payment of a licensing or permitting fee, and an environmental review under the Montana Environmental Policy Act; and

WHEREAS, MDFWP has adopted administrative rules governing the commercial use of lands under the control, administration, and jurisdiction of the department; and

WHEREAS, livestock grazing, farming, haying, fencing, and timber harvest have been exempted from those rules; and

WHEREAS, given those exemptions for farming and ranching activities, the Legislature believes that domestic livestock trailing should also be exempt; and

WHEREAS, domestic livestock trailing is a necessary component of ranching and farming in Montana; and

WHEREAS, in order to sustain Montana's valuable farm and ranching economy and land bases associated with that economy, farmers and ranchers must be encouraged and have the right to engage in activities that allow them to remain in farming and ranching; and

WHEREAS, MDFWP's attempt to classify domestic livestock trailing as a commercial use and to subject trailing activities to environmental review interferes with the Legislature's directive under Article XII, section 1, of the Montana Constitution to enact laws that protect, enhance, and develop all agriculture; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature has a strong interest in protecting the health of Montana's agriculture industry."

Severability: Section 3, Ch. 254, L. 2011, was a severability clause.

2007 Amendment: Chapter 262 in (1)(h) inserted second and third sentences requiring commission to consider landowner tolerance when deciding whether to restrict elk hunting in a hunting district and defining landowner tolerance. Amendment effective April 26, 2007.

2005 Amendment: Chapter 430 in (1)(e) at end inserted exception clause. Amendment effective April 28, 2005.

2003 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 127 at end of (6)(a)(i) after "districts" deleted "in the administrative region designated by the department as region 1"; and in (6)(a)(ii) after "districts" deleted "in the administrative region designated by the department as region 1, which may include limiting the number of nonresident hound handler permits". Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

Chapter 553 in (1)(a) inserted "management"; inserted (1)(h) relating to management of elk, deer, and antelope populations; in (4)(b)(i) and (4)(b)(ii) inserted "antelope"; inserted (4)(b)(iii) relating to sustainable elk, deer, and antelope populations; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 5, 2003.

Termination Provision Repealed: Section 2, Ch. 127, L. 2003, repealed sec. 3, Ch. 575, L. 2001, which terminated the 2001 amendments to this section April 30, 2004. Effective October 1, 2003.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 575 inserted (6) authorizing commission to adopt rules regarding hunting of mountain lions; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 5, 2001, and terminates April 30, 2004.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 575, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, the Legislature finds that there are unique and special circumstances associated with lion hunting in Region 1 that have created intense hunting pressure, competition, and biological management problems that are unacceptable to the general public."

Termination Provision Repealed: Section 1, Ch. 21, L. 2001, repealed sec. 6, Ch. 355, L. 1997, which terminated the 1997 amendments to this section October 1, 2001. Effective February 19, 2001.

1999 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 373 in (3) at end inserted "and persons with disabilities"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 20, 1999.

Chapter 533 inserted (5) ((4 in version effective October 1, 2001) concerning rules establishing preference systems for distributing hunting licenses and permits. Amendment effective October 1, 2000.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 355 inserted (4) allowing the Commission to adopt rules regarding separation and sale of deer licenses from nonresident big game combination licenses. Amendment effective April 22, 1997, and terminates October 1, 2001.

1997 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 355, L. 1997, provided: "This bill establishes the authority of the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to modify, by rule, the structure of nonresident elk and deer licenses within the general framework established by law as needed for the effective management of big game animals. It is the intent of the legislature that in its initial rulemaking process, the commission utilize an advisory committee, including representatives of hunting and fishing organizations, outfitters, and landowners, to make recommendations regarding the structure of nonresident hunting licenses as authorized by this bill. It is also the intent of the legislature that commission rules not authorize more nonresident elk and deer hunters than are prescribed by current law."

1995 Amendment: Chapter 267 inserted (3) authorizing Commission to adopt rules.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 267, L. 1995, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana has a long and cherished hunting tradition; and

WHEREAS, as with other traditions Montana's hunting heritage will persevere through its passage from one generation to the next; and

WHEREAS, it is fitting that the Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission, as the regulating body for state hunting regulations, be granted the specific authority to encourage this hunting heritage for Montana's youth through the establishment of special youth licenses or permits, seasons, conditions, or programs."

1991 Amendment: Inserted (2) giving Commission authority to adopt rules regarding use of archery equipment for hunting and fishing.

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 22, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because 87-1-301(2) grants to the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] the authority to adopt rules regarding the use and type of archery equipment that may be employed for hunting and fishing purposes. It is intended that this authority be permissive rather than mandatory in order to allow but not require the commission to address any need for restrictions or limitations on archery equipment, with adequate opportunity for public hearing and comment. The legislature is aware that this rulemaking power is expressed in broad and general language; however, this is necessary because bow hunting technology is an emerging field for which detailed and precise standards have not yet been fully developed. The legislature recognizes that the commission has the power to determine the extent and nature of hunting and fishing privileges and that the commission's expertise makes it the proper forum for addressing the need for archery equipment regulation."

Seasonal Rules Adopted Annually: Section 2-4-102 excludes from the Montana Administrative Procedure Act seasonal rules adopted annually relating to hunting, fishing, and trapping if the rules are published in accordance with statutory requirements. Section 87-1-202 sets out those requirements. Although the rules do not appear in the Administrative Register of Montana, they are published and copies are available in state and regional offices of the Department.

Case Notes

Closure to Nontribal Member of Big Game Hunting on Indian Reservation Permissible Exercise of Authority of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission: It is not necessary that state fish and game laws specifically mention Indian hunting rights in order for the Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission to have proper authority to promulgate a regulation that recognizes those rights under state law, nor is it necessary that the Commission be directed by legislative intent, studies, or committee minutes specific to the issue in order to recognize Indian hunting rights. In promulgating hunting regulations, the Commission must take 87-1-228 into account, which explicitly recognizes tribal hunting rights on the Flathead Indian Reservation, as well as federal court decisions regarding the issue of jurisdiction to regulate hunting on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Thus, the Commission properly exercised its authority in prohibiting hunting by nontribal members on reservations. Here, Shook, who was not a tribal member, was convicted of killing a whitetail buck on private property on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Shook's conviction did not conflict with 87-1-305. Further, 18 U.S.C. 1165, which gives tribes exclusive jurisdiction to regulate hunting on reservations, did not apply to Shook because the violation was charged under state rather than federal law. St. v. Shook, 2002 MT 347, 313 M 347, 61 P3d 863 (2002). See also State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754 (1985), and Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. St., 750 F. Supp. 446 (1990).

Summary of Holdings in Litigation Over Hunting and Fishing Rights on Crow Indian Reservation: "The explicit holdings of the Supreme Court in Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. 544, 101 S.Ct. 1245, 67 L.Ed.2d 493 (1981), and of the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in United States v. State of Montana, 604 F.2d 1162 (9th Cir. 1979), to the extent not reversed by the Supreme Court, are as follows:

1. The Crow Tribe can proscribe all hunting and fishing by non-members on those lands described in 18 U.S.C. § 1165. Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254.

2. The Crow Tribe, within 18 U.S.C. § 1165 lands, has power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members of the tribe (whether Indian or non-Indian) subject to the following conditions:

- (a) That the Crow Tribe lacks the power to impose criminal sanctions on non-Indians who violate its hunting and fishing regulations,

- (b) That the exercise by the Crow Tribe of its power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-Indians must be within the constraints recognized by this court in Quechan Tribe of Indians v. Rowe, 531 F.2d 408 (9th Cir. 1976). Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254; United States v. Montana, 604 F.2d at 1165, 1170.

3. The title to the bed and banks of the Big Horn is in the State of Montana. 450 U.S. at 556-57, 101 S.Ct. at 1253-54.

4. The Crow Tribe has no power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members on non-member owned fee patent land located within the exterior boundaries of the Crow Reservation. Id. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254.

5. The State of Montana cannot regulate hunting and fishing by members of the Crow Tribe within 18 U.S.C. § 1165 lands. 604 F.2d at 1172.

6. The State of Montana has the power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members of the Crow Tribe within the exterior boundaries of the Crow Reservation subject to the following limitations:

- (a) That such regulations of the State of Montana not regulate indirectly the hunting and fishing by members of the Crow Tribe on 18 U.S.C. § 1165 lands.

- (b) That such regulations of the State of Montana must have as their purpose the conservation and proper management of game and fish and not to discriminate against, nor to impede, authorized regulation by the Crow Tribe. Id. at 1166.

7. Such rights as the State of Montana has to regulate fishing on the Big Horn River by the Crows and all others are not limited by either (a) the treaties of 1851 and 1868 (except to such extent as these treaties might acknowledge pertinent aboriginal title rights of the Crow Tribe not heretofore asserted or recognized in this litigation) or (b) the inherent sovereignty of the Crow Tribe. 604 F.2d at 1170-71." (Quoting from U.S. v. Mont., 686 F.2d 766 (9th Cir. 1982), at pp. 768-769.)

Tribal Regulation of Flathead Lake Usage: Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation have authority to regulate federal common-law riparian rights of non-Indians who own reservation land bordering the south half of Flathead Lake. The Circuit Court held that the decision in Mont. v. U.S., 450 US 544, 67 L Ed 2d 493, 101 S Ct 1245 (1981), regarding ownership and control of the Bighorn River, was not controlling. The decision in Mont. Power Co. v. Rochester, 127 F2d 189 (9th Cir. 1942), was given deference under the principle of stare decisis. Rochester held that the United States holds title to the bed and banks of the south half of Flathead Lake in trust for the tribes. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation v. Namen, 665 F2d 951 (9th Cir. 1982), followed in In re Estate of Hobbs, 2002 MT 85, 309 M 308, 46 P3d 594 (2002).

2013 Amendment: Chapter 235 in (1) near beginning inserted "23-1-111"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2013.

Saving Clause: Section 40, Ch. 235, L. 2013, was a saving clause.

2011 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 254 in (1) at beginning of first sentence inserted "Except as provided in subsection (3)"; inserted (3) regarding domestic livestock trailing; inserted (4) defining terms; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 21, 2011.

Chapter 370 in (1) and (2) at beginning inserted "Except as provided in 87-1-301(7)"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2011.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 254, L. 2011, provided: "WHEREAS, the Montana Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks (MDFWP) is considering whether to deem and classify domestic livestock trailing as a commercial use that is subject to licensing or permitting by the department, the payment of a licensing or permitting fee, and an environmental review under the Montana Environmental Policy Act; and

WHEREAS, MDFWP has adopted administrative rules governing the commercial use of lands under the control, administration, and jurisdiction of the department; and

WHEREAS, livestock grazing, farming, haying, fencing, and timber harvest have been exempted from those rules; and

WHEREAS, given those exemptions for farming and ranching activities, the Legislature believes that domestic livestock trailing should also be exempt; and

WHEREAS, domestic livestock trailing is a necessary component of ranching and farming in Montana; and

WHEREAS, in order to sustain Montana's valuable farm and ranching economy and land bases associated with that economy, farmers and ranchers must be encouraged and have the right to engage in activities that allow them to remain in farming and ranching; and

WHEREAS, MDFWP's attempt to classify domestic livestock trailing as a commercial use and to subject trailing activities to environmental review interferes with the Legislature's directive under Article XII, section 1, of the Montana Constitution to enact laws that protect, enhance, and develop all agriculture; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature has a strong interest in protecting the health of Montana's agriculture industry."

Severability: Section 3, Ch. 254, L. 2011, was a severability clause.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 569 in (2) in second sentence after “public safety” inserted “public welfare”, after “property” inserted “and public resources”, and after “motor-driven boats” inserted “the operation of personal watercraft, the resolution of conflicts between users of motorized and nonmotorized boats”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective June 1, 1999.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 569, L. 1999, provided: “WHEREAS, Montana waters will experience a great increase in traffic by recreationists celebrating the bicentennial of the Lewis and Clark expedition and retracing the routes of the famous explorers; and

WHEREAS, the increased recreational use of Montana waters by every manner of recreationist, motorized as well as nonmotorized users, has led to a corresponding increase in conflicts between river users; and

WHEREAS, in other states, conflicts between recreational users of waters have escalated to the point of violence and even deaths of recreationists; and

WHEREAS, the use of personal watercraft has grown immensely in Montana, and the irresponsible use of personal watercraft conflicts with the ability of lakeshore cabin owners and homeowners to enjoy their pursuit of happiness through peaceful relaxation; and

WHEREAS, it is in the interests of public health, safety, welfare, and protection of property that measures be taken in Montana to reduce potential conflicts between recreational users of Montana waters before this state experiences similar problems.”

1995 Amendments: Chapter 418 near end of (2) substituted “department of public health” for “department of health and environmental sciences”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Chapter 546 near end of (2) substituted “department of public health and human services” for “department of health and environmental sciences”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: “The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act].”

Section 571, Ch. 546, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

Seasonal Rules Adopted Annually: Section 2-4-102 excludes from the Montana Administrative Procedure Act seasonal rules adopted annually relating to hunting, fishing, and trapping if the rules are published in accordance with statutory requirements. Section 87-1-202 sets out those requirements. Although the rules do not appear in the Administrative Register of Montana, they are published and copies are available in state and regional offices of the Department.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 3 in (4) at beginning of third sentence substituted "The commission" for "It later"; in (6) in two places increased the age that juveniles may be allowed to fish in certain designated waters from under 13 years to under 15 years; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective February 7, 2001.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 589 in (1) substituted second sentence concerning restricted areas, species, and types of hunting for former second and third sentences that read: "It may declare areas open to deer or elk or both deer and elk hunting where only bow and arrow or shotguns or both may be used to hunt or kill deer or elk. In areas where deer or elk or both deer and elk hunting is open to the use of shotguns, the commission shall authorize the use of muzzleloaders with restrictions as necessary for safety"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 29, 1993.

1987 Amendment: At beginning of second sentence of (1), after "deer", substituted "or elk or both deer and elk hunting where only bow and arrow or shotguns or both" for "hunting where shotguns only", at end of sentence, after "deer", inserted "or elk", at beginning of third sentence, after "deer", inserted "or elk or both deer and elk", after "shotguns" deleted "only", after "commission" changed "may" to "shall", and at end of sentence, after "muzzleloaders", substituted "with restrictions as necessary for safety" for "(rifled or smoothbore)".

1985 Amendment: In (1) inserted third sentence concerning muzzleloaders.

Case Notes

Violation of Open Meeting Laws — Attorney Fees Awarded — Prevailing Party Despite No Final Judgment: The plaintiffs sued the Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission for not providing adequate notice of a meeting at which the Commission voted to expedite the closing of the wolf hunting season. The District Court granted a temporary restraining order and ultimately awarded attorney fees. During litigation, the Legislature enacted a law prohibiting the Commission from implementing certain hunting closures, rendering the litigation moot. On appeal, the Commission argued that attorney fees were not appropriate because a final judgment was never issued. The Supreme Court disagreed, holding that the plaintiffs were a prevailing party because the preliminary injunction produced the same result as a final judgment and there was no remaining underlying controversy to litigate. Citizens for Balanced Use v. Fish, Wildlife & Parks Comm'n, 2014 MT 214, 376 Mont. 202, 331 P.3d 844.

Closure to Nontribal Member of Big Game Hunting on Indian Reservation Not Violative of Equal Protection Guarantee: Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission regulations limited hunting on Indian reservations to tribal members only. Shook, who was not a tribal member, killed a whitetail buck on private property on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Shook did not own the property, nor was the property owned by a tribal member. Shook was convicted of hunting in a closed area and appealed on grounds that the closure was an unconstitutional violation of equal protection because it distinguished between tribal and nontribal members on the basis of race. The state and tribes countered that laws that distinguish between persons based on tribal membership have long been held constitutional because the distinction is political rather than racial. The District Court agreed with the state and the tribes, and the Supreme Court affirmed. As set out in Morton v. Mancari, 417 US 535 (1974), laws that afford special treatment for Indians are constitutional as long as those laws can be rationally tied to the fulfillment of the unique federal obligation toward Indians. Federal Indian law is binding on the state; therefore, the state constitutional equal protection guarantee must allow for state classifications based on tribal membership if those classifications can be rationally tied to the governmental obligation toward Indians. The state has a duty to regulate hunting by nontribal members in a way that recognizes Indian hunting privileges protected by federal law; thus, the regulation was an entirely rational way for the state to fulfill that duty by preserving wildlife populations for hunting by Indians and was not violative of equal protection guarantees. St. v. Shook, 2002 MT 347, 313 M 347, 61 P3d 863 (2002).

Closure to Nontribal Member of Big Game Hunting on Indian Reservation Permissible Exercise of Authority of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission: It is not necessary that state fish and game laws specifically mention Indian hunting rights in order for the Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission to have proper authority to promulgate a regulation that recognizes those rights under state law, nor is it necessary that the Commission be directed by legislative intent, studies, or committee minutes specific to the issue in order to recognize Indian hunting rights. In promulgating hunting regulations, the Commission must take 87-1-228 into account, which explicitly recognizes tribal hunting rights on the Flathead Indian Reservation, as well as federal court decisions regarding the issue of jurisdiction to regulate hunting on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Thus, the Commission properly exercised its authority in prohibiting hunting by nontribal members on reservations. Here, Shook, who was not a tribal member, was convicted of killing a whitetail buck on private property on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Shook's conviction did not conflict with 87-1-305. Further, 18 U.S.C. 1165, which gives tribes exclusive jurisdiction to regulate hunting on reservations, did not apply to Shook because the violation was charged under state rather than federal law. St. v. Shook, 2002 MT 347, 313 M 347, 61 P3d 863 (2002). See also State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754 (1985), and Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. St., 750 F. Supp. 446 (1990).

Drawing for Licenses: The literal language of section 26-104(15), R.C.M. 1947 (repealed in 1973), did not require that the application process to receive a permit to hunt elk be fulfilled by one personally present at the drawing; rather it merely required that the drawing be held at a particular town. State ex rel. Jones v. District Court, 158 M 67, 488 P2d 1141 (1971).

Seasons on Indian Reservation: Conviction of non-Indian for killing two bull elk on Crow Indian Reservation during season closed by state fish and game laws was not in conflict with act of Congress providing penalty for trespass to possessory rights of reservation Indians or in conflict with The Enabling Act providing that Indian lands shall remain under the absolute jurisdiction and control of Congress of United States. State ex rel. Nepstad v. Danielson, 149 M 438, 427 P2d 689 (1967), followed in U.S. v. Sanford, 547 F2d 1089 (9th Cir. 1976).

Commission Empowered to Lengthen Hunting Season: A temporary order restraining the State Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission) from putting into effect its order lengthening the hunting season on elk in a certain locality, thus modifying the law on fixing of seasons, was improper since under section 26-104, R.C.M. 1947, declaring prior to amendment that the statutes governing "such subjects" should continue in force and effect except as altered or modified by the rules and regulations of the Commission, the Legislature so empowered the Commission, amounting to modification of existing statutes. State ex rel. Fish & Game Comm'n v. District Court, 107 M 289, 84 P2d 798 (1938).

District Court Bound by Factual Findings of Board of Personnel Appeals — Wrongful Discharge — Reinstatement — No Backpay: An employee of the state was discharged from employment because he used a state-owned vehicle for private purposes. He appealed the decision of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, and the Board of Personnel Appeals ruled that though his discharge was properly justified, the Department had never adopted a policy regarding such use of vehicles and had not punished similar usage; thus, the discharge was wrongful and he was entitled to reinstatement. He was offered a substantially equivalent position but appealed the Board's denial of backpay and benefits and, upon losing the District Court appeal, pursued the issues before the Supreme Court. The court upheld the District Court on all issues, observing that both courts were bound by factual findings of the Board and stipulations by the parties. The District Court was not obligated to hold a hearing on the facts. Hutchin v. St., 213 M 15, 688 P2d 1257, 41 St. Rep. 1916 (1984).

Removal of Employee:

Under this section's former language, the State Fish and Game Director has the power of summary removal without prior charges, notice, or hearing. However, that power is subject to review and final action by the Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission) if the employee demanded a hearing. *State ex rel. Ford v. Under former language, this section did not require that the Director hold a hearing before discharging an employee for cause but merely required that the employee have an opportunity for hearing before the Commission. State ex rel. Hollibaugh v. St. Fish & Game Comm'n, 139 M 384, 365 P2d 942 (1961).

Authority of Game Warden to Approach Boat to Promote Safety — Particularized Suspicion Unnecessary: Initially concerned for the safety of the occupants of a seemingly unoccupied watercraft, a game warden looked into the live well of Boyer's boat and in the process found unlawfully killed game fish. Boyer contended that the warden had initiated an investigatory stop without the requisite particularized suspicion of wrongdoing, as required in 46-5-401, and that the evidence was therefore unlawfully seized. The Supreme Court disagreed. The warden was acting within his express authority to enforce outdoor recreation laws, including the safety of persons and property connected with the use of watercraft, and thus the warden's approach of Boyer's boat was lawful. *St. v. Case Notes

Game Warden May Reasonably Request Production of Hunting or Fishing License — Particularized Suspicion of Criminal Activity Inapplicable: Initially concerned for the safety of the occupants of a seemingly unoccupied watercraft, a game warden was assured of Boyer's safety, but when Boyer told the warden that he had been fishing, the warden asked to see Boyer's fishing license. Boyer contended that the warden needed a particularized suspicion of wrongdoing to effectuate detention and the request for the license. However, under 87-2-109 (now repealed, but see 87-6-304), it is unlawful to refuse to show one's fishing license upon demand, and the warden had authority under this section to request production of the license. In light of these provisions, the Supreme Court declined to imply a particularized suspicion into the statutes, holding that a game warden may request production of a hunting or fishing license when circumstances reasonably indicate that an individual has been engaged in those activities. St. v. Boyer, 2002 MT 33, 308 M 276, 42 P3d 771 (2002).

Particularized Suspicion of Wrongdoing Not Required for Game Warden to Step on Boat Transom in Effort to Inspect Angler's Catch When Reasonable Suspicion Exists for Investigatory Stop: Initially concerned for the safety of the occupants of a seemingly unoccupied watercraft, a game warden discovered that Boyer was fishing and asked to see Boyer's license and catch. Boyer produced several fish, and the warden requested to see what else was in Boyer's live well. Boyer suggested that the warden could look later when Boyer came to shore, but the warden declined, and after tethering the boats together, the warden stepped onto the transom of Boyer's boat to look into the open live well, and found several unlawfully killed game fish. Boyer suggested that the warden's act of stepping onto the boat transom constituted an illegal search in violation of Boyer's reasonable expectation of privacy. The Supreme Court disagreed. Boyer had no legitimate expectation of privacy in the rear platform of his boat, and the act of stepping on the transom—an exterior platform readily accessible to the public—did not constitute a search. The nature of the intrusion was so minimal as not to violate any privacy expectation that Boyer might have had. Whether or not probable cause existed at that point was irrelevant, because Boyer's behavior gave the warden a reasonable suspicion that an offense had occurred, and it is the presence of reasonable suspicion that allowed the warden to proceed with the investigative stop. St. v. Boyer, 2002 MT 33, 308 M 276, 42 P3d 771 (2002), distinguishing St. v. Elison, 2000 MT 288, 302 M 228, 14 P3d 456 (2000).

Consent to Improper Tagging: Any consent given by Game Warden to illegal tagging of killed elk would be outside scope of authority and would have no effect whatever in law. State ex rel. Visser v. St. Fish & Game Comm'n, 150 M 525, 437 P2d 373 (1968).

Unlawful Possession — Search and Seizure: When plaintiff lawfully killed a deer but failed to fill out the tag attached to his hunting license and attach it to the carcass, the deer was not unlawfully possessed and the Game Warden was without authority to seize and confiscate the carcass when he arrested plaintiff for failure to attach the tag. Shipman v. Todd, 131 M 365, 310 P2d 300 (1957).

2009 Amendment: Chapter 429 inserted (1)(i) allowing a warden to enforce certain provisions of Title 80, chapter 7, part 10; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2009.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 429, L. 2009, provided: "WHEREAS, invasive species can wreak damage on the economy, environment, recreational opportunities, and human health; and

WHEREAS, aquatic invasive species, including Eurasian watermilfoil, the quagga mussel, and the zebra mussel, pose new and imminent threats, which if left unchecked could cost millions of dollars not only in damage to Montana waterways, rivers, and lakes, to water storage, delivery, and irrigation systems, to hydroelectric power structures and systems, and to aquatic ecosystems, but also to the entire state economy; and

WHEREAS, the enormous impact caused by the zebra mussel is clearly demonstrated in the eastern United States where the species was first observed in Lake Ontario in 1988 and spread to Lake Michigan and the Finger Lakes Region in New York State by the following year; and

WHEREAS, the United States Geological Survey estimates that $5 billion has been spent thus far in the Great Lakes Basin alone for damages caused by and control efforts for the zebra mussel; and

WHEREAS, the zebra mussel was first discovered in Lake Mead in January 2007 and has now spread to Lakes Mojave and Havasu and the Colorado River, impacting the states of Arizona, Nevada, and California, as well as to Pueblo Reservoir in Colorado, San Justo Reservoir in California, and Electric Lake in Utah; and

WHEREAS, Eurasian watermilfoil, the zebra mussel, and the quagga mussel are easily carried on vessels used in infested water and then transported to another body of water if the vessel has not been properly cleaned; and

WHEREAS, Eurasian watermilfoil is already present in Montana and unless Montana takes action now to prevent the infestation of its waters with the zebra mussel and quagga mussel it is only a matter of time before their introduction in this state occurs; and

WHEREAS, the most cost-effective way of dealing with an aquatic invasive species is preventing an infestation from occurring."

Severability: Section 19, Ch. 429, L. 2009, was a severability clause.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 523 inserted (2) requiring donation of seized game animals to the food bank network or to public or charitable institutions; and made minor changes in style.

1991 Amendment: Inserted (8) concerning wardens' authority for violations involving outfitters and guides. Amendment effective April 4, 1991.

Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 336, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, under the provisions of section 37-47-306, MCA, fees collected by the Board of Outfitters may be used for investigation of license applicants, administrative costs, and enforcement of statutes and rules related to outfitters and guides; and

WHEREAS, wardens of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks have authority under section 37-47-345, MCA, to enforce violations of Title 37, chapter 47, MCA, relating to outfitters and guides, and this authority should be clearly provided in Title 87, MCA; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature intends that costs to the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks related to enforcement of Title 37, chapter 47, MCA, by wardens of the Department be funded from the fees that are collected by the Board of Outfitters and transferred to the Department through memorandums of understanding or other agreements."

1983 Amendment: Inserted (7) relating to enforcement of disorderly conduct and public nuisance laws as applied to motorboat use.

Case Notes

Seized Evidence Not Considered "Other Evidence of a Crime" Not Subject to Suppression: Cotterell moved to suppress evidence of illegal hunting activity that was seized under a search warrant that allowed seizure of numerous hunting-related items, but also allowed seizure of "any other evidence of a crime", on grounds that the warrant was overbroad. The motion was denied. On appeal, the state conceded that the phrase "any other evidence of a crime" was overbroad (see St. v. Seader, 1999 MT 290, 297 M 60, 990 P2d 180 (1999), and Hauge v. District Court, 2001 MT 255, 307 M 195, 36 P3d 947 (2001)) but asserted that journals and calendars found in searching Cotterell's property were directly related to the crimes being investigated and thus were not subject to suppression. The Supreme Court agreed with the state. Although the journals and calendars were not specifically mentioned in the warrant, they were found during execution of a validly executed warrant in places that could lawfully be searched, were found in the course of a search for items that were specifically set out in the warrant, and were related to hunting and fishing activities. Even if the overbroad phrase was excised from the warrant, the journals and calendars were within the scope of the warrant, so denial of the motion to suppress was affirmed. St. v. Cotterell, 2008 MT 409, 347 M 231, 198 P3d 254 (2008).

No Reasonable Expectation of Privacy in Possession of Game Fish — Probable Cause Not Required for Game Warden's Inspection of Angler's Concealed Catch: Initially concerned for the safety of the occupants of a seemingly unoccupied watercraft, a game warden approached the watercraft. When informed that Boyer had been fishing, the warden asked to see Boyer's license and catch. After Boyer requested a later inspection, he reluctantly exhibited eight fish. At that point, the warden looked into the live well of Boyer's boat, and in the process found unlawfully killed game fish. Boyer contended that the warden needed probable cause to believe that Boyer had committed a violation at the time that the request was made in order to inspect his catch, and that conducting a warrantless search of Boyer's live well was impermissible. The Supreme Court noted that under the Montana Constitution, an impermissible search occurs only when a reasonable expectation of privacy exists. To determine whether the warden unlawfully intruded into Boyer's privacy, the court considered: (1) whether Boyer had an actual expectation of privacy; (2) whether society was willing to recognize that expectation as objectively reasonable; and (3) the nature of the state's intrusion (see St. v. Bassett, 1999 MT 109, 294 M 327, 982 P2d 410 (1999)). The court concluded that Boyer's subjective expectation of privacy in his catch was not one that society would recognize as reasonable. Under Art. IX, sec. 1, Mont. Const., the state must maintain a clean and healthful environment, and the Legislature has provided for game wardens to enforce the environmental laws regarding fish and game by implementing a system that includes the ability of wardens to inspect game in the field, which encompasses proper licensing and game limitation requirements. In this capacity, wardens act as public trustees protecting and conserving Montana wildlife and habitat for all citizens. Fishing is a privilege accorded by the state, not a private right, and anglers must assume the burdens of the sport, as well as its benefits, and acknowledge the prospect of at least some governmental intrusion into their activities, including license checks, inquiries about game taken, and requests to inspect game in the field. Because Boyer had no reasonable expectation of privacy in his catch, the warden's request for and inspection of the catch was not considered a search, so probable cause was not necessary. St. v. Boyer, 2002 MT 33, 308 M 276, 42 P3d 771 (2002).

Forfeiture of Game Properly Applied in Case of Waste of Mountain Goat: Defendant was convicted of wasting game contrary to the provisions of 87-3-102 (now repealed, but see 87-6-205). He contended that it was improper to impose a penalty of forfeiture of the head, cape, and horns of the mountain goat he killed legally. Having failed to comply with the requirement that he not waste the meat, defendant was subject to the game warden's authority under this section to seize any parts of the animal. Imposition of forfeiture was not contrary to law. St. v. Huebner, 252 M 184, 827 P2d 1260, 49 St. Rep. 210 (1992).

Confiscation of Illegally Killed Game: Illegally killed elk, tagged improperly in that one tag was not punched on month and day of kill and other was not filled in with name and address of hunter and county of kill, were subject to confiscation by State Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission). State ex rel. Visser v. St. Fish & Game Comm'n, 150 M 525, 437 P2d 373 (1968).

"WHEREAS, the gray wolf was listed as an endangered species under the Endangered Species Act (ESA) in 1973; and

WHEREAS, gray wolves were reintroduced in Yellowstone National Park and central Idaho in 1995 and 1996 by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS) to speed up recovery of the gray wolf population in the Northern Rocky Mountain region; and

WHEREAS, the biological requirement established by the USFWS for the recovery of the gray wolf population in the Northern Rocky Mountains is a minimum of 30 breeding pairs and 300 wolves in Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming combined or effectively 10 breeding pairs and 100 wolves per state; and

WHEREAS, the USFWS approved the Montana Gray Wolf Conservation and Management Plan in January 2004, under which Montana agreed to use adaptive management strategies to ensure its portion of the biological recovery goal is met; and

WHEREAS, the gray wolf population in Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming achieved the biological requirements of 30 breeding pairs and 300 wolves in 2002; and

WHEREAS, the most recent data available show that at the end of 2009, the estimated minimum number of wolves in Montana was 524 wolves with an estimated minimum of 37 breeding pairs in Montana; and

WHEREAS, the final environmental impact statement prepared by the Montana Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks (MDFWP) for the Montana Gray Wolf Conservation and Management Plan, submitted to the USFWS in October 2003, estimated that MDFWP's required budget for the wolf management alternative that was ultimately selected would be $924,739 to $1,062,399, of which 90% would be provided by the federal government under Section 6 of the ESA and 10% would be the responsibility of Montana; and

WHEREAS, the 90%-10% cost share was never implemented because the USFWS allocated funding directly to MDFWP rather than it being necessary for MDFWP to request funding under Section 6 of the ESA; and

WHEREAS, the USFWS allocated an average of $573,000 annually to Montana for wolf management under a 5-year contract that expired June 30, 2010; and

WHEREAS, that annual allocation was far below the estimate included in the final environmental impact statement; and

WHEREAS, under MDFWP's new contract for July 1, 2010, through June 30, 2015, the USFWS allocates only $626,000 to Montana for the entire 5-year period."

CHAPTER 2

FISHING, HUNTING, AND TRAPPING LICENSES

Chapter Case Notes

Application of Federal Lacey Act to Outfitting and Guiding — Statute of Limitations on Charges of Conspiracy: While a prosecution under the federal Lacey Act, 16 U.S.C. 3371, et seq., which prohibits transportation or acquisition in interstate commerce of wildlife in violation of state laws, may not properly be had for the substantive acts of selling guiding services and hunting permits, a prosecution can be maintained for conspiracies to violate the Act while providing outfitting and guiding services, such as arranging for out-of-state hunters to use elk licenses and permits belonging to other hunters, knowing that any elk taken would be transported out of state. The Act applied when evidence was sufficient to establish the involvement of defendant, a hunting guide and outfitter, in a conspiracy to transport elk in interstate commerce in violation of Montana law. Further, the 5-year "catchall" statute of limitations set out in 18 U.S.C. 3282 applied to charges of conspiring to violate the Act. U.S. v. Thomas, 887 F2d 1341 (9th Cir. 1989), distinguishing U.S. v. Stenberg, 803 F2d 422 (9th Cir. 1986).

Illegal Sale of Special Season Elk Tag Not an Offer to Sell Wildlife Prohibited by Federal Law: The alleged sale of a special season elk tag in violation of 87-2-110 (now repealed, but see 87-6-304) did not constitute an illegal sale or offer to sell wildlife under the federal Lacey Act (16 U.S.C. 3372, 3373). U.S. v. Stenberg, 803 F2d 422 (9th Cir. 1986).

Constitutionality: The disparity in the treatment of residents and nonresidents under 87-2-505 is not an unconstitutional discrimination because it infringes upon no fundamental rights and therefore does not violate the due process or equal protection clauses; nor is the right to hunt for sport a privilege or immunity of citizens of the several states that Montana is required to grant equally to residents and nonresidents under Art. IV, sec. 2, U.S. Const. Mont. Outfitters Action Group v. Fish & Game Comm'n, 417 F. Supp. 1005 (D.C. Mont. 1976), affirmed in Baldwin v. Fish & Game Comm'n, 436 US 371, 56 L Ed 2d 354, 98 S Ct 1852 (1978).

Tagging Game Killed by Another: Tagging of game animal that someone else has killed or so far brought under control that one can walk up to it and cut its throat is not method of acquiring ownership contemplated by statute authorizing licensed hunter to pursue, hunt, shoot, and kill game animal and then to possess carcass with result that person tagging illegally killed elk is not entitled to possession. State ex rel. Visser v. St. Fish & Game Comm'n, 150 M 525, 437 P2d 373 (1968).

Part 1 General Provisions

87-2-101. Definitions.

Compiler's Comments

2015 Amendment: Chapter 105 in definition of angling in two places, in definition of hunt in three places, and in definition of trap in two places inserted references to harvesting; in definition of hunt in first sentence near beginning and in middle inserted reference to taking wildlife; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2015.

2011 Amendments — Composite Section — Coordination: Chapter 19 in definitions of closed season (rendered void by Ch. 258) and open season substituted “game birds, game fish, game animals, and fur-bearing animals” for “game birds, fish, and game and fur-bearing animals”; in definition of game fish substituted “genus Sander” for “genus stizostedion”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2011.

Chapter 258 in introductory clause near beginning after “As used in” deleted “87-1-102”; deleted former definition that read: ““Closed season” means the time during which game birds, fish, and game and fur-bearing animals may not be lawfully taken”; deleted former definition that read: ““Commission” means the state fish, wildlife, and parks commission”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2011.

The amendment to this section made by sec. 2, Ch. 134, L. 2011, was rendered void by sec. 122, Ch. 258, L. 2011, a coordination section.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 258, L. 2011, provided: “WHEREAS, the 2007 Legislature passed House Joint Resolution No. 16, urging that revision of the criminal codes within Title 87 of the Montana Code Annotated be given priority; and

WHEREAS, House Joint Resolution No. 16 noted that practitioners, judges, and citizens find that the criminal codes intertwined within the fish and game laws in Title 87 are difficult to read, understand, and prosecute; and

WHEREAS, House Joint Resolution No. 16 directed that revision of the Title 87 criminal code should not include policy changes to current laws and should adhere to the intent of the legislatures that crafted the laws; and

WHEREAS, in 2008, the Director of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks appointed a Title 87 criminal code revision working group, consisting of Justices of the Peace, County Attorneys, an Assistant Attorney General, legal counsel and the enforcement administrator of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, and legislative staff; and

WHEREAS, the working group met numerous times and spent countless hours crafting a revision that makes the Title 87 criminal code more understandable without making substantive or policy changes to present law; and

WHEREAS, revision of the fish and game criminal statutes will benefit the hunting and fishing public, magistrates, and prosecutors by codifying crimes and penalties in a separate chapter of Montana law, rather than being intertwined throughout Title 87.”

Saving Clause: Section 5, Ch. 134, L. 2011, was a saving clause.

Section 131, Ch. 258, L. 2011, was a saving clause.

2003 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 84 in definition of game fish inserted “the species perca flavescens (yellow perch); all species of the genus pomoxis (crappie)”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 20, 2003.

Chapter 499 in definition of migratory game birds at end deleted “however, the open season on mourning doves is restricted to the open season on upland game birds as defined in subsection (15)”; in definition of upland game birds deleted “quail” and before “pheasant” inserted “ring-necked”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2003.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 417 in introductory clause inserted “and 87-1-102”; substituted definition of angling for former definition that read: ““Angling” or “fishing” means the taking of or attempting to take fish by hook and single line or single rod, in hand or within immediate control"; inserted definitions of bait, hunt, and trap; adjusted internal references; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Severability: Section 37, Ch. 417, L. 1995, was a severability clause.

1991 Name Change: Section 2, Ch. 28, L. 1991, directed the Code Commissioner to change the name of the Fish and Game Commission to the Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission wherever the name appears in the MCA. Accordingly, the name was changed in this section as directed.

1985 Amendment: In (5) at end, after "bear", inserted "and wild buffalo".

1983 Amendment: In (7), inserted last clause relating to mourning doves and open season on mourning doves.

Administrative Action Required: Section 2, Ch. 46, L. 1979, provided: "It is the intent of this legislature that the department of fish and game take the necessary administrative action to remove lynx, northern swift fox, and wolverine from the listing of nongame species in need of management."

Severability: Section 19, Ch. 478, L. 1979, was a severability clause.

Composite Section: This section was amended by Ch. 44, Ch. 46, and Ch. 478, L. 1979, and a composite was prepared by the Code Commissioner, 1979. Chapter 478 added "Canada lynx" to the definition of "fur-bearing animals" in subsection (4), and Ch. 46 added "lynx" to that definition. The Ch. 46 language was chosen because it is more general and incorporates the additions intended by both Ch. 478 and Ch. 46.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 60 inserted (1)(b) pertaining to residency status of a Montana resident with respect to a hunting, fishing, or trapping license if the resident is a member of the armed forces and obtains a resident hunting, fishing, or trapping license in another state; in (2) before "hunting" inserted "resident"; in (2)(d) at beginning inserted exception clause; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 16, 2001.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 499 in (1)(b) substituted "proof of completion of a hunter safety course approved by the department" for "proof of competency". Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

Saving Clause: Section 10, Ch. 499, L. 1999, was a saving clause.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 187 in (1)(b), near middle of first sentence before "of competency", substituted "proof" for "a certificate"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1998.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 417 in (1)(b), near beginning after "currently", inserted "stationed in and", inserted third sentence concerning reassignment, and inserted fourth sentence concerning designation in armed forces record; deleted former (2) that read: "(2) A person who has been a resident of the state of Montana for a period of 6 months immediately prior to making application for a license is eligible to receive a resident hunting, fishing, or trapping license. A person is considered a resident if the person meets the following criteria"; inserted (2) concerning primary home or abode for 180 consecutive days; inserted (3) requiring continuing residence for 120 days a year; inserted (4) concerning additional criteria; substituted (4)(a) concerning primary home for former text that read: "the person lives in Montana or has a fixed intent to return to this state when the person leaves it"; in (4)(d), near beginning, substituted "possess or apply for" for "use", after "trapping" inserted "licenses from another state or country or exercise resident hunting, fishing, or trapping", and at end deleted "during the time the resident Montana license is valid"; inserted (5) concerning students; inserted (9) concerning disqualifying factors for residency; inserted (10) providing that license agent is not a representative of state; adjusted internal references; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1993 Amendments: Chapter 219 in (1)(b), at end of first sentence, inserted reference to certificate of competency or other certificate. Amendment effective March 1, 1994.

Chapter 589 substituted (1) concerning determination of residency for member of armed forces or a dependent for former text that read: "Members of the regular armed forces of the United States or members of the armed forces of foreign governments attached to the armed forces of the United States who are assigned to active duty in Montana and their dependents, as defined in 15-30-113, who reside in their Montana household with them, after a period of 30 days within Montana, upon presenting assignment orders emanating from the proper unit commander, are considered residents for the purpose of this chapter. The 30-day residence requirement is waived in time of war"; substituted (5) concerning residency of an unmarried minor for former text that read: "An unmarried minor whose parents, legal guardian, or custodial parent is a resident for purposes of this section is also considered a resident for purposes of this section"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 29, 1993.

1991 Amendment: In (1), near beginning of first sentence before "armed forces", inserted "regular", near middle, before "duty", inserted "active", and after "dependents" inserted reference to 15-30-113; in (2), near beginning of first sentence after "Montana", deleted "as defined in 1-1-215" and inserted (2)(a) through (2)(e) establishing criteria for determining residency; in (4), near beginning after "person", substituted "who does not reside in Montana but who meets" for "meeting"; inserted (5) regarding residency of unmarried minors; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1985 Amendment: Inserted (4) regarding criteria by which a nonresident may be considered a resident for hunting and fishing licensing purposes.

1983 Amendment: In middle of (1), substituted "their dependents who reside in their Montana household with them" for "members of their immediate families".

Case Notes

Residency Requirements for Obtaining Hunting or Fishing License Not Unconstitutionally Vague: Britton was charged in Justice's Court with various hunting license-related crimes, but moved for dismissal on grounds that Montana's residency laws are so vague as to violate due process. The motion was denied. Following conviction, Britton asserted in District Court that this section, defining residency for hunting and fishing license purposes, is vague because other statutes define residency differently for purposes such as voting, dissolution of marriage, college attendance, and taxation. The District Court held that fish and game residency requirements are neither vague nor ambiguous and affirmed the Justice's Court conviction. On appeal, Britton asserted that the various statutory definitions of residency might confuse a person of ordinary intelligence and operate as a trap for the innocent. However, the Supreme Court affirmed, noting that the other statutory residency provisions to which Britton referred clearly provide that those provisions are for specific acts or purposes other than obtaining a hunting license and that it strained credulity to suggest that a person of ordinary intelligence would be confused into thinking that any of those statutes define residency for the purpose of obtaining a hunting license. Britton failed to establish that the residency requirements for obtaining a hunting or fishing license are facially unconstitutional on vagueness grounds. St. v. Britton, 2001 MT 141, 306 M 24, 30 P3d 337 (2001).

False Affirmation of Six-Month Residency Requirement Distinct From Constitutionality of Residency Requirement: Still falsely affirmed on his applications for hunting licenses that he had been a resident of the state for 6 months. The Supreme Court declined to address the constitutionality of the residency requirement imposed by this section because Still violated 87-2-106, a separate statute. The Supreme Court held that if Still wanted to challenge the constitutionality of the residency requirement, he should have filled out the application truthfully and then challenged the subsequent denial of the license. St. v. Still, 273 M 261, 902 P2d 546, 52 St. Rep. 965 (1995).

"Resident" Requirement for Hunting, Fishing, or Trapping License Not Unconstitutionally Vague: After the state filed charges against appellants for making false statements concerning residency in order to obtain hunting licenses, appellants filed an action, claiming that the residency statute is unconstitutionally vague. Upholding the statute, the Supreme Court ruled that the fact that the statute may be difficult to apply does not render it unconstitutionally vague. Monroe v. St., 265 M 1, 873 P2d 230, 51 St. Rep. 327 (1994), followed, as to difficulty in the application insufficient to render the statute unconstitutional, in St. v. Stanko, 1998 MT 323, 292 M 214, 974 P2d 1139, 55 St. Rep. 1313 (1998).

Attorney General's Opinions

Out-of-State Employment as Affecting Eligibility for Resident License: A Montana resident who has resided in state 6 months or more but who is absent from the state by reason of employment prior to application for a resident fish and game license does not lose his residence by being employed out of state and need not reside 6 continuous months after his return to be eligible for a resident license. 27 A.G. Op. 27 (1957). (Annotator's note: See 1995 amendment, which attempted to clarify criteria for residency by a person who has established residency but who may not physically reside in the state more than 120 days a year.)

ARM 12.3.209 Regulations for issuance of fish and game licenses.

Case Notes

No Crime in Assisting Montana Undercover Agent to Obtain Resident License: Ruiz was charged by Montana officers in a fish and game sting operation with assisting an unqualified person in obtaining a resident license. Ruiz moved for a directed verdict, but the motion was denied. One of the officers had posed as a hunter from Iowa, and Ruiz allowed the officer to use Ruiz’s Montana address to obtain a resident license. However, as a Montana resident, the officer was in fact qualified to receive a resident license, so the state did not meet the burden of proving that Ruiz assisted an unqualified person in obtaining a resident license. Ruiz’s directed verdict motion should have been granted, and the case was remanded for entry of an amended judgment dismissing the charge. St. v. Ruiz, 2004 MT 135, 321 M 357, 91 P3d 565 (2004).

Residency Requirements for Obtaining Hunting or Fishing License Not Unconstitutionally Vague: Britton was charged in Justice’s Court with various hunting license-related crimes, but moved for dismissal on grounds that Montana’s residency laws are so vague as to violate due process. The motion was denied. Following conviction, Britton asserted in District Court that 87-2-102, defining residency for hunting and fishing license purposes, is vague because other statutes define residency differently for purposes such as voting, dissolution of marriage, college attendance, and taxation. The District Court held that fish and game residency requirements are neither vague nor ambiguous and affirmed the Justice’s Court conviction. On appeal, Britton asserted that the various statutory definitions of residency might confuse a person of ordinary intelligence and operate as a trap for the innocent. However, the Supreme Court affirmed, noting that the other statutory residency provisions to which Britton referred clearly provide that those provisions are for specific acts or purposes other than obtaining a hunting license and that it strained credulity to suggest that a person of ordinary intelligence would be confused into thinking that any of those statutes define residency for the purpose of obtaining a hunting license. Britton failed to establish that the residency requirements for obtaining a hunting or fishing license are facially unconstitutional on vagueness grounds. St. v. Britton, 2001 MT 141, 306 M 24, 30 P3d 337 (2001).

False Affirmation of Six-Month Residency Requirement Distinct From Constitutionality of Residency Requirement: Still falsely affirmed on his applications for hunting licenses that he had been a resident of the state for 6 months. The Supreme Court declined to address the constitutionality of the residency requirement imposed by 87-2-102 because Still violated this section, a separate statute. The Supreme Court held that if Still wanted to challenge the constitutionality of the residency requirement, he should have filled out the application truthfully and then challenged the subsequent denial of the license. St. v. Still, 273 M 261, 902 P2d 546, 52 St. Rep. 965 (1995).

Bear Killed Unlawfully — State Prosecution Barred: Defendant was charged in state District Court for subscribing to a materially false statement on an application for a grizzly bear trophy license and was charged and convicted in federal District Court for violating the Endangered Species Act for taking the same trophy. The federal court and the state court have concurrent jurisdiction, and the state prosecution is barred as it is based on an offense arising out of the same transaction as the federal charge. St. v. Sword, 229 M 370, 747 P2d 206, 44 St. Rep. 2053 (1987), distinguishing St. v. Pierce, 199 M 57, 647 P2d 847 (1982), and Blockburger v. U.S., 284 US 299, 76 L Ed 306, 52 S Ct 180 (1932).

Refusal to Sell License — Liability: The Director (the Fish and Game Warden under former law) is not liable in damages for failure to sell fishing licenses to a particular person. Meinecke v. McFarland, 122 M 515, 206 P2d 1012 (1949).

Op. 112 (1976).

87-2-202. Application — fee.

Compiler's Comments

2015 Amendment: Chapter 449 in (1) near beginning and at end substituted "87-2-817(2)" for "87-2-803(12)"; deleted former (3)(c), (3)(d), and (4) that read: "(c) In addition to the fee in subsection (3)(a), the first time in any license year that a resident uses the wildlife conservation license as a prerequisite to purchase a hunting license, an additional hunting access enhancement fee of $2 is assessed. The additional fee may be used by the department only to encourage enhanced hunting access through the hunter management and hunting access enhancement programs established in 87-1-265 through 87-1-267. The wildlife conservation license must be marked appropriately when the hunting access enhancement fee is paid. The resident hunting access enhancement fee is chargeable only once during any license year.

(d) In addition to the fee in subsection (3)(b), the first time in any license year that a nonresident uses the wildlife conservation license as a prerequisite to purchase a hunting license, an additional hunting access enhancement fee of $10 is assessed. The additional fee may be used by the department only to encourage enhanced hunting access through the hunter management and hunting access enhancement programs established in 87-1-265 through 87-1-267. The wildlife conservation license must be marked appropriately when the hunting access enhancement fee is paid. The nonresident hunting access enhancement fee is chargeable only once during any license year.

(4) Licenses issued are void after the last day of February next succeeding their issuance"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2016.

2011 Amendment: Chapter 258 in (1) deleted former last sentence that read: "It is unlawful and a misdemeanor for a license agent to sell a wildlife conservation license to an applicant who fails to produce the required identification at the time of application for licensure." Amendment effective October 1, 2011.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 258, L. 2011, provided: "WHEREAS, the 2007 Legislature passed House Joint Resolution No. 16, urging that revision of the criminal codes within Title 87 of the Montana Code Annotated be given priority; and

WHEREAS, House Joint Resolution No. 16 noted that practitioners, judges, and citizens find that the criminal codes intertwined within the fish and game laws in Title 87 are difficult to read, understand, and prosecute; and

WHEREAS, House Joint Resolution No. 16 directed that revision of the Title 87 criminal code should not include policy changes to current laws and should adhere to the intent of the legislatures that crafted the laws; and

WHEREAS, in 2008, the Director of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks appointed a Title 87 criminal code revision working group, consisting of Justices of the Peace, County Attorneys, an Assistant Attorney General, legal counsel and the enforcement administrator of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, and legislative staff; and

WHEREAS, the working group met numerous times and spent countless hours crafting a revision that makes the Title 87 criminal code more understandable without making substantive or policy changes to present law; and

WHEREAS, revision of the fish and game criminal statutes will benefit the hunting and fishing public, magistrates, and prosecutors by codifying crimes and penalties in a separate chapter of Montana law, rather than being intertwined throughout Title 87."

Severability: Section 132, Ch. 258, L. 2011, was a severability clause.

2010 Amendment by Initiative: Initiative Measure No. 161, proposed by initiative petition and approved at the general election held November 2, 2010, in (3)(d) in first sentence after "hunting license" deleted "except a variably priced outfitter-sponsored Class B-10 or Class B-11 license issued under 87-1-268". Amendment effective March 1, 2011.

2007 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 180 in (1) in third sentence inserted "a tribal identification card"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

Chapter 237 in (1) in second sentence at beginning of bracketed language inserted "last four digits of the applicant's". Amendment effective April 24, 2007, and terminates on occurrence of contingency.

Chapter 452 in (1) near beginning of first sentence and at end of fourth sentence after "87-2-803(12)" inserted reference to 87-2-805(5) and near middle of fifth sentence after "sell" inserted "or give". Amendment effective May 8, 2007, and terminates February 28, 2009.

2005 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 573 in (1) at beginning inserted exception clause and in fourth sentence at end inserted "or to receive a free wildlife conservation license pursuant to 87-2-803(12)". Amendment effective May 2, 2005.

(Version effective March 1, 2006) Chapter 585 in (3)(a) increased resident wildlife conservation license fee from $6.25 to $8; and in (3)(b) increased nonresident wildlife conservation license fee from $9.25 to $10. Amendment effective March 1, 2006.

Termination Provision Repealed: Section 4, Ch. 235, L. 2005, repealed sec. 9, Ch. 216, L. 2001, that terminated subsections (3)(c) and (3)(d) of this section on March 1, 2006. Effective April 15, 2005.

2003 Amendments — Composite Section — Coordination: (Version effective March 1, 2004) Chapter 534 in (3)(a) increased fee from $4 to $4.25 with a 25-cent search and rescue surcharge; in (3)(b) increased fee from $7 to $7.25 with a 25-cent search and rescue surcharge; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2004.

Chapter 596 in (3)(a) increased fee from $4 to $6; and in (3)(b) increased fee from $7 to $9. Amendment effective March 1, 2004.

Pursuant to sec. 10, Ch. 596, L. 2003, a coordination section, in (3)(a) and (3)(b) increased fees by 25 cents.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 596, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation presently authorizes the public to use state school trust land through individual recreational use licenses; and

WHEREAS, the primary recreational uses of state school trust land are hunting and fishing; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation and the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks wish to provide a more efficient system for authorizing public recreational use for hunting, fishing, and trapping on state trust land and concurrently provide greater benefit to the institutional beneficiaries of the trust; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks has the discretionary authority in section 87-1-209, MCA, to enter into an agreement to compensate state trust land beneficiaries for the use and impacts associated with hunting, fishing, and trapping on legally accessible state trust land as defined by department of natural resources and conservation rule; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks needs additional revenue to offset the cost of an agreement with the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation to compensate state trust land beneficiaries for the use and impacts associated with hunting, fishing, and trapping on legally accessible state trust land; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation and the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks have reached an agreement that, given the legislative authority, they intend to enter into an agreement for the recreational use of school trust land parcels for hunting, fishing, and trapping purposes."

Severability: Section 11, Ch. 596, L. 2003, was a severability clause.

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 216 inserted (3)(c) concerning additional $2 resident hunting access enhancement fee; and inserted (3)(d) concerning additional $10 nonresident hunting access enhancement fee. Amendment effective March 1, 2002, and terminates March 1, 2006.

Chapter 321 in (1) in second sentence inserted brackets around "social security number"; in (5) inserted brackets; and in (6) inserted brackets. Amendment effective April 21, 2001.

Chapter 528 in (3)(b) increased nonresident wildlife conservation license fee from $5 to $7. Amendment effective March 1, 2002.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 216, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, the Private Land/Public Wildlife Advisory Council is charged with the responsibility to make suggestions for funding, modification, or improvement of the hunting access enhancement program; and

WHEREAS, although the hunting access enhancement program has enjoyed considerable success to date in providing greater opportunities for Montana hunters, the Private Land/Public Wildlife Advisory Council recognizes the potential to increase hunting access through expansion of the program; and

WHEREAS, increasing the size of the current program through a once-a-season hunting access enhancement fee on resident and most nonresident hunters would provide revenue to allow greater landowner incentives, improve hunting access to private and public lands, improve program management and services, increase upland bird hunting opportunities, and provide for future increased program costs because of inflation."

1999 Amendment: Chapter 29 in (1) in second sentence near beginning inserted "social security number"; inserted (5) requiring applicant's social security number to be kept confidential; and inserted (6) requiring deletion of applicant's social security number after 5 years. Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

Applicability: Section 7, Ch. 29, L. 1999, provided: "(1) [Sections 2 and 3] [61-5-107 and 61-5-111] apply to driver's licenses issued on or after October 1, 2000.

(2) [Sections 4 and 5] [87-2-106 and 87-2-202] apply to license years beginning on or after March 1, 2000."

1997 Amendment: Chapter 187 in (1), in first sentence after "occupation," substituted "street address of permanent residence, mailing address" for "place of residence, post-office address", after "Montana" substituted "and status as" for "state whether the applicant is", and near end substituted "signed" for "subscribed"; in (2), after "licenses", substituted "issued in a form determined by the department" for "in the form of tags or stamps issued to a holder of a wildlife conservation license", after "must be" deleted "affixed to or", and after "recorded" deleted "on the wildlife conservation license"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1998.

1991 Amendments: Chapter 321 in (1), near middle of second sentence before "length", inserted "the qualifying" and after "time" inserted "as a resident", in third sentence, before "driver's license", inserted "valid Montana", inserted reference to driver's examiner's identification card, and inserted language regarding required information specified by Department, and inserted fourth and fifth sentences regarding documentation required for license application and making it unlawful for an agent to sell a conservation license without adequate documentation; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

Chapter 592 in (3)(a), after "Resident", deleted "and nonresident" and increased wildlife conservation license fee from $2 to $4; and inserted (3)(b) establishing $5 nonresident wildlife conservation license fee. Amendment effective March 1, 1992.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 592, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, an increase in Montana hunting and fishing license fees is necessary to raise revenue in order for the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to meet an anticipated revenue shortfall."

1983 Amendment: In (4), substituted "the last day of February" for "April 30".

1981 Amendment: Changed fee in (3) from "$1" to "$2".

Case Notes

Collection of Social Security Number for Issuance of Conservation License Rationally Related to Legitimate State Interests — Right to Privacy Not Violated: Plaintiffs contended that the state's collection of a partial Social Security number as a condition for issuance of a wildlife conservation license violated the fundamental right to privacy. After concluding that plaintiffs' privacy rights were not implicated, the Supreme Court applied rational basis review and held that the state's interest in collecting the last four digits of Social Security numbers from applicants for wildlife conservation licenses was legitimate and rationally related to the state's interest in maintaining access to federal funding and federal tools for locating parents owing child support under 42 U.S.C. 666(a)(13). Thus, the District Court correctly denied plaintiffs' request that they not be required to supply a Social Security number when applying for a wildlife conservation license. Mont. Shooting Sports Ass'n, Inc. v. St., 2010 MT 8, 355 Mont. 49, 224 P.3d 1240.

Part 3

Fishing Licenses

Part Case Notes

Constitutionality: The disparity in the treatment of residents and nonresidents under 87-2-505 is not an unconstitutional discrimination because it infringes upon no fundamental rights and therefore does not violate the due process or equal protection clauses; nor is the right to hunt for sport a privilege or immunity of citizens of the several states that Montana is required to grant equally to residents and nonresidents under Art. IV, sec. 2, U.S. Const. Mont. Outfitters Action Group v. Fish & Game Comm'n, 417 F. Supp. 1005 (D.C. Mont. 1976), affirmed in Baldwin v. Fish and Game Comm'n, 436 US 371, 56 L Ed 2d 354, 98 S Ct 1852 (1978).

87-2-305. Navigable waters subject to fishing rights.

Case Notes

Public Recreational Use Rights Statute — Constitutionality: Following Curran and Hildreth decisions (see below), which held that the public trust doctrine provides the public with a constitutional right to use the bed and banks of navigable streams up to the high-water mark despite a landowner’s fee title, the Legislature enacted 23-2-302 providing public recreational use of streams. Plaintiff filed suit requesting the court to declare the recreational use statute an unconstitutional taking or private property without just compensation. Plaintiff then appealed after the trial court upheld the statute’s constitutionality and awarded the state summary judgment. The Supreme Court ruled unconstitutional 23-2-302(2)(d), (2)(e), and (2)(f), which provided the public a right to hunt big game, build duck blinds and boat moorages, and camp overnight so long as not within sight of an occupied dwelling or within 500 yard of an occupied dwelling, whichever is less. The court further held as unconstitutional 23-2-311(3)(e), which required a landowner to pay costs of constructing a portage route around artificial barriers. The public has a right of use of the bed and banks up to the high-water mark but only such use as is necessary to utilization of the water itself. Any use of the bed and banks must be of minimal impact. Galt v. St., 225 M 142, 731 P2d 912, 44 St. Rep. 103 (1987).

Public Right to Use Beaverhead River for Recreational Purposes: Following the decision in Mont. Coalition for Stream Access v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984), the Supreme Court held that: (1) the Beaverhead River is navigable for recreational purposes and the public has a right to use its bed and banks up to the ordinary high-water mark with limited right to portage across private property in order to bypass barriers in the water; (2) determination of navigability for title is not necessary; (3) the public does not have the right to trespass over private property in order to reach the state-owned waters; and (4) plaintiff’s action did not constitute inverse condemnation because public use of waters, rather than title, was determined. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Hildreth, 211 M 29, 684 P2d 1088, 41 St. Rep. 1192 (1984).

Determination of Public’s Right to Use Dearborn River — Standing of Coalition of Citizens: In action for determination of the public’s right to use the Dearborn River, whether the Montana Coalition for Stream Access, Inc., had standing to bring suit was immaterial because the Department of State Lands (now Department of Natural Resources and Conservation) and the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks were also plaintiffs. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Determining Public's Right to Use Dearborn River — Indispensable Parties: Stream access coalition, the Department of State Lands (now Department of Natural Resources and Conservation), and the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks sued landowner along the Dearborn River, seeking a determination of the public's right to use the river. The District Court did not err for failure to dismiss the plaintiffs' claims for failure to join indispensable parties. When litigation seeks vindication of a public right, those who may be adversely affected by a decision do not thereby become indispensable parties. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Navigability for Title Purposes — Federal Test — Dearborn River Navigable: Federal law controlled the issue of whether the Dearborn River was, at the time Montana became a state, navigable for the purpose of determining title to its bed. Under federal law, rivers are navigable in law if they are navigable in fact, and they are navigable in fact if they were used or capable of being used, in their ordinary condition, as highways for commerce over which trade and travel were or could be conducted in the customary modes of trade and travel on the water at the time of the state's admission to the Union. Navigability in fact can be determined by using the log-floating test. That test was satisfied by evidence that in 1887, 2 years before Montana became a state, the Dearborn was used to float about 100,000 railroad ties and that in 1888 or 1889, one or two log drives a year were floated down the river, one of them containing 700,000 board feet. Title to the riverbed was thus in the federal government when Montana became a state in 1889 and was transferred to the State upon its admission to the Union. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Navigability for Title Purposes — Summary Judgment — Dearborn River: The District Court properly granted the coalition for stream access and two state departments summary judgment on the issue of navigability of the Dearborn River in 1889 for title purposes. The affidavits and depositions of plaintiffs' two competent historians were admissible because the historians were qualified experts who provided evidence of the history of the river, their affidavits and depositions disclosed circumstantial guarantees of trustworthiness, and the facts and data they relied on were of a type reasonably relied on by experts in their field; the facts and data did not themselves have to be admissible. The affidavits of defendant landowner's witnesses were worthless, were not admissible, and did not create any genuine issue of material fact concerning the navigability of the river at the time Montana became a state in 1889. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Public Recreational Use Rights on Dearborn River — Limits: Navigability for public use is governed by state law and is separate from the question of navigability under federal law for title purposes. The question is whether waters owned by the State under Art. IX, sec. 3(3), Mont. Const., are susceptible to recreational use by the public. The capability of use of the waters for recreational purposes determines the availability of the waters for recreational use by the public. Whether or not a private party owns the bed beneath the waters is irrelevant. The constitution and the Public Trust Doctrine bar a private party from interfering with the public's right to use of the surface of the waters owned by the State, and any surface waters that are capable of recreational use may be so used by the public without regard to streambed ownership or navigability for nonrecreational purposes. The public's recreational use right extends to the point of the high-water marks. The public does not have the right to cross over private property to reach waters upon which they have a recreational use right, though they may portage around barriers in the water in the least intrusive way possible, avoiding damage to any private property holder's rights. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Public Recreational Use of Dearborn River — No Inverse Condemnation: Landowner along Dearborn River was sued by parties seeking a determination of the public's right to use the river for recreational uses. Landowner counterclaimed for inverse condemnation, basing the counterclaim on his claim to ownership of the riverbed. The Supreme Court held that the question of title to the bed was irrelevant to determining navigability for use by the public; that landowner had no claim to the waters; that since there was no claim to the waters, nothing was taken and thus there was no ground for an inverse condemnation claim; and that consequently, the District Court did not err in dismissing the counterclaim. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Title to and Public Recreation on Dearborn River — Ex Post Facto, Contract Clause, and Irrevocable Privileged Considerations: The Supreme Court held that the State, not the landowner along the Dearborn River, held title to the bed of the river under the federal test of navigability (at the time Montana became a state) for purposes of determining title to the riverbed. The court also held that landowner had no right to exclude the public from recreational use of the waters of the Dearborn. Because of these holdings, landowner's questions relating to ex post facto laws, violation of the contract clause of the constitution, and irrevocable rights and privileges were not germane to the case. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Title to and Public Use of Dearborn River — Federal Commerce Clause Navigability Immaterial: In action for determination of the public's right to use the Dearborn River, whether Montana has adopted the log-floating test of commercial navigability and whether the Dearborn is navigable under the federal commercial use test were immaterial because the question was one of recreational use or navigability, not commercial navigability. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Title to and Public Use of Dearborn River — Subject Matter Jurisdiction Found: Landowner along the Dearborn River claimed the District Court lacked subject matter jurisdiction over action for determination of the public's right to use the river, basing his claim on the presumption that he held title to the riverbed and that the State had no power to strip him of that title under the guise of determining navigability of the waters over the riverbed. The claim lacked merit because the State holds title to the riverbed and the water flowing over it, so that there was no question of the District Court's subject matter jurisdiction. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Summary of Holdings in Litigation Over Hunting and Fishing Rights on Crow Indian Reservation: "The explicit holdings of the Supreme Court in Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. 544, 101 S.Ct. 1245, 67 L.Ed.2d 493 (1981), and of the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in United States v. State of Montana, 604 F.2d 1162 (9th Cir. 1979), to the extent not reversed by the Supreme Court, are as follows:

1. The Crow Tribe can proscribe all hunting and fishing by non-members on those lands described in 18 U.S.C. § 1165. Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254.

2. The Crow Tribe, within 18 U.S.C. § 1165 lands, has power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members of the tribe (whether Indian or non-Indian) subject to the following conditions:

(a) That the Crow Tribe lacks the power to impose criminal sanctions on non-Indians who violate its hunting and fishing regulations,

(b) That the exercise by the Crow Tribe of its power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-Indians must be within the constraints recognized by this court in Quechan Tribe of Indians v. Rowe, 531 F.2d 408 (9th Cir. 1976). Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254; United States v. Montana, 604 F.2d at 1165, 1170.

3. The title to the bed and banks of the Big Horn is in the State of Montana. 450 U.S. at 556-57, 101 S.Ct. at 1253-54.

4. The Crow Tribe has no power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members on non-member owned fee patent land located within the exterior boundaries of the Crow Reservation. Id. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254.

5. The State of Montana cannot regulate hunting and fishing by members of the Crow Tribe within 18 U.S.C. § 1165 lands. 604 F.2d at 1172.

6. The State of Montana has the power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members of the Crow Tribe within the exterior boundaries of the Crow Reservation subject to the following limitations:

(a) That such regulations of the State of Montana not regulate indirectly the hunting and fishing by members of the Crow Tribe on 18 U.S.C. § 1165 lands.

(b) That such regulations of the State of Montana must have as their purpose the conservation and proper management of game and fish and not to discriminate against, nor to impede, authorized regulation by the Crow Tribe. Id. at 1166.

7. Such rights as the State of Montana has to regulate fishing on the Big Horn River by the Crows and all others are not limited by either (a) the treaties of 1851 and 1868 (except to such extent as these treaties might acknowledge pertinent aboriginal title rights of the Crow Tribe not heretofore asserted or recognized in this litigation) or (b) the inherent sovereignty of the Crow Tribe. 604 F.2d at 1170-71." (Quoting from U.S. v. Mont., 686 F.2d 766 (9th Cir. 1982), at pp. 768-769.)

Tribal Regulation of Flathead Lake Usage: Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation have authority to regulate federal common-law riparian rights of non-Indians who own reservation land bordering the south half of Flathead Lake. The Circuit Court held that the decision in Mont. v. U.S., 450 US 544, 67 L Ed 2d 493, 101 S Ct 1245 (1981), regarding ownership and control of the Bighorn River, was not controlling. The decision in Mont. Power Co. v. Rochester, 127 F2d 189 (9th Cir. 1942), was given deference under the principle of stare decisis. Rochester held that the United States holds title to the bed and banks of the south half of Flathead Lake in trust for the tribes. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation v. Namen, 665 F2d 951 (9th Cir. 1982), followed in In re Estate of Hobbs, 2002 MT 85, 309 M 308, 46 P3d 594 (2002).

87-2-501. Class A-3, A-4, A-5, A-6, A-7, A-9—resident deer, elk, and bear licenses — special Class A-7 resident and nonresident license requirements and preference — fees.

Compiler's Comments

2005 Amendment: (Version effective March 1, 2006) Chapter 585 in (1)(a) increased fee from $13 to $16; in (1)(b) increased fee from $8 to $10; in (1)(c) increased fee from $16 to $20; in (1)(d) increased fee from $15 to $19; in (1)(e) increased fee from $16 to $20; and in (1)(f) increased fee from $16 to $20. Amendment effective March 1, 2006.

2003 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 201 inserted (1)(f) concerning Class A-9 resident antlerless elk B tag; in (2)(b) in first sentence increased number of elk from one to two and at end inserted restriction on one elk being antlered; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 1, 2003.

Chapter 553 at beginning of (2)(b), (2)(c), and (5) inserted provision relating to 87-1-321 through 87-1-325; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 5, 2003.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 533 in (1) after "who" substituted "is" for "will be", after "older" substituted "or who will turn 12 years old before or during" for "prior to September 15 of", and after "holder" inserted "who is 12 years of age or older"; in (2)(a) after "license" inserted "who is 12 years of age or older"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2000.

1995 Amendments: Chapter 263 in (1)(a) through (1)(e) deleted former license fees and dates upon which fees became effective (see 1995 Session Law for text); in (1)(d), after "black", deleted "or brown"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1996.

Chapter 417 in (1), after "holder to", deleted "pursue" and after "hunt" deleted "shoot, and kill"; in (1)(a), after "tag", deleted "$11 beginning March 1, 1992, and" and after "$13" deleted "beginning March 1, 1994"; in (1)(b), after "tag", deleted "$7 beginning March 1, 1992, and" and after "$8" deleted "beginning March 1, 1994"; in (1)(c), after "tag", deleted "$13 beginning March 1, 1992, and" and after "$16" deleted "beginning March 1, 1994"; in (1)(d), after "tag", deleted "$11 beginning March 1, 1992, and" and after "$15" deleted "beginning March 1, 1994"; in (1)(e), after "tag", deleted "$13 beginning March 1, 1992, and" and after "$16" deleted "beginning March 1, 1994"; in (2)(a), after "entitled to", substituted "hunt" for "take"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1991 Amendments: Chapter 418 in (3), near beginning after "who", substituted "owns or is contracting to purchase" for "holds fee title to".

Chapter 592 in (1)(a) increased deer A tag fee from $9 to $11 beginning March 1, 1992, and to $13 beginning March 1, 1994; in (1)(b) increased deer B tag fee from $6 to $7 beginning March 1, 1992, and to $8 beginning March 1, 1994; in (1)(c) increased elk tag fee from $10 to $13 beginning March 1, 1992, and to $16 beginning March 1, 1994; in (1)(d) increased bear tag fee from $8 to $11 beginning March 1, 1992, and to $15 beginning March 1, 1994; and in (1)(e) increased antlerless elk tag fee from $10 to $13 beginning March 1, 1992, and to $16 beginning March 1, 1994. Amendment effective March 1, 1992.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 592, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, an increase in Montana hunting and fishing license fees is necessary to raise revenue in order for the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to meet an anticipated revenue shortfall."

1989 Amendment: Near beginning of (1), after "87-2-102", inserted "or a nonresident who wishes to purchase a Class A-7 elk license only"; near beginning of (2)(a), after "to take", deleted "surplus" and at end, after "commission", deleted "but may not simultaneously possess a Class A-5 and a Class A-7 license in the same year. The commission shall include in the terms of issuance of the Class A-7 license a requirement for surrender of a current Class A-5 license if held by a person at the time he purchases a Class A-7 license. If a current Class A-5 license is surrendered, as required by this section, the Class A-7 license must be issued without cost to the holder"; near end of first sentence of (2)(b), after "Class A-5", inserted "license or nonresident" and inserted second sentence relating to Department's use of special elk permits; and inserted (2)(c) that read: "(c) A nonresident shall hold a nonresident Class B-10 license as a prerequisite to application for a Class A-7 license." Amendment effective March 1, 1990.

Delayed Effective Date: Section 3, Ch. 296, L. 1989, provided: "[This act] is effective March 1, 1990."

1987 Amendment: Inserted (3) through (5) relating to the landowner set-aside of Class A-7 licenses.

1985 Amendment: Effective March 1, 1986, near middle of (1), after "licenses", inserted "at the prescribed cost"; in (1)(e) increased fee from $8 to $10; and in (2) near end of first sentence, substituted "and upon such terms as set forth by the commission but may not simultaneously possess a Class A-5 and a Class A-7 license in the same year" for "during the regular big game season as set forth by the commission", inserted second and third sentences requiring surrender of current Class A-5 license and issuance of Class A-7 license without cost if Class A-5 license is surrendered, at beginning of fourth sentence deleted "However", and in middle of fourth sentence, after "person", substituted "holding a Class A-7 antlerless elk tag may not take an elk" for "taking an antlerless elk as provided in this subsection may not take another elk".

1983 Amendment: Increased license fees as follows: Class A-3, deer A tag from $8 to $9; Class A-4, deer B tag from $5 to $6; Class A-5, elk tag from $9 to $10; and inserted (1)(e) and (2), creating Class A-7, antlerless elk tag.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 335 (Ch. 680, L. 1983) provided: "A statement of intent is required for House Bill 335 because section 3 [87-2-501] provides that the Fish and Game Commission [now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission] will designate the areas in which surplus antlerless elk may be taken with a Class A-7 antlerless elk license. In addition, the Commission may set times during the regular big game season for the taking of surplus antlerless elk in designated areas."

The intent of the Class A-7 antlerless elk license is to provide the Commission with the option to issue antlerless elk licenses. The Commission would, with appropriate public comment, authorize antlerless elk licenses to be used in problem areas where additional antlerless elk need to be harvested. Class A-7 antlerless elk license holders would not be allowed to harvest a bull elk in the designated areas for the time period authorized by the Commission for the antlerless elk license.

The Class A-7 antlerless elk license would not replace the need for or use of the antlerless or either sex elk permits now in place. The Class A-7 antlerless elk license would provide additional flexibility for the Commission to deal with problems of surplus antlerless elk, particularly on private land."

1981 Amendment: Increased license fees as follows: Class A-3, deer A tag from "$7" to "$8"; Class A-5, elk tag from "$8" to "$9"; and Class A-6, bear tag from "$6" to "$8".

Attorney General's Opinions

Game Harvesting — Game Ranch: The Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission) does not have the authority to regulate the hunting and killing of privately owned game through the imposition of licensing requirements on individual hunters or open and closed seasons. 36 A.G. Op. 112 (1976).

2001 Amendment: Chapter 528 in (1)(a) near end substituted "fish, wildlife, and parks" for "fish and game"; in (1)(a)(i) increased license fee to $250; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2002.

Termination Provision Repealed: Section 1, Ch. 21, L. 2001, repealed sec. 6, Ch. 355, L. 1997, which terminated the 1997 amendments to this section October 1, 2001. Effective February 19, 2001.

1999 Amendment: (Version effective October 1, 2000) Chapter 533 in (1)(a) after second "who" substituted "is" for "will be" and after "older" substituted "or who will turn 12 years old before or during" for "prior to September 15 of"; in (1)(b) after "holder" inserted "who is 12 years of age or older"; and made minor changes in style. (Corresponding changes were made in later versions.) Amendment effective October 1, 2000.

1997 Amendment: (Temporary version) Chapter 355 in (1)(a)(i) increased cost of Class B-7 deer tag from $150 to $175; in (1)(a)(ii) increased cost of Class B-8 deer tag from $50 to $75; in (1)(b), at end before "rules", substituted "commission" for "department"; in (2), in first sentence after "license", substituted "may" for "must", after "region or" inserted "regions or a", and after "administrative region" inserted "or regions or in a specific hunting district or districts or a portion of a specific hunting district or districts", in second sentence, after "state", inserted "except as provided in 87-2-512(1)(d)", and deleted third sentence that read: "Money received from the sale of Class B-7 licenses in excess of 1,700 must be used as provided in 87-1-242(1)"; inserted (3) allowing the Commission to set certain conditions on Class B-8 licenses; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 22, 1997, and terminates October 1, 2001.

1997 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 355, L. 1997, provided: "This bill establishes the authority of the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to modify, by rule, the structure of nonresident elk and deer licenses within the general framework established by law as needed for the effective management of big game animals. It is the intent of the legislature that in its initial rulemaking process, the commission utilize an advisory committee, including representatives of hunting and fishing organizations, outfitters, and landowners, to make recommendations regarding the structure of nonresident hunting licenses as authorized by this bill. It is also the intent of the legislature that commission rules not authorize more nonresident elk and deer hunters than are prescribed by current law."

1995 Amendment: Chapter 417 near end of first sentence, in clause following first list of licenses after "holder to", deleted "pursue" and after "hunt" deleted "shoot, and kill"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Extension of Termination Date: Section 1, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006. Section 2, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006.

Extension of Termination Date: Section 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 1996. Amendment effective April 2, 1991.

1987 Amendments: Chapter 458 near beginning of second sentence inserted "or B-11" and inserted sentence allowing B-7 license purchased as part of B-11 license to be used statewide. Amendment effective March 1, 1988.

Chapter 598 increased B-7 tag from $100 to $150 and inserted last two sentences limiting number of licenses sold and providing for use of money from sale. (Chapter 598 amendments terminate March 1, 1994.)

87-2-505. Class B-10—nonresident big game combination license.Compiler's Comments

2015 Amendment: Chapter 449 in (1) substituted "$981" for "$897 plus the nonresident hunting access enhancement fee in 87-2-202(3)(d)"; in (3) substituted "28.5%" for "25%"; in (4) inserted last sentence concerning rounding adjusted cost; deleted former (2) that read: "(2) A person who is not a resident, as defined in 87-2-102, who is unsuccessful in the Class B-10 big game combination license drawing may pay a fee of $25 to participate in a preference system for deer and elk permits established by the commission"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2016.

2010 Amendment by Initiative: Initiative Measure No. 161, proposed by initiative petition and approved at the general election held November 2, 2010, in (1)(a) in first sentence near middle substituted $897 for $628 and after "87-2-202(3)(d)" deleted "or upon payment of the fee established as provided in 87-1-268 if the license is one of the licenses reserved pursuant to 87-2-511 for applicants indicating their intent to use the services of a licensed outfitter"; in (1)(b) substituted "17,000" for "11,500 unreserved"; inserted (1)(c) relating to deposit of certain fees; inserted (1)(d) relating to annual cost adjustment of nonresident Class B-10 licenses; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2011.

2007 Amendment: Chapter 25 deleted former (3) that read: "(3) A holder of a Class B-10 nonresident big game combination license may apply for a Class B-12 nonresident antlerless elk B tag license when authorized by the commission pursuant to 87-2-104. The fee for a Class B-12 license is $273. The license entitles the holder to hunt in the hunting district or portion of a hunting district and under the terms and conditions specified by the commission." Amendment effective March 22, 2007.

2005 Amendment: (Version effective March 1, 2006) Chapter 585 in (1) near middle increased fee from $625 to $628; and in (3) at end of second sentence increased fee from $270 to $273. Amendment effective March 1, 2006.

Sections 2 and 3, Ch. 235, L. 2005, amended sec. 6, Ch. 544, L. 1999, and sec. 18, Ch. 459, L. 1995, and sec. 4, Ch. 235, L. 2005, repealed sec. 9, Ch. 216, L. 2001, removing the provision that terminated amendments to this section March 1, 2006. Effective April 15, 2005.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 201 inserted (3) concerning nonresident antlerless elk B tag license and setting fee for the license; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 1, 2003.

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: (Version effective March 1, 2002) Chapter 216 in (1) near middle of first sentence after "$475" inserted "plus the nonresident hunting access enhancement fee in 87-2-202(3)(d)". Amendment effective March 1, 2002, and terminates March 1, 2006.

(Version effective March 1, 2002) Chapter 528 in (1) in first sentence increased fee from $475 to $625.

(Version effective March 1, 2006) In (1) substituted "fee of $550" for "fee of $398 or upon payment of the fee of $408 if the license is one of the 5,600 licenses reserved pursuant to 87-2-511 for applicants indicating their intent to use the services of a licensed outfitter"; and made minor changes in style.

(Versions effective March 1, 2002, and March 1, 2006) In (1) in first sentence substituted "fish, wildlife, and parks office" for "fish and game office".

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 216, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, the Private Land/Public Wildlife Advisory Council is charged with the responsibility to make suggestions for funding, modification, or improvement of the hunting access enhancement program; and

WHEREAS, although the hunting access enhancement program has enjoyed considerable success to date in providing greater opportunities for Montana hunters, the Private Land/Public Wildlife Advisory Council recognizes the potential to increase hunting access through expansion of the program; and

WHEREAS, increasing the size of the current program through a once-a-season hunting access enhancement fee on resident and most nonresident hunters would provide revenue to allow greater landowner incentives, improve hunting access to private and public lands, improve program management and services, increase upland bird hunting opportunities, and provide for future increased program costs because of inflation."

1999 Amendment: Chapter 533 in (1) after second "who" substituted "is" for "will be", after "older" substituted "or who will turn 12 years old before or during" for "prior to September 15 of", and after "holder" inserted "who is 12 years of age or older"; inserted (2) concerning unsuccessful nonresident in B-10 drawing; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2000.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 459 in version effective March 1, 1996, in first sentence, after "payment of the fee of", deleted "$462 beginning March 1, 1992, and", after "$475" deleted "beginning March 1, 1994", substituted "established as provided in 87-1-268" for "of $472 beginning March 1, 1992, and $485 beginning March 1, 1994", and before "licenses" deleted "5,600" and in second sentence substituted "11,500 unreserved" for "17,000"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1996, and terminates October 1, 2001.

Amendment Not Codified: The Code Commissioner has not codified the amendments to the version effective March 1, 2006. Section 18(1), Ch. 459, L. 1995, terminated the amendments on October 1, 2001, before the section became effective on March 1, 2006.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 459, L. 1995, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana has a cherished hunting heritage based on a deep knowledge of and respect for wildlife and the land; and

WHEREAS, private landowners provide wildlife habitat and hunting opportunities, the hunting public provides financial and political support for sound wildlife management, and the combined efforts of landowners and the hunting public have sustained Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, landowner/outfitter/sportsperson relations have become increasingly strained over the past several years, leading to increased polarization between the groups; and

WHEREAS, the 1993 Legislature addressed this problem through the passage of House Joint Resolution No. 24, which requested the Governor, through the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, to coordinate a sustained, ongoing, cooperative effort to address these issues by establishing statewide, regional, and local groups to develop mutually satisfactory solutions that would preserve Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage and encourage the continuance of a viable outfitting industry; and

WHEREAS, in response to that request, the Governor appointed the Advisory Council on Private Land/Public Wildlife, consisting of representatives of the affected groups, to study the issues in anticipation of legislation that reflects the mutual interests of landowners, outfitters, and the sporting community; and

WHEREAS, after considering extensive input and advice from individual private citizens, local working groups, agencies, and nonprofit organizations involved in conservation, the Advisory Council by consensus developed recommendations for improving hunting access to private lands and for providing tangible benefits for landowners who allow access to their lands for hunting; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council has made efforts to break new ground philosophically in designing its recommendations, requiring that all interested parties be willing to accept change in order to benefit everyone who has an interest in Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council finds it appropriate to present the following recommendations to the Legislature in the spirit of a cooperative and positive effort to enhance relations between landowners, outfitters, and sportspersons."

1995 Statement of Intent: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because [sections 1 through 3] [87-1-265 through 87-1-267] grant rulemaking authority to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks and the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement programs for hunter management and hunting access enhancement. It is intended that in addition to the statutory guidelines set out in those sections, any rules be adopted with the purpose of optimizing hunting opportunity and access while minimizing administrative costs in providing benefits to landowners who voluntarily participate in the programs. In addition, [section 6] [87-1-268, now repealed] grants rulemaking authority to the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement the provisions of variable pricing for Class B-10 and Class B-11 outfitter-sponsored licenses. It is intended that the fish, wildlife, and parks commission use its licensing authority to adjust the price of those licenses as necessary and that any additional revenue generated by variable pricing be used to fund the hunting access enhancement program."

Extension of Termination Date: Section 1, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006. Section 2, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006.

1991 Amendment: (Version effective March 1, 1992) In first sentence increased nonresident big game combination license fee from $450 to $462 beginning March 1, 1992, and to $475 beginning March 1, 1994, or to $472 beginning March 1, 1992, and to $485 beginning March 1, 1994, for applicants indicating intent to use services of licensed outfitter and near end, after "Class B-7", deleted "and black bear"; and made minor change in style.

(Version effective March 1, 1996) In first sentence increased nonresident big game combination license fee from $373 to $398 or to $408 for applicants indicating intent to use services of licensed outfitter and near end, after "Class B-7", deleted "and black bear"; and made minor change in style. Amendments effective March 1, 1992.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 592, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, an increase in Montana hunting and fishing license fees is necessary to raise revenue in order for the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to meet an anticipated revenue shortfall."

Extension of Termination Date: Section 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 1996. Amendment effective April 2, 1991.

1987 Amendments: Chapter 598 increased fee from $350 to $450 from March 1, 1988, to March 1, 1994.

Chapter 636 increased fee from $350 to $373.

1985 Amendment: Increased license fee from $300 to $350 effective March 1, 1986.

1981 Amendment: Changed the fee from "$225" to "$275".

Case Notes

Constitutionality: The disparity in the treatment of residents and nonresidents under this section is not an unconstitutional discrimination because it infringes upon no fundamental rights and therefore does not violate the due process or equal protection clauses; nor is the right to hunt for sport a privilege or immunity of citizens of the several states that Montana is required to grant equally to residents and nonresidents under Art. IV, sec. 2, U.S. Const. (See 1999 amendment.) Mont. Outfitters Action Group v. Fish & Game Comm'n, 417 F. Supp. 1005 (D.C. Mont. 1976), affirmed in *Baldwin v. 2013 Amendment: Chapter 129 deleted last two sentences that read: “If a holder of a valid mountain lion license under this section kills a mountain lion, the licensee shall purchase a trophy license for a fee of $50 within 10 days after the date of kill. The trophy license authorizes the holder to possess and transport the trophy”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2013.

2005 Amendment: (Version effective March 1, 2006) Chapter 585 in first sentence increased fee from $15 to $19. Amendment effective March 1, 2006.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 533 in first sentence after “older” inserted “or who will turn 12 years old before or during the season for which the license is issued” and after “holder” inserted “who is 12 years of age or older”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2000.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 417 in first sentence, after “fee of”, deleted “$13 beginning March 1, 1992, and”, after “$15” deleted “beginning March 1, 1994”, after “holder to” deleted “pursue”, and after “hunt” deleted “shoot, and kill”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Severability: Section 37, Ch. 417, L. 1995, was a severability clause.

1991 Amendment: In first sentence increased mountain lion license fee from $10 to $13 beginning March 1, 1992, and to $15 beginning March 1, 1994. Amendment effective March 1, 1992.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 592, L. 1991, provided: “WHEREAS, an increase in Montana hunting and fishing license fees is necessary to raise revenue in order for the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to meet an anticipated revenue shortfall.”

1983 Amendment: Increased license fee from $5 to $10 and inserted last two sentences relating to trophy license requirements for mountain lion — effective March 1, 1984.

87-2-510. Class B-11—nonresident deer combination license.

Compiler's Comments

2015 Amendment: Chapter 449 in (1)(a) in middle substituted “$577” for “$527 plus the nonresident hunting access enhancement fee in 87-2-202(3)(d)”; in (1)(b) substituted “28.5%” for “25%”; in (1)(c) inserted last sentence concerning rounding adjusted cost; and deleted former (3) that read: “(3) A person who is not a resident, as defined in 87-2-102, who is unsuccessful in the Class B-11 deer combination license drawing may pay a fee of $25 to participate in a preference system for deer and elk permits established by the commission.” Amendment effective March 1, 2016.

2010 Amendment by Initiative: Initiative Measure No. 161, proposed by initiative petition and approved at the general election held November 2, 2010, in (1)(a) near middle of first sentence substituted “$527” for “$328” and after “87-2-202(3)(d)” deleted “upon payment of the fee established as provided in 87-1-268 if the license is one of those reserved pursuant to 87-2-511 for applicants indicating their intent to use the services of a licensed outfitter or upon payment of the fee of $328 plus the nonresident hunting access enhancement fee in 87-2-202(3)(d), if the license is one of those reserved pursuant to 87-2-511 for applicants indicating their intent to hunt with a resident sponsor on land owned by that sponsor”; inserted (1)(b) relating to deposit of a portion of the fee; inserted (1)(c) relating to annual adjustment of the cost of the Class B-11 nonresident license; in (2) substituted "4,600" for "2,300"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2011.

2005 Amendment: (Version effective March 1, 2006) Chapter 585 in (1) in first sentence in two places increased fee from $325 to $328. Amendment effective March 1, 2006.

Termination Provision Repealed: Sections 2 and 3, Ch. 235, L. 2005, amended sec. 6, Ch. 544, L. 1999, and sec. 18, Ch. 459, L. 1995, and sec. 4, Ch. 235, L. 2005, repealed sec. 9, Ch. 216, L. 2001, removing the provision that terminated amendments to this section March 1, 2006. Effective April 15, 2005.

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: (Version effective March 1, 2002) Chapter 216 in first sentence in (1) after "$245" and after "$250" inserted "plus the nonresident hunting access enhancement fee in 87-2-202(3)(d)". Amendment effective March 1, 2002, and terminates March 1, 2006.

(Version effective March 1, 2002) Chapter 528 in (1) increased fee for nonresident 12 years of age or older from $245 to $325, increased fee for nonresident using outfitter from $250 to $325, and substituted "fish, wildlife, and parks office" for "fish and game office".

(Version effective March 1, 2006) In (1) at end of first sentence substituted "$300, purchase a Class B-11 nonresident deer combination license that entitles a holder who is 12 years of age or older to all the privileges of the Class B, Class B-1, and Class B-7 licenses" for "$220 or upon payment of the fee of $225", at beginning of second sentence inserted "The fee for a Class B-11 license is $300", and in fourth sentence substituted "fish, wildlife, and parks office" for "fish and game office" and after "Montana" deleted "to purchase a Class B-11 nonresident deer combination license that entitles a holder who is 12 years of age or older to all the privileges of the Class B, Class B-1, and Class B-7 licenses"; and made minor changes in style.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 216, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, the Private Land/Public Wildlife Advisory Council is charged with the responsibility to make suggestions for funding, modification, or improvement of the hunting access enhancement program; and

WHEREAS, although the hunting access enhancement program has enjoyed considerable success to date in providing greater opportunities for Montana hunters, the Private Land/Public Wildlife Advisory Council recognizes the potential to increase hunting access through expansion of the program; and

WHEREAS, increasing the size of the current program through a once-a-season hunting access enhancement fee on resident and most nonresident hunters would provide revenue to allow greater landowner incentives, improve hunting access to private and public lands, improve program management and services, increase upland bird hunting opportunities, and provide for future increased program costs because of inflation."

1999 Amendment: Chapter 533 in (1) after second "who" substituted "is" for "will be", after "older" substituted "or who will turn 12 years old before or during" for "prior to September 15 of", and after "holder" inserted "who is 12 years of age or older"; inserted (3) concerning unsuccessful nonresident in B-11 drawing; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2000.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 459 in version effective March 1, 1996, in (1), in first sentence, substituted "established as provided in 87-1-268" for "of $225", after "license is one of" substituted "those" for "the 4,000", and inserted requirement for payment of $225 fee for license reserved under 87-2-511; in (2) substituted "Not more than 2,300 unreserved" for "Six thousand"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1996, and terminates October 1, 2001.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 459, L. 1995, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana has a cherished hunting heritage based on a deep knowledge of and respect for wildlife and the land; and

WHEREAS, private landowners provide wildlife habitat and hunting opportunities, the hunting public provides financial and political support for sound wildlife management, and the combined efforts of landowners and the hunting public have sustained Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, landowner/outfitter/sportsperson relations have become increasingly strained over the past several years, leading to increased polarization between the groups; and

WHEREAS, the 1993 Legislature addressed this problem through the passage of House Joint Resolution No. 24, which requested the Governor, through the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, to coordinate a sustained, ongoing, cooperative effort to address these issues by establishing statewide, regional, and local groups to develop mutually satisfactory solutions that would preserve Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage and encourage the continuance of a viable outfitting industry; and

WHEREAS, in response to that request, the Governor appointed the Advisory Council on Private Land/Public Wildlife, consisting of representatives of the affected groups, to study the issues in anticipation of legislation that reflects the mutual interests of landowners, outfitters, and the sporting community; and

WHEREAS, after considering extensive input and advice from individual private citizens, local working groups, agencies, and nonprofit organizations involved in conservation, the Advisory Council by consensus developed recommendations for improving hunting access to private lands and for providing tangible benefits for landowners who allow access to their lands for hunting; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council has made efforts to break new ground philosophically in designing its recommendations, requiring that all interested parties be willing to accept change in order to benefit everyone who has an interest in Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council finds it appropriate to present the following recommendations to the Legislature in the spirit of a cooperative and positive effort to enhance relations between landowners, outfitters, and sportspersons."

1995 Statement of Intent: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because [sections 1 through 3] [87-1-265 through 87-1-267] grant rulemaking authority to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks and the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement programs for hunter management and hunting access enhancement. It is intended that in addition to the statutory guidelines set out in those sections, any rules be adopted with the purpose of optimizing hunting opportunity and access while minimizing administrative costs in providing benefits to landowners who voluntarily participate in the programs. In addition, [section 6] [87-1-268, now repealed] grants rulemaking authority to the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement the provisions of variable pricing for Class B-10 and Class B-11 outfitter-sponsored licenses. It is intended that the fish, wildlife, and parks commission use its licensing authority to adjust the price of those licenses as necessary and that any additional revenue generated by variable pricing be used to fund the hunting access enhancement program."

Saving Clause: Section 14, Ch. 459, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

Code Commissioner Correction: This section was amended in 1991 by Ch. 592, L. 1991, to increase the cost of a general Class B-11 license to $245 and the cost of a resident-sponsored and outfitter-sponsored license to $250, effective March 1, 1994. The 1995 Legislature amended this section to reflect pricing of the outfitter-sponsored license according to the variable pricing format of Ch. 459, L. 1995, without changing the price of the general or resident-sponsored license, but amended an earlier version of this section. The prices of the general license and the resident-sponsored license have been corrected by the Code Commissioner to reflect the actual license prices set by Ch. 592, L. 1991.

1991 Amendment: (Version effective March 1, 1992) In (1) increased nonresident combination deer license fee from $200 to $238 beginning March 1, 1992, and to $245 beginning March 1, 1994, or to $248 beginning March 1, 1992, and to $250 beginning March 1, 1994, for applicants indicating intent to use services of licensed outfitter or to hunt with resident sponsor on sponsor's land.

(Version effective March 1, 1994) In (1) increased nonresident deer combination license fee from $175 to $220 or to $225 for applicants indicating intent to use services of licensed outfitter or to hunt with resident sponsor on sponsor's land. Amendments effective March 1, 1992.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 592, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, an increase in Montana hunting and fishing license fees is necessary to raise revenue in order for the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to meet an anticipated revenue shortfall."

Coordination Instruction: Section 11, Ch. 598, L. 1987, a coordination instruction, increased fee in (1) of temporary version from $175 to $200.

87-2-511. Sale and use of Class B-10, Class B-11, and Class B-13 licenses.

Compiler's Comments

2015 Amendment: Chapter 449 in (6)(a) at end substituted "fee of $831" for "fee that is $150 less than that set for a Class B-10 license in 87-2-505"; inserted (6)(b) concerning adjustment of cost of elk-only combination license; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2016.

2013 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 104 in (7) deleted former first sentence that read: "The department shall offer the Class B-13 nonresident youth big game combination license for sale on March 1", substituted "Subject to 87-2-522(2), at the time of application, an applicant for a Class B-13 license" for "An applicant", and deleted former last sentence that read: "The adult sponsor must possess either a valid Class B-10 or Class B-11 license or a valid resident deer or elk tag at the time of application." Amendment effective October 1, 2013.

Chapter 319 in (6)(b) substituted "retain 10% of the Class B-10 license fee" for "charge a $25 processing fee". Amendment effective March 1, 2014.

2011 Amendment: Chapter 336 inserted (6) regarding licensing of applicant not successful in drawing for special elk permit; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 5, 2011.

2010 Amendment by Initiative: Initiative Measure No. 161, proposed by initiative petition and approved at the general election held November 2, 2010, in (1) near middle after "March 15" deleted "a number of authorized Class B-10 and Class B-11 licenses, as determined under 87-1-268, reserved for applicants using the services of a licensed outfitter and"; deleted former (4) and (5) that read: "(4) Each application for an outfitter-sponsored license under subsection (1) must contain a written affirmation by the applicant that the applicant will hunt with a licensed outfitter for all big game hunted by the applicant under the license and must indicate the name of the licensed outfitter with whom the applicant will hunt. In addition, the application must be accompanied by a certificate that is signed by a licensed outfitter and that affirms that the outfitter will:

- (a) accompany the applicant;
- (b) provide guiding services for the species hunted by the applicant;
- (c) direct the applicant's hunting for all big game hunted by the applicant under the license and advise the applicant of game and trespass laws of the state;
- (d) submit to the department, in a manner prescribed by the department, complete records of who hunted with the outfitter, where they hunted, and what game was taken; and
- (e) accept no monetary consideration for enabling the nonresident applicant to obtain a license or for providing any services or assistance to the nonresident applicant, except as provided in Title 37, chapter 47, and this title.

(5) An outfitter-sponsored license under subsection (1) is valid only when used in compliance with the affirmations of the applicant and outfitter required under subsection (4). If the sponsoring outfitter is unavailable or if the applicant wishes to use the services of separate outfitters for hunting different species of game, an outfitter-sponsored license may be used with a substitute licensed outfitter, in compliance with the affirmations under subsection (4), upon advance written notification to the board by the sponsoring licensed outfitter or the substitute outfitter"; deleted former (7) and (8) that read: "(7) Any permits or tags secured as a result of obtaining a Class B-10 or Class B-11 license through an outfitter sponsor are valid only when hunting is conducted with a licensed outfitter.

(8) The department shall make the reserved outfitter-sponsored Class B-10 and Class B-11 licenses that remain unsold available as provided in 87-1-268"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2011.

2005 Amendment: (Version effective March 1, 2006) Chapter 470 inserted (10) regarding sale of Class B-13 licenses. Amendment effective March 1, 2006.

Termination Provision Deleted: Sections 2 and 3, Ch. 235, L. 2005, amended sec. 6, Ch. 544, L. 1999, and sec. 18, Ch. 459, L. 1995, removing the provision that terminated amendments to this section March 1, 2006. Effective April 15, 2005.

1999 Amendment: (Temporary version) Chapter 544 in (3) inserted second, third, fourth, and fifth sentences requiring department to issue licenses to applicant sponsored by resident owner of 640 or more acres if licenses sufficient, requiring issuance of licenses to second applicant for sponsor, requiring drawing for remaining resident-sponsored licenses, and requiring drawing when number of licenses insufficient and in sixth sentence decreased number of sponsorship certificates from 20 to 15 and after "year" deleted "prior to expiration of the moratorium established in 37-47-315, after which no more than 10 certificates of sponsorship may be submitted in any license year"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 29, 1999.

1995 Amendments: Chapter 328 in (1), after "applicants", substituted "using" for "indicating their intent to use"; in (2), near beginning, substituted "resident-sponsored license" for "reserved license", after "affirmation" inserted "by the applicant", after "hunt with" deleted "a licensed outfitter or", after "name of the" deleted "licensed outfitter or", after "signed by a" deleted "licensed outfitter or", and at end substituted "the resident sponsor will" for "the outfitter or resident will"; in (2)(b) inserted reference to resident sponsor; in (2)(c), at end, inserted reference to Title 37, chapter 47; inserted (4) relating to outfitter-sponsored license; inserted (5) relating to substitute outfitter; adjusted subsection references; and made minor changes in style.

Chapter 459 in temporary version in (1) substituted "a number" for "5,600", after "Class B-10" inserted "and Class B-11", and substituted "as determined under 87-1-268" for "and 2,000 Class B-11 licenses"; in (2)(b), pursuant to sec. 15(2), Ch. 459, L. 1995, a coordination section, substituted "the resident sponsor" for "the outfitter or resident"; in (3) inserted second sentence regarding limitation of submission of certificates of sponsorship; inserted (6) regarding limitation on deer hunting; inserted (7) regarding validity of permits or tags; in (8) inserted "outfitter-sponsored", after "remain unsold" deleted "on April 15", and substituted reference to 87-1-268 for "to nonresident applicants without restriction as to hunting with a licensed outfitter or resident sponsor"; in (9), after "subsection (1)", deleted "and all unsold reserved licenses available under subsection (4)"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment terminates October 1, 2001.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 459, L. 1995, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana has a cherished hunting heritage based on a deep knowledge of and respect for wildlife and the land; and 87-2-521. Class D-3—resident hound training license.

Compiler's Comments

2011 Amendment: Chapter 258 at end substituted "87-6-404(4)" for "87-3-124(3)(c)". Amendment effective October 1, 2011.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 258, L. 2011, provided: "WHEREAS, the 2007 Legislature passed House Joint Resolution No. 16, urging that revision of the criminal codes within Title 87 of the Montana Code Annotated be given priority; and

WHEREAS, House Joint Resolution No. 16 noted that practitioners, judges, and citizens find that the criminal codes intertwined within the fish and game laws in Title 87 are difficult to read, understand, and prosecute; and

WHEREAS, House Joint Resolution No. 16 directed that revision of the Title 87 criminal code should not include policy changes to current laws and should adhere to the intent of the legislatures that crafted the laws; and

WHEREAS, in 2008, the Director of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks appointed a Title 87 criminal code revision working group, consisting of Justices of the Peace, County Attorneys, an Assistant Attorney General, legal counsel and the enforcement administrator of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, and legislative staff; and

WHEREAS, the working group met numerous times and spent countless hours crafting a revision that makes the Title 87 criminal code more understandable without making substantive or policy changes to present law; and

WHEREAS, revision of the fish and game criminal statutes will benefit the hunting and fishing public, magistrates, and prosecutors by codifying crimes and penalties in a separate chapter of Montana law, rather than being intertwined throughout Title 87."

Severability: Section 132, Ch. 258, L. 2011, was a severability clause.

Effective Date: Section 4, Ch. 126, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] is effective on passage and approval." Approved March 26, 2003.

87-2-522. Class B-13—nonresident youth big game combination license.

Compiler's Comments

2015 Amendment: Chapter 449 in (1) in middle after "Class B-10 nonresident big game combination license" deleted "plus the nonresident hunting access enhancement fee in 87-2-202(3)(d)"; in (2) in middle after "Class B-11" deleted "or Class B-15"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2016.

2013 Amendment: Chapter 104 in (2) near middle substituted "Class B-7, Class B-10, Class B-11, or Class B-15 license" for "nonresident Class B-10 or Class B-11 combination license". Amendment effective October 1, 2013.

2011 Amendment: Chapter 183 in (3) deleted former first sentence that read: "Not more than 300 Class B-13 licenses are authorized for sale each license year." Amendment effective March 1, 2012.

Effective Date: Section 6, Ch. 470, L. 2005, provided: "[This act] is effective March 1, 2006."

2013 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 13 inserted (2) regarding 24-hour waiting period; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective February 13, 2013.

Chapter 297 inserted (2) regarding 24-hour waiting period; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 25, 2013.

Severability: Section 8, Ch. 297, L. 2013, was a severability clause.

2011 Amendment: Chapter 390 inserted (2) regarding deposit of fees; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2011.

Severability: Section 8, Ch. 390, L. 2011, was a severability clause.

Contingent Effective Date: Section 8(2), Ch. 415, L. 2007, provided that this section is effective upon notification by the U.S. fish and wildlife service to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks that the wolf has been formally removed from the federal threatened or endangered species list and upon removal of the wolf from the state endangered species list by the department of fish, wildlife, and parks. The contingency occurred when the Northern Rocky Mountain gray wolf was removed from the federal list of threatened and endangered species by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service through the adoption of a rule effective May 4, 2009. The wolf was removed from the state endangered species list on the effective date of that rule.

District Court Ruling — Effect on Delisting of Northern Rocky Mountain Gray Wolf: On August 5, 2010, District Judge Donald Molloy reversed the delisting of the Northern Rocky Mountain gray wolf by issuing a ruling ordering that the April 2, 2009, Final Rule to Identify the Northern Rocky Mountain Population of Gray Wolf as a Distinct Population Segment, 74 Fed. Reg. 15123, which removed the Endangered Species Act's protection of wolves except in Wyoming, is vacated and set aside. Judge Molloy's ruling stated that the whole Northern Rocky Mountain gray wolf population must be protected, not just those in Wyoming, and that the federal Fish and Wildlife Service's delisting of the wolf in only Montana and Idaho as a solution to the legal problem

Termination Provision Repealed: Section 2, Ch. 107, L. 2013, repealed sec. 4, Ch. 345, L. 2009, which terminated this section March 1, 2014. Effective March 28, 2013.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 345, L. 2009, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana's hunting heritage is promoted when families can continue to hunt together; and

WHEREAS, members of many Montana families have been required to move out of state to pursue expanded employment opportunities; and

WHEREAS, it can be difficult for these adult nonresident family members to draw a nonresident license in order to come back to Montana to hunt with their families; and

WHEREAS, there is a need for new revenue to address public land access concerns because access to public land for hunting is becoming increasingly difficult to obtain as traditional routes across private land are closed to public hunters; and

WHEREAS, creating a temporary new pool of nonresident licenses dedicated to former residents who desire to return to Montana to hunt with their families and directing the revenue from those licenses to fund public access to inaccessible public land would assist in strengthening both aspects of Montana's hunting heritage; and

WHEREAS, statistics compiled by the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks will provide a measurement of the success of the pilot program to provide more opportunities for former residents to come back home to hunt and to determine whether the license and the associated public land access efforts have resulted in a net increase or decrease in hunting opportunities for resident hunters."

Effective Date: Section 3, Ch. 345, L. 2009, provided that this section is effective March 1, 2010.

Termination: Section 4, Ch. 345, L. 2009, provided: "[This act] terminates March 1, 2014."

Part 6 Trapping Licenses

Part Administrative Rules

Title 12, chapter 6, subchapter 10, ARM Trapping.

Part Case Notes

Constitutionality: The disparity in the treatment of residents and nonresidents under 87-2-505 is not an unconstitutional discrimination because it infringes upon no fundamental rights and therefore does not violate the due process or equal protection clauses; nor is the right to hunt for sport a privilege or immunity of citizens of the several states that Montana is required to grant equally to residents and nonresidents under Art. IV, sec. 2, U.S. Const. Mont. Outfitters Action Group v. Fish & Game Comm'n, 417 F. Supp. 1005 (D.C. Mont. 1976), affirmed in Baldwin v. Fish & Game Comm'n, 436 US 371, 56 L Ed 2d 354, 98 S Ct 1852 (1978).

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Right to Trap on Streams Not Governed by Stream Access Law: The right to trap fur-bearing animals between the ordinary high-water marks of a stream is not governed by Title 23, ch. 2, part 3, but rather is dependent upon whether the trapper has license, invitation, or privilege to enter or remain upon land and whether the trapper has secured a license to trap. 41 A.G. Op. 36 (1985).

Chapter 592 inserted (3) concerning fees for special elk permit. Amendment effective March 1, 1992.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 592, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, an increase in Montana hunting and fishing license fees is necessary to raise revenue in order for the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to meet an anticipated revenue shortfall."

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 358, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is provided for this bill because the legislature is aware that increasing elk populations are of concern to private landowners who are impacted by increased numbers of elk on their property. This legislation is not intended to replace the Class A-7 antlerless elk license but is intended to provide flexibility to solve problems that might arise for both landowners and sportsmen regarding surplus antlerless elk. The legislature encourages the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] and the department of fish, wildlife, and parks to utilize the Class A-7 antlerless elk license whenever practical."

2005 Amendment: (Version effective March 1, 2006) Chapter 585 near middle increased fee from $8 to $10. Amendment effective March 1, 2006.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 417 near middle, after "holder to", deleted "pursue" and after "hunt" deleted "shoot, and kill"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1991 Amendment: Increased Class A-2 license fee from $7 to $8. Amendment effective March 1, 1992.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 592, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, an increase in Montana hunting and fishing license fees is necessary to raise revenue in order for the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to meet an anticipated revenue shortfall."

1987 Amendment: Near middle of section increased fee from $6 to $7. Amendment effective March 1, 1988.

Composite Unnecessary: This section was amended by Ch. 220 and Ch. 478, L. 1979, but the Code Commissioner chose the language of Ch. 478 over that of Ch. 220 because the language "or any special license" added to the specific listing of licenses by Ch. 220 was obviated by the deletion of references to specific licenses in favor of a general, all-inclusive reference to "a valid hunting license for which a special archery season is set by the department" by Ch. 478.

2015 Amendment: (Both versions) Chapter 449 in (1) at beginning inserted exception clause; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 8, 2015.

(Version effective March 1, 2016) In (1)(a) near middle after "$70" deleted "plus the resident hunting access enhancement fee provided for in 87-2-202(3)(c)" and near end substituted "87-2-817(2), upon payment of the resident base hunting license fee provided for in 87-2-116" for "87-2-803(12), upon payment of the resident hunting access enhancement fee provided for in 87-2-202(3)(c)"; and in (1)(b) after "Class A-6" substituted "tag" for "license" and at end after "$85" deleted "plus the resident hunting access enhancement fee provided for in 87-2-202(3)(c)". Amendment effective March 1, 2016.

2007 Amendment: Chapter 406 in (1)(a) near end substituted "payment of the resident hunting access enhancement fee" for "payment of $29, plus the resident hunting access enhancement fee". Amendment effective May 3, 2007.

2005 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 573 in (1)(a) at end inserted provision allowing an eligible service member to obtain a combination license upon payment of a $29 fee and the hunting access enhancement fee; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 2, 2005.

(Version effective March 1, 2006) Chapter 585 in (1)(a) near beginning increased fee from $54 to $70; and in (1)(b) near beginning increased fee from $64 to $85. Amendment effective March 1, 2006.

Termination Provision Repealed: Section 4, Ch. 235, L. 2005, repealed sec. 9, Ch. 216, L. 2001, that terminated amendments to this section March 1, 2006. Effective April 15, 2005.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 216 in (1)(a) after "$54" and in (1)(b) after "$64" inserted "plus the resident hunting access enhancement fee in 87-2-202(3)(c)". Amendment effective March 1, 2002, and terminates March 1, 2006.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 216, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, the Private Land/Public Wildlife Advisory Council is charged with the responsibility to make suggestions for funding, modification, or improvement of the hunting access enhancement program; and

WHEREAS, although the hunting access enhancement program has enjoyed considerable success to date in providing greater opportunities for Montana hunters, the Private Land/Public Wildlife Advisory Council recognizes the potential to increase hunting access through expansion of the program; and

WHEREAS, increasing the size of the current program through a once-a-season hunting access enhancement fee on resident and most nonresident hunters would provide revenue to allow greater landowner incentives, improve hunting access to private and public lands, improve program management and services, increase upland bird hunting opportunities, and provide for future increased program costs because of inflation."

1999 Amendment: Chapter 533 in (1) after "who" substituted "is" for "will be" and after "older" substituted "or who will turn 12 years old before or during" for "before September 15 of"; in (1)(a) and (1)(b) after "holder" inserted "who is 12 years of age or older"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2000.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 187 in (2), after "department", substituted "may" for "shall"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1998.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 263 in (1)(a) of March 1, 1996, version, after "$54", deleted "beginning March 1, 1992, and $64 beginning March 1, 1994, shall be entitled to"; in version effective March 1, 2006, substituted "$54" for "$64"; in both versions: in (1)(a) and (2) substituted "combination sports license" for "sportsman's license"; in (1)(a), after "A-5", deleted "A-6"; inserted (1)(b) regarding combination sports license; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1996.

The effect of the amendment was to render the March 1, 1996, version and the March 1, 2006, version identical. Accordingly, the Code Commissioner has not separately published the version effective March 1, 2006.

Extension of Termination Date: Section 1, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006. Section 2, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006. The extension of the termination date made by Ch. 241, L. 1993, was rendered meaningless by the amendments made by Ch. 263, L. 1995.

1991 Amendment: (Version effective March 1, 1992) Increased sportsman's license fee from $45.50 to $54 beginning March 1, 1992, and to $64 beginning March 1, 1994.

(Version effective March 1, 1996) Increased sportsman's license fee from $38.50 to $64. Amendments effective March 1, 1992.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 592, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, an increase in Montana hunting and fishing license fees is necessary to raise revenue in order for the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to meet an anticipated revenue shortfall."

Extension of Termination Date: Section 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 1996. Amendment effective April 2, 1991.

1989 Amendment: Changed "$45" to "$45.50". Amendment effective July 1, 1989. Section 9, Ch. 601, L. 1989, amended sec. 8, Ch. 636, L. 1987, to increase the fee from "$38" to "$38.50" after March 1, 1994.

Applicability: Section 11, Ch. 601, L. 1989, provided that this section applies to licenses for fishing seasons that begin on or after March 1, 1990.

1987 Amendments: Chapter 598 increased fee from $36 to $45 from March 1, 1988, to March 1, 1994.

1985 Amendment: Increased license fee from $35 to $36 effective March 1, 1986.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 349 in last sentence of (2), after "report", deleted "to each legislature concerning" and after "proceeds" inserted "to the office of budget and program planning as a part of the information required by 17-7-111".

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 282 (Ch. 414, L. 1985) provided: "House Bill No. 282 requires a statement of intent because section 1 [87-2-722] authorizes the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] to establish rules for the use of the license to be auctioned and for the conduct of the auction.

It is the intent of the legislature that the commission, in drafting rules, shall consult with other states such as Wyoming, Utah, and Nevada which have similar legislation. The commission shall strive to maximize the revenue generated by the auction, and to that end shall select the method of auction which it perceives will best attain that objective.

Because revenue from the auction of the license is not predictable, it is the intent of the legislature that the department shall use such money only for special projects related to mountain sheep research, management, and habitat improvement, and such funds may not be budgeted or used in place of funds regularly appropriated by the legislature for mountain sheep related purposes."

Part 8Exceptions to License Requirements*Part Case Notes

Constitutionality: The disparity in the treatment of residents and nonresidents under 87-2-505 is not an unconstitutional discrimination because it infringes upon no fundamental rights and therefore does not violate the due process or equal protection clauses; nor is the right to hunt for sport a privilege or immunity of citizens of the several states that Montana is required to grant equally to residents and nonresidents under Art. IV, sec. 2, U.S. Const. Mont. Outfitters Action Group v. Fish & Game Comm'n, 417 F. Supp. 1005 (D.C. Mont. 1976), affirmed in *Baldwin v. 87-2-801. Licenses for residents over 62 years of age.Compiler's Comments

2015 Amendment: Chapter 449 substituted current text concerning residents over age 62 for former section that read: "(1) A resident, as defined in 87-2-102, who is 62 years of age or older is entitled to fish and hunt game birds, not including wild turkeys, with a conservation license issued by the department. The form of the license must be prescribed by the department."

(2) A resident who is 62 years of age or older is also entitled to purchase a Class A-3 deer A tag for $10 and a Class A-5 elk tag for $12.

(3) Regardless of age, a resident, as defined in 87-2-102, or a nonresident who is a legion of valor member is entitled to fish with a conservation license issued by the department.

(4) Regardless of age, a resident, as defined in 87-2-102, who has been awarded a purple heart for service in the armed forces of the United States is entitled to fish and hunt game birds, not including wild turkeys, with a conservation license issued by the department.

(5) Regardless of age, a nonresident who has been awarded a purple heart for service in the armed forces of the United States is entitled to fish and hunt game birds, not including wild turkeys, with a conservation license issued by the department during expeditions arranged for the nonresident by a nonprofit organization that uses fishing and hunting as part of the rehabilitation of disabled veterans.

(6) The department's general license account must be reimbursed by a quarterly transfer of funds from the general fund to the general license account for license costs associated with the fishing and game bird hunting privileges granted pursuant to subsections (4) and (5) during the preceding calendar quarter. Reimbursement costs must be designated as license revenue." Amendment effective March 1, 2016.

Annotator's Note: Section 87-2-816 is a recodification of text formerly contained in 87-2-801.

2007 Amendment: Chapter 452 inserted (4) and (5) granting fishing and game bird license privileges to certain purple heart recipients; and inserted (6) providing reimbursement to the department for the costs associated with the purple heart license privileges. Amendment effective May 8, 2007.

2005 Amendment: (Version effective March 1, 2006) Chapter 585 in (1) in first sentence after “birds” inserted “not including wild turkeys”; in (2) after “purchase” substituted “a Class A-3 deer A tag for $10 and a Class A-5 elk tag for $12” for “regular resident deer and elk tags at a price that is one-half of the fee paid by a resident who is 15 years old or older and who is under 62 years of age”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2006.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 35 inserted (3) allowing a legion of valor member to fish with a conservation license; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 35, L. 1999, provided: “WHEREAS, the Legion of Valor is composed of recipients of the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Army Distinguished Service Cross, the Navy Cross, and the Air Force Cross; and

WHEREAS, members of the Legion of Valor have bravely served their country above and beyond the call of duty; and

WHEREAS, there are approximately 800 members of the Legion of Valor, 5 of whom reside in Montana; and

WHEREAS, pursuant to Article II, section 35, of the Montana Constitution, special considerations that the Legislature may give the five Montana Legion of Valor members should be extended to their distinguished out-of-state colleagues; and

WHEREAS, the people of Montana can show their appreciation to these medal recipients by allowing resident and nonresident Legion of Valor members to fish with a conservation license issued by the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks.”

1983 Amendment: In (2), changed “65” to “62” in two places and before “one-half” deleted “no more than”.

1981 Amendment: Deleted “for a fee of $1” after “by the department” at the end of the first sentence of (1); added (2) providing discounted fee for persons over 65.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 54 in (2) near beginning after “facilities and” substituted “assisted living” for “personal-care”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 491 in (1) in first sentence near middle after “residents of all” deleted “correctional facilities and”, after “under the jurisdiction of” deleted “the department of corrections and”, and after “health and human services” deleted “except the Montana state prison at Deer Lodge or the Montana women’s prison”. Amendment effective April 27, 1999.

Saving Clause: Section 24, Ch. 491, L. 1999, was a saving clause.

1997 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 77 inserted (2) requiring the Department to allow supervised residents of licensed long-term care facilities, nursing care facilities, personal care facilities, and community homes for persons with disabilities to fish without a license upon annual application by facility managers or directors; and made minor changes in style.

Chapter 189 near middle of first sentence of (1), after “all”, inserted “correctional facilities and” and near end substituted “Montana women’s prison, may” for “women’s correctional system, will be entitled to”.

Style changes in the chapters were slightly different. In each case, the codifier chose the more appropriate.

Applicability: Section 2, Ch. 77, L. 1997, provided: “[Section 1] [87-2-802] applies to license years beginning March 1, 1998.”

1995 Amendment: Chapter 546 near middle of first sentence substituted “department of corrections and the department of public health and human services” for “department of corrections and human services” and after “Deer Lodge” inserted “or the women’s correctional system”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Saving Clause: Section 571, Ch. 546, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1991 Amendment — Instructions to Code Commissioner: The Code Commissioner changed “department of institutions” to “department of corrections and human services”, pursuant to sec. 1, Ch. 262, L. 1991, directing the Code Commissioner to make the change wherever necessary in the Montana Code Annotated. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

87-2-803. Licenses for persons with disabilities — definitions.Compiler's Comments

2015 Amendment: Chapter 449 in (1) near beginning after "Persons with disabilities" substituted "who" for "are entitled to fish and to hunt game birds, not including turkeys, with only a conservation license if they", after "departmental rule" inserted "may purchase the following for one-half the cost", and inserted (1)(a), (1)(b), (1)(c), and (1)(d) concerning licenses and tags that can be purchased for one-half cost; in (2) in two places after "game bird license" inserted "deer tag, or elk tag" and in middle after "to a refund for" inserted "one-half of the cost of"; deleted former (2) that read: "(2) A resident of Montana who is certified as disabled by the department and who is not residing in an institution may purchase a Class A-3 deer A tag for $6.50 and a Class A-5 elk tag for $8. A person who has purchased a conservation license and a resident deer license or resident elk license for a particular license year and who is subsequently certified as disabled is entitled to a refund for the deer license or elk license previously purchased and reissuance of the license for that license year at the rate established in this subsection"; deleted former (5) that read: "(5) A veteran or a disabled member of the armed forces who meets the qualifications in subsection (9) as a result of a combat-connected injury may apply at a fish, wildlife, and parks office for a regular Class A-3 deer A tag, a Class A-4 deer B tag, a Class B-7 deer A tag, a Class B-8 deer B tag, and a special antelope license at one-half the license fee. Fifty licenses of each license type must be made available annually. Licenses issued to veterans or disabled members of the armed forces under this part do not count against the number of special antelope licenses reserved for people with permanent disabilities, as provided in 87-2-706"; in (6)(a) substituted current last sentence for "An applicant for a license under this subsection need not obtain a wildlife conservation license as a prerequisite to licensure"; deleted former (12) and (13) that read: "(12) (a) A Montana resident who is a member of the Montana national guard or the federal reserve as provided in 10 U.S.C. 10101 or who was otherwise engaged in active duty and who participated in a contingency operation as provided in 10 U.S.C. 101(a)(13) that required the member to serve at least 2 months outside of the state, upon request and upon presentation of the documentation described in subsection (12)(b), must be issued a free resident wildlife conservation license or a Class AAA resident combination sports license, which may not include a bear license, upon payment of the resident hunting access enhancement fee provided for in 87-2-202(3)(c), in the license year that the member returns from military service or in the year following the member's return, based on the member's election, and in any of the 4 years after the member's election. A member who participated in a contingency operation after September 11, 2001, that required the member to serve at least 2 months outside of the state may make an election in 2007 or in the year following the member's return, based on the member's election, and in any of the 4 years after the member's election and be entitled to a free resident wildlife conservation license or a free Class AAA resident combination sports license in the year of election and in any of the 4 years after the member's election.

(b) To be eligible for the free resident wildlife conservation license or free Class AAA resident combination sports license provided for in subsection (12)(a), an applicant shall, in addition to the written application and proof of residency required in 87-2-202(1), provide to any regional department office or to the department headquarters in Helena, by mail or in person, the member's DD form 214 verifying the member's release or discharge from active duty. The applicant is responsible for providing documentation showing that the applicant participated in a contingency operation as provided in 10 U.S.C. 101(a)(13).

(c) A Montana resident who meets the service qualifications of subsection (12)(a) and the documentation required in subsection (12)(b) is entitled to a free Class A resident fishing license in the license year that the member returns from military service or in the year following the member's return, based on the member's election, and in any of the 4 years after the member's election.

(d) The department's general license account must be reimbursed by a quarterly transfer of funds from the general fund to the general license account for costs associated with the free licenses granted pursuant to this subsection (12) during the preceding calendar quarter. Reimbursement costs must be designated as license revenue.

(13) A member of the armed forces who forfeited a license or permit issued through a drawing as a result of deployment outside of the continental United States in support of a contingency operation as provided in 10 U.S.C. 101(a)(13) is guaranteed the same license or permit, without additional fee, upon application in the year of the member's return from deployment or in the first year that the license or permit is made available after the member's return"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2016.

Annotator's Note: Section 87-2-817 is a recodification of text formerly contained in 87-2-803.

2013 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 70 in (5) in two places after references to veteran inserted references to disabled member of the armed forces. Amendment effective October 1, 2013.

Chapter 397 in (1) in last sentence substituted "2014" for "2000"; in (3) substituted "meets the requirements of" for "establishes one or more of the disabilities pursuant to"; inserted (9) concerning certification to hunt from a vehicle; deleted former (9) that read: "(9) A person is entitled to a permit to hunt from a vehicle if the person:

(a) is certified by a licensed physician, a licensed chiropractor, an advanced practice registered nurse, or a licensed physician assistant to be dependent on an oxygen device or dependent on a wheelchair, crutch, or cane for mobility;

(b) is an amputee above the wrist or ankle; or

(c) is certified by a licensed physician, a licensed chiropractor, an advanced practice registered nurse, or a licensed physician assistant to be unable to walk, unassisted, 600 yards over rough and broken ground while carrying 15 pounds within 1 hour and to be unable to handle and maneuver up to 25 pounds"; and in (10) after "Certification" deleted "by a licensed physician, a licensed chiropractor, an advanced practice registered nurse, or a licensed physician assistant". Amendment effective March 1, 2014.

2009 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 193 inserted (13) guaranteeing a member of the armed forces who forfeited a special hunting license or permit as a result of deployment outside the U.S. the same special license after the member's return. Amendment effective October 1, 2009.

Chapter 352 in (9)(a), (9)(c), and (10) after "physician" inserted "a licensed chiropractor"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 24, 2009.

2007 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 102 inserted (4)(a)(iii) allowing disabled to hunt from properly marked off-highway vehicle or snowmobile; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2008.

Chapter 136 in (9)(a), (9)(c), and (10) near beginning after "licensed physician" inserted "an advanced practice registered nurse, or a licensed physician assistant"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 5, 2007.

Chapter 137 in (3) deleted former second and third sentences that read: "The department shall adopt rules to establish a voluntary board or boards of review to resolve any disputes over whether a person meets the criteria established in subsection (9). Each board must have at least one Montana-licensed physician as a member"; in (11) at beginning inserted "The department or", after "determination of" inserted "disability or", and at end after "review by" substituted "the board of medical examiners pursuant to 37-3-203" for "a voluntary board of review pursuant to subsection (3)"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 5, 2007.

Chapter 406 in (12)(a) in first sentence decreased member's service time from 6 months to 2 months, after "bear license" substituted "upon payment of the resident hunting access enhancement fee" for "for $29, plus the resident hunting access enhancement fee", and at end substituted "in any of the 4 years after the member's election" for "in the license year after the member's election" and in second sentence after "operation" substituted "after September 11, 2001" for "between September 11, 2001, and February 28, 2006", decreased member's service time from 6 months to 2 months, after "election in" deleted "2006 or", after "2007" inserted "or in the year following the member's return, based on the member's election, and in any of the 4 years after the member's election", after "license" substituted "or a free Class AAA" for "or a $25 Class AAA", and near end after "election and" substituted "in any of the 4 years" for "the license year"; in (12)(b) in first sentence after "license" substituted "or free Class AAA" for "or reduced-rate Class AAA"; inserted (12)(c) providing that Montana resident who meets service qualifications and documentation is entitled to free Class AAA resident fishing license in license year member returns from military service or year following member's return and in any of 4 years after member's election; and inserted (12)(d) requiring reimbursement of general license account by quarterly transfer of funds from general fund for costs associated with free licenses granted and requiring reimbursement costs to be designated as license revenue. Amendment effective May 3, 2007.

2005 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 542 in (4) in first sentence after "defined in" substituted "61-1-101" for "61-1-202". Amendment effective January 1, 2006.

Chapter 556 inserted (5) excepting class A-3, A-4, B-7, and B-8 and special antelope licenses issued to certain disabled combat veterans from numerical license limits; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2005.

Chapter 573 inserted (12) entitling certain military members to a free resident conservation license or a reduced fee combination license for a year and providing eligibility requirements; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 2, 2005.

(Version effective March 1, 2006) Chapter 585 in (2) in first sentence after "purchase" substituted "a Class A-3 deer A tag for $6.50 and a Class A-5 elk tag for $8" for "regular resident deer and elk licenses at one-half the fee paid by a resident who is 15 years of age or older and who is under 62 years of age"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2006.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 248 throughout section substituted "permitholder" for "person with a disability"; in (1) in first sentence after "game birds" inserted "not including turkeys" and inserted third sentence concerning certified disabled hunter hunting from vehicle in subsequent years; in (3) substituted first sentence concerning hunter being certified as disabled for "A resident or nonresident person with a disability who is certified as disabled by the department and who is not residing in an institution may carry a permit on a form prescribed by the department. A person with a disability who is issued a permit under this subsection is entitled to have the department stamp the permit with "Permission to Hunt From a Vehicle" if the person establishes to the satisfaction of the department that the person has substantially impaired mobility" and at end of second sentence substituted "subsection (8)" for "this subsection"; in (4) in first sentence after "permit" substituted "to hunt from a vehicle, referred to in this subsection as a permitholder" for "as required in subsection (3), upon which is stamped "Permission to Hunt From a Vehicle"", at beginning of third sentence substituted "permitholder" for "person with a disability who hunts as authorized in this subsection", and at end of last sentence inserted "or as prescribed by the department"; in (7) deleted definitions of permanently physically handicapped person and substantially impaired mobility that read: "(b) "permanently physically handicapped person" means a disabled person as defined in subsection (7)(a) except for a person with a disability that is due to mental retardation or mental illness;

(c) "substantially impaired mobility" means, with respect to a disabled person, that the person is nonambulatory or virtually unable to move on foot. The board or boards of review established pursuant to subsection (3) shall resolve any disputes regarding whether a person meets the criteria for having substantially impaired mobility"; inserted (8) establishing conditions for receiving a permit to hunt from a vehicle; inserted (9) concerning certification by physician; inserted (10) concerning review of eligibility by voluntary board; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 16, 2001.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 382 in (1) inserted last sentence allowing refund for fishing license or game bird license for person disabled during license year; in (2) inserted last sentence allowing refund for deer license or elk license for person disabled during license year; in (3) at end of second sentence substituted "that the person has substantially impaired mobility" for "that the person is nonambulatory and has a permanent physical disability or that the person's mobility is substantially impaired" and inserted last two sentences granting rulemaking authority for establishment of review boards to resolve disputes; in (4) in three places substituted "person with a disability" for "hunter with a disability"; in (5)(a) substituted "experiencing blindness" for "suffering from blindness"; inserted (5)(b) allowing issuance of deer and elk licenses to persons experiencing blindness and requiring blind hunter to be accompanied by companion; inserted (6) requiring adoption of rules regarding companions and companions as designated shooters; in (7) inserted (a) defining disabled person or person with disability, inserted (b) defining permanently physically handicapped person, and inserted (c) defining substantially impaired mobility; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

1997 Amendments: Chapter 42 in (5) substituted "certified by the department as suffering from blindness, as defined in 53-7-301" for "certified by the department as a blind individual, as defined in 53-7-301"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 12, 1997.

Chapter 472 throughout section substituted references to persons with disabilities for references to disabled persons; near end of (3) substituted "nonambulatory and has a permanent physical disability" for "permanently physically handicapped and nonambulatory"; in (4), in last sentence, substituted "persons with disabilities" for "the handicapped"; and made minor changes in style.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 417 in (4), near end of first sentence after "motorists or", deleted "may hunt by shooting a firearm from within a self-propelled or drawn vehicle" and in fourth sentence, after "hunter by", deleted "pursuing" and after "hunting" deleted "taking, shooting, or killing"; in (5), in second sentence after "fish", deleted "with hook and line or rod"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 49 at beginning of (3) substituted "A resident or nonresident disabled person who is certified as disabled by the department and who is not residing in an institution may" for "Such disabled persons shall"; in (4) inserted fourth sentence allowing assistance in taking a game animal by a hunting companion of disabled hunter; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective February 18, 1993.

1989 Amendment: Inserted (5) providing for a lifetime fishing license for the blind. Amendment effective February 24, 1989.

1985 Amendment: In (3) inserted second sentence allowing nonambulatory persons to hunt from a vehicle; and inserted (4) relating to hunting by nonambulatory persons from a vehicle.

1983 Amendment: In (1), after "entitled to" substituted "fish and to hunt game birds with only a conservation license" for "fish without a license" and after "certified as disabled", substituted "as prescribed by departmental rule" for "by a medical doctor licensed to practice medicine in Montana"; substituted (2) (see 1983 Session Law) for former (2), which read: "Disability is defined as a physical or mental condition that prevents a person from doing any substantial gainful work that is expected to last for the rest of his life."

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 402 (Ch. 169, L. 1983), first adopted by the House Fish and Game Committee, read: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it delegates rulemaking authority to the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks. Section 2 of the bill [amending 87-2-803] authorizes the department to make rules concerning disabled persons and exemptions to fishing and game bird license requirements."

The legislature contemplates that the rules should address the following subjects as well as others:

(1) A definition of "disabled" as it applies to persons meeting license requirements for fishing and hunting game birds and qualifying for the one-half fee deer and elk licenses;

(2) Documents that would, of themselves, be adequate certification of disability."

2001 Amendment: Chapter 49 in (3)(e) inserted first sentence authorizing certain youth to use youth combination sports license and near beginning of second sentence after "A person who" deleted "is 18 years of age or older who" and after "combination sports license" inserted "purchased after the person reaches 18 years of age"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 16, 2001.

Termination Provision Repealed: Section 2, Ch. 49, L. 2001, repealed sec. 4, Ch. 568, L. 1999, which terminated the amendments to this section February 28, 2002. Effective March 16, 2001.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 568 in (1) inserted second sentence allowing resident minors 15 years of age to hunt migratory game birds with only a conservation license; inserted (3) establishing provisions of the youth combination sports license; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2000, and terminates February 28, 2002.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 568, L. 1999, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana's youth should be encouraged to take advantage of Montana's abundant outdoor recreational opportunities; and

WHEREAS, a person who learns early in life to fish and hunt responsibly and ethically is likely to continue that behavior throughout the person's life; and

WHEREAS, Montana's fishing and hunting heritage will be preserved for future generations as more youth are introduced to those sports; and

WHEREAS, providing an affordable combination license that allows a young person to fish and hunt upland game birds, deer, and elk will be an effective way to cultivate an appreciation for the state's wildlife resources among Montana's youth."

1985 Amendment: At beginning of (1) inserted "Resident"; and in (2) after "Class", deleted "A-1".

1983 Amendments: Chapter 169, in first sentence, substituted present language allowing minors 12 through 14 years old to fish and hunt birds with a conservation license for "Minors under 15 years of age may fish for and take fish during the open season without a license."; inserted second sentence of (1) allowing residents under 12 years of age to fish without a license; and in (2), substituted final clause after "A-5 licenses at" for "$2 per license".

Chapter 239, in (1), deleted "B-3" after "Class B".

The amendment to this section made by sec. 4, Ch. 134, L. 2011, was rendered void by sec. 122, Ch. 258, L. 2011, a coordination section.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 258, L. 2011, provided: “WHEREAS, the 2007 Legislature passed House Joint Resolution No. 16, urging that revision of the criminal codes within Title 87 of the Montana Code Annotated be given priority; and

WHEREAS, House Joint Resolution No. 16 noted that practitioners, judges, and citizens find that the criminal codes intertwined within the fish and game laws in Title 87 are difficult to read, understand, and prosecute; and

WHEREAS, House Joint Resolution No. 16 directed that revision of the Title 87 criminal code should not include policy changes to current laws and should adhere to the intent of the legislatures that crafted the laws; and

WHEREAS, in 2008, the Director of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks appointed a Title 87 criminal code revision working group, consisting of Justices of the Peace, County Attorneys, an Assistant Attorney General, legal counsel and the enforcement administrator of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, and legislative staff; and

WHEREAS, the working group met numerous times and spent countless hours crafting a revision that makes the Title 87 criminal code more understandable without making substantive or policy changes to present law; and

WHEREAS, revision of the fish and game criminal statutes will benefit the hunting and fishing public, magistrates, and prosecutors by codifying crimes and penalties in a separate chapter of Montana law, rather than being intertwined throughout Title 87.”

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 581 (Ch. 262, L. 1985) provided: “A statement of intent is necessary for this bill because section 1 [87-2-807] grants rulemaking authority to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks. It is the intent of the legislature that the department adopt rules providing for coordination with federal agencies in the issuance of avicultural permits and enforcement of conditions and restrictions imposed by the federal migratory game bird regulations.

The legislature intends that the department adopt rules addressing disposition of migratory game birds that remain the property of the state under the provisions of this bill. It is the further intent of the legislature that the department provide necessary guidelines for the issuance and exercise of avicultural permits not stated in the bill.”

Contingent Effective Date: Section 8(2), Ch. 415, L. 2007, provided that this section is effective upon notification by the U.S. fish and wildlife service to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks that the wolf has been formally removed from the federal threatened or endangered species list and upon removal of the wolf from the state endangered species list by the department of fish, wildlife, and parks. The contingency occurred when the Northern Rocky Mountain gray wolf was removed from the federal list of threatened and endangered species by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service through the adoption of a rule effective May 4, 2009. The wolf was removed from the state endangered species list on the effective date of that rule.

District Court Ruling — Effect on Delisting of Northern Rocky Mountain Gray Wolf: On August 5, 2010, District Judge Donald Molloy reversed the delisting of the Northern Rocky Mountain gray wolf by issuing a ruling ordering that the April 2, 2009, Final Rule to Identify the Northern Rocky Mountain Population of Gray Wolf as a Distinct Population Segment, 74 Fed. Reg. 15123, which removed the Endangered Species Act's protection of wolves except in Wyoming, is vacated and set aside. Judge Molloy's ruling stated that the whole Northern Rocky Mountain gray wolf population must be protected, not just those in Wyoming, and that the federal Fish and Wildlife Service's delisting of the wolf in only Montana and Idaho as a solution to the legal problem

1997 Amendment: Chapter 187 in (1), in third sentence, substituted reference to March 1 for reference to April 1; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1998.

1983 Amendment: In (1), at end of first sentence substituted "or other security as required by department rule" for "of $1,000 or in an amount equal to the value of the licenses, permits, and certificates received for distribution, the amount to be fixed at the discretion of the director".

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 434 (Ch. 534, L. 1983), which amended this section, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it grants rulemaking authority to the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to adopt rules to set deadlines for license receipts according to different classes of license agents and setting guidelines for allowing alternative forms of security for small volume license agents.

Section 2 of this bill [amending 87-2-903] proposes to allow the director of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to set deadlines for the license receipts according to different classes of license agents. The intent of this bill is to allow the director the flexibility to recognize that there are widely disparate kinds of license agents. In some sparsely populated areas, the license receipts for a given year are so few that the current monthly accounting requirement may be unrealistic. On the other hand, in heavily populated areas some license agents have extremely high monthly receipts, necessitating that the money be transferred promptly, on a monthly basis, to the Department. The Department contemplates rules that would have deadlines grounded in population base and historical demand in an area.

Section 1 of this bill [amending 87-2-902] proposes to change the security requirements for license agents. Currently, the law requires a minimum bond of $1,000. In reality, no bonding company gives a bond for only $1,000. The current industry standard is a minimum of $5,000. Many of the small license agents may carry a total inventory of licenses far below $5,000. In those instances, where the license agent does not stand to make a great deal of money on the license agency, the $5,000 bonding requirement may be unduly burdensome. The proposed amendment would allow the director to adjust the bonding requirement to the particular circumstance of a given license agent. For instance, a license agent with a large inventory would be obliged to provide a bond. A license agent with an inventory of less than $1,000 may be obliged to provide some other kind of security to ensure performance under the law. The Department anticipates promulgating rules that would allow alternative forms of security other than a bond for the small volume license agent."

2005 Amendment: Chapter 515 in (1) at end inserted "plus any additional amount as determined by rules adopted pursuant to subsection (9)"; inserted (2) authorizing credit card convenience fees; in (3) at end inserted "and convenience fee"; in (4) before "license" inserted "paper"; in (5) after "system" deleted "installation"; in (6) in first sentence substituted "protocol for" for "deadline for submission of license money by"; in (7) inserted "collection of any data or fee" and "issuance of any"; in (8) in first sentence after "appropriate" inserted "commission and convenience" and near end after "15-1-216" substituted "may" for "must"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2005.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 427 in (7) substituted "charged under 15-1-216" for "charged on late corporation license tax payments under 15-31-510". Amendment effective January 1, 2000.

Applicability: Section 57, Ch. 427, L. 1999, provided that this section applies to all tax periods beginning after December 31, 1999.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 187 in (1), after "services rendered", substituted "a commission of 50 cents for each transaction" for "the sum of 50 cents for each license, permit, or certificate issued" and deleted second sentence that read: "Each license agent shall submit to the department all duplicates of each class of licenses sold and shall accompany the duplicate licenses with all money received for the sale of the licenses, less the appropriate fee"; inserted (2) through (4) setting out additional conditions applicable to license agents; in (6), after "term", substituted "transaction" for "license", after "includes" inserted "the sale of", and before "certificate" substituted "or" for "and"; in (7), after "15-31-510", deleted "(2)"; and inserted (8) allowing the adoption of rules. Amendment effective March 1, 1998.

1997 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 187, L. 1997, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because 87-2-105(7) and 87-2-903(8) grant rulemaking authority to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks regarding standards applicable to license agents.

It is intended that the rules adopted pursuant to 87-2-105(7) address the methods by which a license agent determines proof of competency in hunter safety, particularly the competency of nonresidents who apply for a Montana hunting license. It is intended that the rules recognize that a person who takes a hunter safety course from a department-authorized instructor will be considered competent for licensing purposes.

It is intended that rules adopted pursuant to 87-2-903(8) address compensation, system installation fees, and duties of license agents."

1993 Amendment: Chapter 92 in (1), in first sentence after "sum of", deleted "40 cents for the 1992 license year"; in (3), near end of first sentence, substituted "15-31-510(2)" for "15-31-502"; and made minor changes in style.

Applicability: Section 4(1), Ch. 92, L. 1993, provided: "[This act] applies to tax years beginning after December 31, 1993."

Rulemaking Authority: Section 4(2), Ch. 92, L. 1993, provided: "The department of revenue may institute rulemaking under Title 2, chapter 4, to implement [this act] prior to October 1, 1993, but the rules may not be effective prior to October 1, 1993."

1991 Amendment: In first sentence of (1) increased sum for services from 30 cents to 40 cents for 1992 license year and to 50 cents thereafter and at end of second sentence, after "licenses less", substituted "the appropriate fee" for "a fee of 30 cents for each license sold". Amendment effective March 1, 1992.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 592, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, an increase in Montana hunting and fishing license fees is necessary to raise revenue in order for the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to meet an anticipated revenue shortfall."

1983 Amendment: In (1), in second sentence deleted "On or before the 10th day of each month" at the beginning and "during the preceding month" following "licenses sold", and inserted third sentence relating to classification of license agents and submission of license money; and inserted (3) relating to late submission of license money.

1983 Statement of Intent: See statement of intent attached to HB 434 (Ch. 534, L. 1983), set out in compiler's comments under 87-2-902.

1981 Amendment: Changed sum and fee in (1) from "15 cents" to "30 cents".

Chapter Case Notes

No Expectation of Privacy in Radio Conversation Held Over Public Airways: A game warden monitored Cotterell's two-way radio conversations held with his son while hunting. Cotterell asserted that, absent a warrant, the warden's surreptitious third-party electronic surveillance of the radio conversations was unlawful. The Supreme Court noted that it held in St. v. Goetz, 2008 MT 296, 345 M 421, 191 P3d 489 (2008), that warrantless electronic monitoring and recording of face-to-face conversations, even with the consent of one participant in the conversation, violates the other participant's right to privacy and the right to be free from unreasonable search and seizure. However, the initial inquiry under Goetz is to determine whether the electronic monitoring constitutes an unreasonable or unlawful search or seizure, and the factors in determining whether such a search or seizure occurred are whether the person challenging the state's action had an actual subjective expectation of privacy that society would recognize as objectively reasonable and the nature of the state's intrusion. In this case, Cotterell had no reasonable expectation of privacy. The electronic conversations were held using widely available hand-held radios over a public channel that could be monitored by anyone using the same equipment and thus could not be considered private. Absent a reasonable expectation of privacy, no search occurred and the warden did not need a warrant to monitor and record the conversations. St. v. Cotterell, 2008 MT 409, 347 M 231, 198 P3d 254 (2008).

Media Coverage of Search Involving Alleged Wildlife Violation Outside Scope of Warrant — Open Fields Doctrine and Invited Informer Doctrine Inapplicable: Federal agents who suspected a wildlife violation searched the Bergers' ranch pursuant to a search warrant and to a written contract with two national broadcasting networks authorizing the filming and recording of the search for broadcast on environmental television shows. After Berger was convicted of one misdemeanor count of improper use of a pesticide, he sued both the networks and the federal agents for violations of constitutional rights. On appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court held that activities conducted pursuant to the search were not authorized by the open fields doctrine, which allows law enforcement officers to obtain evidence while on privately owned open fields, because Berger had a reasonable expectation of privacy with regard to outbuildings that were photographed and because that doctrine does not authorize trespass by third parties. Further, the invited informer doctrine, which allows the use of informers with recording devices to obtain information as part of a good faith government investigation, did not apply in this instance because the recording of Berger's conversations was used to assist commercial television, not to further law enforcement objectives. Pursuant to the joint action test, the networks were considered to be acting under color of law and, as such, were liable for damages as government actors for contractually engaging in a search enterprise that only the government could lawfully institute for the mutual benefit of both private and governmental interests in publicity. The case was reversed for further consideration of Berger's state claims of trespass and intentional infliction of emotional distress. Berger v. Hanlon, 129 F3d 505 (9th Cir. 1997).

General Provisions

Part Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 272, L. 1999, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana's rivers are drawing people to the state to fish, float, and camp at an accelerating rate; and

WHEREAS, although the increasing popularity of Montana is beneficial to the state's economy, steps must be taken to ensure that escalating recreational use of natural resources does not degrade the resource, taint the experience, or threaten private property rights; and

WHEREAS, with the unparalleled scenery and the abundance of fish, osprey, bald eagles, deer, and other wildlife sustained by its waters, the Blackfoot River in western Montana offers recreationists a unique, pristine outdoor experience; and

WHEREAS, the same attributes that bring floaters, campers, and anglers to the banks of the Blackfoot River to visit have attracted Montana families to live, work, and recreate for over a hundred years; and

WHEREAS, increased use of the river has led to an increase in the frequency and intensity of conflicts among the landowner, the commercial outfitter, and the private recreationist, each of whom has a legitimate and legal interest in the Blackfoot River; and

WHEREAS, cooperation between private property owners and recreationists to resolve conflict along the Blackfoot River is not unprecedented; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature finds it appropriate and timely to direct the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to lead a comprehensive study of the Blackfoot River and its capacity to sustain recreational use, while ensuring that private property and water rights are retained with minimal conflict."

Blackfoot River Study: Section 1, Ch. 272, L. 1999, provided: "Blackfoot River study. (1) The department of fish, wildlife, and parks shall undertake a comprehensive study of the Blackfoot River, which may include ongoing department studies as well as findings derived from the draft Blackfoot River Recreation Management Direction of 1999.

(2) The study must address:

(a) the growing popularity of the Blackfoot River and ways to mitigate conflict among landowners, outfitters, and private recreationists;

(b) ways to protect the integrity of the river's resources, while continuing to accommodate recreational use;

(c) the amount and scope of use by recreationists that the river is capable of sustaining;

(d) easement, right-of-way, access, and trespass concerns between private landowners and public users of the river;

(e) the impact that heavy recreational use has on the river's fish, wildlife, streambanks, and water quality; and

(f) any other issue that the department determines needs to be examined in order to complete the study.

(3) During the course of the study, the department may enlist the assistance of the governor's consensus council, created pursuant to executive order, to organize discussions among all interested parties.

(4) The department shall report its findings and conclusions to the 57th legislature. The report must include but is not limited to:

(a) a suggested appropriate role for the department and the fish, wildlife, and parks commission in mitigating and mediating conflicts between recreationists and private landowners;

(b) the amount and type of use that is taking place on the river and how that use is changing from the historical recreational use of the river;

(c) the amount of use that the river is capable of sustaining before significant resource degradation occurs;

(d) a description of the amount, nature, and location of conflicts occurring on the river that have warranted intervention;

(e) the steps taken to ensure that landowners, outfitters, and members of the public were afforded the opportunity to comment and participate in the study; and

(f) suggested legislation or department rules, if either are warranted, to alleviate conflict, preserve the integrity of the resource, protect private property rights, and ensure continued high-quality fishing, camping, and floating for commercial and private recreational users."

1987 Amendment: In (1) deleted "fish" in two places from list of protected species; inserted (2) relating to adoption of rules by the Commission; and in (3) deleted "fish" after "game bird".

1987 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 346, L. 1987, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it grants rulemaking duties to the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] with regard to the awarding of prizes for the taking of protected fish in state waters. It is the intent of the legislature that the commission adopt rules that address an approval process for the conditions or operations of fishing tournaments, derbies, or contests in order to protect and preserve the fish resources in the state from potentially harmful practices or results of such events.

It is the intent of the legislature that the commission adopt rules that are designed to prevent adverse impacts on the fish resources. To accomplish the purpose, the commission may adopt rules that include but are not limited to:

(1) the duties of the department of fish, wildlife, and parks to recommend approval or disapproval of a tournament, derby, or contest or its conditions, based on sound wildlife conservation criteria;

(2) reporting requirements for the rules and conditions of a tournament, derby, or contest that awards a prize for the taking of fish;

(3) purse or participation limits for such events;

(4) time limits for reporting such events to obtain commission approval or disapproval; and

(5) details of the approval process, including any appeal process.

Notwithstanding the general rulemaking areas listed, it is the intent of the legislature to permit the commission to adopt rules that allow the commission enough flexibility to consider the merits of each tournament, derby, or contest on a case-by-case basis."

Part 4

Alternative Livestock Ranches

Part Administrative Rules

Title 12, chapter 6, subchapter 15, ARM Game farms.

Part Case Notes

Use of New Licensing Procedures Not Retroactive Application of Law and Not Violation of Department's Internal Policy: The Wallaces argued that the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks had violated the law by retroactively applying license approval criteria for game farm (now alternative livestock ranch) approval to them when they had filed their license application prior to 1993 legislative changes to the licensing law. The Wallaces also argued that the Department had not followed its own internal policies that required it to act on the application within 60 days of receipt. The Supreme Court held that the Department had correctly applied the new licensing criteria because a license is a privilege, not a vested right, the Department is required to comply with the law circumscribing its powers, and as a general rule, an agency is required to make its decisions on the law as it exists at the time that the decision is made, despite the fact that the law may have changed. The Supreme Court also held that the 60-day requirement to approve or disapprove a license application had been a statutory requirement under the previous law and had ceased to be a requirement when the amendments to the law became effective. Wallace v. Dept. of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, 269 M 364, 889 P2d 817, 52 St. Rep. 30 (1995). See also Harlem v. St. Highway Comm'n, 149 M 281, 425 P2d 718 (1967), and *Saint Vincent Hosp. v. Part Attorney General's Opinions

Wild Game Animals — Removal: When the fence of a game farm (now alternative livestock ranch) permittee encloses native wild big game animals, these animals remain the property of the state and may be hunted and taken only in compliance with state law. The state has no responsibility to remove the wild game animals from the enclosure. 38 A.G. Op. 68 (1980). Note: Portions of this opinion have been obviated by Ch. 570, L. 1983.

Game Harvesting — Game Ranch: The Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission) does not have the authority to regulate the hunting and killing of privately owned game through the imposition of licensing requirements on individual hunters or open and closed seasons. 36 A.G. Op. 112 (1976).

Case Notes

Transfer of Alternative Livestock to Unlicensed Tribal Lands Illegal: The Wallaces, licensed alternative livestock ranchers, sought to reduce the size of their elk herd by transferring about 500 elk to the Crow Indian Reservation for subsequent release into the wild. The elk had been certified as free of tuberculosis, brucellosis, and elk-red deer hybridization by the Department of Livestock (DOL). Despite notification by the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks (DFWP) that such an act violated state law, the Wallaces transferred 68 elk to the tribe. DFWP requested and received a permanent injunction prohibiting any further transfer of elk to the tribe, and the Wallaces appealed, questioning DFWP jurisdiction. The Supreme Court noted that DFWP has a statutory basis for its jurisdiction over the Wallaces as licensees. Based on DFWP jurisdiction over exterior fencing, and the Department’s knowledge that the elk would not be contained behind a game-proof fence upon delivery to the tribe, DFWP had statutory authority to seek the permanent injunction to prevent the transfer. Also, the introduction or transplantation of any wildlife into the wild, including game farm elk, requires the approval of DFWP. Further, 87-4-414 provides that alternative livestock may be kept only on a licensed alternative livestock ranch, and because the tribe is not a licensed facility under Montana law, neither DFWP nor DOL had authority to permit the transfer. The Wallaces knew that the elk were destined for an unlicensed location where they would be released into the wild and could migrate back into Montana, so the transfer violated the Wallaces’ duty as licensees to act in accordance with law, and the District Court correctly enjoined the transportation of the elk. Hagener v. Wallace, 2002 MT 109, 309 M 473, 47 P3d 847 (2002).

- (c) the alternative livestock ranch is not under quarantine by the department;
- (d) alternative livestock to be transferred are not prohibited under this part and department rules; and
- (e) the transfer is not proposed as a means to evade a requirement imposed on the licensee."

Amendment effective November 7, 2000.

Severability: Section 10, Initiative Measure No. 143, was a severability clause.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 574 throughout section substituted references to alternative livestock ranch for references to game farm; in (1) near beginning after "expires on" substituted "March 1" for "January 31"; in (2)(c) at end after "department" deleted "of livestock"; and in (2)(d) at beginning substituted "alternative livestock" for "game farm animals". Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 315 at end of (1) substituted "complied with all recording and reporting requirements" for "not violated any provisions under which the license was granted"; and substituted (2) regarding transferability of game farm license for former language that read: "A game farm license is nontransferable." Amendment effective April 12, 1993.

Case Notes

Initiative Prohibiting Fee Shooting on Game Farms Not Unconstitutional Taking: In 2000 Montana voters approved Initiative No. 143 prohibiting the shooting of alternative livestock on game farms for a fee. Plaintiff game farm owners claimed that the initiative constituted a taking of their private property by the state without compensation in violation of Art. II, sec. 29, Mont. Const., because it removed the expectation of profitability from their businesses. The District Court held that the initiative did not constitute a regulatory taking of compensable property interests in plaintiffs' lands and that plaintiffs were not entitled to compensation for damage to the goodwill and going concern value of their businesses. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed. Compensable property interests can exist in government-issued licenses or permits if the licenses or permits are free from express statutory language precluding the formation of a property right in combination with the presence of the right to transfer and the right to exclude. In this case, the state retained the power at all times to revoke or change plaintiffs' licenses if it chose to do so, so plaintiffs possessed no common-law property right to the licenses. Therefore, the licenses were not compensable property interests under Art. II, sec. 29, Mont. Const. Further, an expectation of profitability in a highly regulated field of business that requires a license or permit for participation is virtually never considered a compensable property interest, so plaintiffs were not entitled to compensation for damage to the goodwill and going concern value of their businesses. Plaintiffs should reasonably have anticipated that the game farm industry might be phased out because of health and safety concerns over chronic wasting disease or even that the state might make the regulatory burden so onerous that game farms would no longer be profitable enterprises, and the elimination of the in-state market for fee shooting should have been within plaintiffs' reasonable investment-backed expectations given the absence of assurances from the state on that point. That expectation factor also weighed against finding of a compensable regulatory taking of plaintiffs' alternative livestock. Kafka v. Mont. Dept. of Fish, Wildlife & Parks, 2008 MT 460, 348 M 80, 201 P3d 8 (2008), distinguishing NRG Co. v. U.S., 24 Fed. Enforcement of Fee Shooting Ban Improperly Enjoined — No Challenge to Constitutionality of Initiative Measure No. 143: In November 2000, voters enacted Initiative Measure No. 143, which included a ban on fee shooting of animals on alternative livestock ranches. Spoklie was granted a preliminary injunction prohibiting the state from interfering with the sale of alternative livestock to third persons, even if the third persons subsequently shot the animals at the alternative livestock ranch. The state and intervenors moved to dissolve the injunction, but the motion was denied. On appeal, the Supreme Court reversed. Spoklie clearly considered the right of third persons to harvest elk at an alternative livestock ranch to be an important part of the consideration received in exchange for fees paid, but the fee shooting arrangement is exactly what is prohibited by this section, as amended by the initiative. The preliminary injunction interfered with the state's enforcement of this section, a statute enacted for the public benefit, and was therefore prohibited under 27-19-103. Further, Spoklie's argument that an injunction was proper upon a showing of irreparable harm, as stated in dicta in The New Club Carlin, Inc. v. Billings, 237 M 194, 772 P2d 303 (1989), was also misplaced. As set out in State ex rel. Freebourn v. District Court, 85 M 439, 279 P 234 (1929), courts are prohibited from issuing injunctions to prevent the execution of a public statute by officers of the law for the public benefit. The only exception is when a statute or ordinance is unconstitutional or otherwise invalid and when, in the attempt to enforce it, there is a direct invasion of property rights resulting in irreparable injury. Spoklie neither alleged nor demonstrated that Initiative Measure No. 143 or this section was unconstitutional; therefore, the District Court erred as a matter of law when it enjoined the state's execution of this section. The order denying the motion to dissolve the injunction was reversed. Spoklie v. Dept. of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, 2002 MT 228, 311 M 427, 56 P3d 349 (2002).

Purpose of Alternative Livestock Transfer Regulations — Quarantine Exception to Commerce Clause Applicable: The Wallaces, licensed alternative livestock ranchers, sought to reduce the size of their elk herd by transferring about 500 elk to the Crow Indian Reservation for release into the wild. The Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks requested and received an injunction prohibiting any transfer of elk to tribal lands, and the Wallaces appealed, asserting that the injunction violated Art. I, sec. 8, clause 3, of the U.S. Constitution, known as the commerce clause. The Wallaces contended that prohibiting the transfer of alternative livestock to a recipient that is not licensed by the state constituted extraterritorial application of Montana's regulatory scheme to foreign nations, other states, and Indian nations in violation of federal law. The Supreme Court found that this case falls within the quarantine exception to the traditional commerce clause analysis. The quarantine exception recognizes that states may have a local interest in protecting public safety as a competing value when reviewing state burdens on interstate commerce. With the alarming spread of serious wildlife diseases throughout the country, the state has a compelling interest to enact regulations to ensure that alternative livestock cannot simply roam into Montana and threaten native populations. Because elk released on the Crow Indian Reservation could migrate back into Montana, the restrictions regarding transfer of alternative livestock in this section fall squarely within the quarantine exception to the commerce clause. Thus, the permanent injunction was affirmed. Hagener v. Wallace, 2002 MT 109, 309 M 473, 47 P3d 847 (2002). See also Bowman v. Chicago & NW. Ry. Co., 125 US 465 (1888).

Appropriateness of Intervention in Action Challenging Enforcement of Ballot Initiative: Two sporting groups sought to intervene in an action challenging the enforcement of a ballot initiative that prohibited the shooting of alternative livestock for a fee. The District Court denied the motion, and the groups appealed. After accepting supervisory control, the Supreme Court noted that an application for intervention as a matter of right must satisfy each of the following factors: (1) timeliness; (2) interest in the subject matter of the litigation; (3) a showing that protection of the interest may be impaired by disposition of the action; and (4) a showing that the interest is not adequately represented by an existing party. In the present case, timeliness was not disputed. Regarding the second factor, the Supreme Court cited Idaho Farm Bureau Fed'n v. Babbitt, 58 F3d 1392 (9th Cir. 1995), for the proposition that a public interest group is entitled as a matter of right to intervene in an action challenging the legality of a measure that the group has supported. The District Court did not address the third factor because it determined that the groups had no legally protectable interest in the litigation. However, the Supreme Court found that an adverse decision in the suit would impair the groups' interest in the management and protection of Montana's game animals, so the third factor was met. Finally, the District Court determined that the groups failed to demonstrate that the Attorney General, on behalf of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, would not zealously defend the groups' position in the suit. The Supreme Court concluded that the groups that actively drafted and supported the initiative may be in the best position to defend their interpretation of the resulting legislation and may not have been adequately represented by the Department. Thus, all four factors were met, and the Supreme Court ordered the District Court to permit the groups to intervene in the case. Sportsmen for I-143 v. District Court, 2002 MT 18, 308 M 189, 40 P3d 400 (2002).

Attorney General's Opinions

Wild Game Animals — Removal: When the fence of a game farm (now alternative livestock ranch) permittee encloses native wild big game animals, these animals remain the property of the state and may be hunted and taken only in compliance with state law. The state has no responsibility to remove the wild game animals from the enclosure. 38 A.G. Op. 68 (1980). Note: Portions of this opinion have been obviated by Ch. 570, L. 1983. (See also 1999 amendment.)

Game Harvesting — Game Ranch: The Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission) does not have the authority to regulate the hunting and killing of privately owned game through the imposition of licensing requirements on individual hunters or open and closed seasons. 36 A.G. Op. 112 (1976).

1999 Amendment: Chapter 574 throughout section substituted references to alternative livestock for references to game farm animals; in (1) in first sentence substituted reference to alternative livestock ranch for reference to game farm, after "licensee shall" deleted "contact the department of livestock to", after "inspection" inserted "of the alternative livestock, which inspection must be completed", and at end after "agent" deleted "for all game farm animals, except carnivores and omnivores", deleted former second sentence that read: "In the case of carnivores and omnivores, the game farm licensee shall contact the department to request an inspection by a department official", and in third sentence after "dead" substituted "alternative livestock" for "game farm animals, except carnivores and omnivores"; in (2)(a) after "subsection (1)" deleted "except inspection of carnivores and omnivores"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 503 in (1), near middle of first sentence, substituted "designated agent" for "stock inspector" and substituted third sentence concerning reporting of dead game farm animals for former third sentence that read: "This section applies to all game farm animals, whether alive or dead"; substituted (2) concerning inspection of game farm animals under subsection (1) and certificate of inspection for former (2) that read: "(2)(a) Inspection under subsection (1) must include examination of the game farm animal and all marks, tags, and tattoos to identify ownership prior to issuance of a certificate of inspection.

(b) A certificate of inspection must be made in triplicate and must specify:

- (i) the date of inspection;
- (ii) the place of origin and destination of the shipment;

- (iii) the name and address of the owner of the game farm animals and of the purchaser or transferee;
 - (iv) the number, species, age, and sex of game farm animals transported or disposed of;
 - (v) ear tag numbers and tattoos on each animal; and
 - (vi) any other information that the department of livestock may require.
- (c) A copy of the certificate must be:
- (i) retained by the inspector;
 - (ii) furnished by the inspector to the owner or shipper of the game farm animals, to accompany the animals to their destination;
 - (iii) filed by the inspector with the department of livestock within 5 days of inspection; and
 - (iv) provided by the department of livestock to the department within 10 days of inspection"; and in (3), after "quarantine", inserted "or issue a hold order on". Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 315 substituted (1) regarding inspection of game farm animals for former language that read: "Whenever the licensee of a licensed game farm sells or disposes of one or more game farm animals, he shall, at the same time, deliver to the recipient or otherwise cause to accompany each game farm animal or animals an invoice or bill of sale signed by the licensee or his agent stating the number of the game farm license, the date of acquisition or disposition, the species, the age, sex, and class of game animals disposed of, and the name and address of the transferee. This invoice or bill of sale, along with any required health certifications, authorizes transportation of the game farm animal or animals being sold, transferred, or disposed of"; and substituted (2) regarding inspection criteria for former language that read: "Within 10 days after movement or sale, the licensee or his agent shall mail postpaid a duplicate of the invoice or bill of sale to the department of livestock and the department." Amendment effective April 12, 1993.

1991 Amendment: In (1), near middle of first sentence before "disposition", inserted "acquisition or" and before "disposed" substituted "age, sex, and class of game animals" for "number" and in second sentence, after "bill of sale", inserted "along with any required health certifications"; at beginning of (2) substituted "Within 10 days after movement or sale" for "Within a reasonable time after disposition"; inserted (3) concerning Department of Livestock quarantining game farm animals pending inspection and concerning notification to Department of Livestock by Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks of importation or transportation of game farm animal with wildlife disease; and made minor changes in style.

Case Notes

Transfer of Alternative Livestock to Unlicensed Tribal Lands Illegal: The Wallaces, licensed alternative livestock ranchers, sought to reduce the size of their elk herd by transferring about 500 elk to the Crow Indian Reservation for subsequent release into the wild. The elk had been certified as free of tuberculosis, brucellosis, and elk-red deer hybridization by the Department of Livestock (DOL). Despite notification by the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks (DFWP) that such an act violated state law, the Wallaces transferred 68 elk to the tribe. DFWP requested and received a permanent injunction prohibiting any further transfer of elk to the tribe, and the Wallaces appealed, questioning DFWP jurisdiction. The Supreme Court noted that DFWP has a statutory basis for its jurisdiction over the Wallaces as licensees. Based on DFWP jurisdiction over exterior fencing, and the Department's knowledge that the elk would not be contained behind a game-proof fence upon delivery to the tribe, DFWP had statutory authority to seek the permanent injunction to prevent the transfer. Also, the introduction or transplantation of any wildlife into the wild, including game farm elk, requires the approval of DFWP. Further, 87-4-414 provides that alternative livestock may be kept only on a licensed alternative livestock ranch, and because the tribe is not a licensed facility under Montana law, neither DFWP nor DOL had authority to permit the transfer. The Wallaces knew that the elk were destined for an unlicensed location where they would be released into the wild and could migrate back into Montana, so the transfer violated the Wallaces' duty as licensees to act in accordance with law, and the District Court correctly enjoined the transportation of the elk. Hagener v. Wallace, 2002 MT 109, 309 M 473, 47 P3d 847 (2002).

1999 Amendment: Chapter 574 in (1) after "regulation of" substituted "alternative livestock ranches" for "game farms"; substituted (2) regarding adoption and enforcement of rules for former text that read: "The department of livestock may adopt rules addressing the transportation and importation of game farm animals, restrictions on importation, identification, sale of game farm animal parts, quarantine, hold orders, interior facilities, health regulations, and the care and maintenance of game farm animals"; deleted former (3) that read: "(3) Rules promulgated pursuant to this part must be adopted in accordance with the Montana Negotiated Rulemaking Act, Title 2, chapter 5, part 1"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 503 in (1), after "part", inserted "over which the department has primary jurisdiction"; substituted (2) concerning the adoption of rules addressing transportation, importation, identification, sale, quarantine, hold orders, interior facilities, and the health, care, and maintenance of game farm animals for former (2) that read: "(2) The rules may address but are not limited to the classifying of cloven-hoofed ungulates, requirements for facilities, reporting and recordkeeping requirements, transportation and importation, restrictions on importation, identification, sale of animal parts, and the care and maintenance of game farm animals"; and inserted (3) concerning rules adopted pursuant to this part being in accordance with Title 2, chapter 5, part 1. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1995 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 503, L. 1995, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill in order to clarify rulemaking authority of the department of fish, wildlife, and parks and the department of livestock with regard to the administration and regulation of game farms [now alternative livestock ranches]. It is intended that rules promulgated pursuant to Title 87, chapter 4, part 4, be adopted in accordance with the Montana Negotiated Rulemaking Act, Title 2, chapter 5, part 1.

(1) It is intended that the department of fish, wildlife, and parks have primary authority with regard to rules governing:

- (a) game farm [now alternative livestock ranch] licensure;
- (b) reporting requirements;
- (c) exterior fencing requirements;
- (d) classification of species the importation of which may present a threat to the state's wildlife population;

(e) general enforcement of game farm [now alternative livestock ranch] licensing violations; and

(f) the definition of "reasonable time" in the context of 87-4-419(2), which must reflect specific seasonal issues related to breeding and disease.

(2) It is intended that the department of livestock have primary authority with regard to rules governing:

(a) transportation and identification of game farm animals [now alternative livestock];

(b) health inspection and game farm [now alternative livestock ranch] quarantines, including interior facilities; and

(c) importation restrictions on exotic species.

(3) It is intended that the department of livestock's rules address the issue of immediate depopulation of game farm animals [now alternative livestock] that test positive for tuberculosis.

(4) It is intended that both the department of fish, wildlife, and parks and the department of livestock consider the feasibility of using DNA as an additional method of identification of game farm animals [now alternative livestock].

(5) It is intended that the game farm advisory council [now alternative livestock advisory council] advise both the department of fish, wildlife, and parks and the department of livestock regarding the administration of game farm [now alternative livestock ranch] operations, which may include input into the rules adopted pursuant to [this act].

(6) It is the intent of the legislature that in adopting rules pursuant to 87-4-426(6) [now repealed], the department of fish, wildlife, and parks provide for a timely and simplified process for minor amendments to an existing license. This may include, when appropriate, a categorical exclusion under the provisions of Title 75, chapter 1, part 1."

1993 Amendment: Chapter 315 at end of (1) inserted "and to coordinate regulation of game farms with the department of livestock"; in (2), after "ungulates", substituted "requirements for facilities" for "fencing requirements", after "reporting" inserted "and recordkeeping", after "importation" inserted "restrictions on importation", and at end deleted "and game farm shooting licenses"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 12, 1993.

1983 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to SB 448 (Ch. 570, L. 1983) provided: "This bill requires the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to make rules for game animal farms under section 17 [87-4-422], game bird farms under section 32 [87-4-913], and fur farms under section 47 [87-4-1012]. It is the intent of the Legislature that these rules address procedural items necessary for a timely and efficient processing of applications and licenses and provide the information necessary for administration of the criteria provided in those sections. It is intended that the license fees to be set by the Department be in an amount commensurate with the costs of processing the applications and administering the provisions of the act."

Case Notes

Revocation of License — Statute Not Retroactive — Revocation Not Violation of Double Jeopardy: Revocation of a license under a 1993 statute for prior convictions did not deprive a game farm (now alternative livestock ranch) operator of a vested right or attach additional disabilities to the prior convictions. This section serves a remedial purpose and is not a punitive or penal statute. The Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks' revocation of the license was not punishment and did not violate double jeopardy rights. Severability: Section 132, Ch. 258, L. 2011, was a severability clause.

2003 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 84 in (1) at beginning in exception clause inserted reference to subsection (3) and near middle of first sentence after “catch” deleted “any of the fish which in this title are classified as” and in second sentence after “fish” deleted “of this state as defined in this title”; in (2)(a) after “fish” inserted “or the collecting of eggs or spawn” and after “private” substituted “fish pond licensed under 87-4-603 by the owner of the pond” for “ponds by the owners thereof”; at end of (2)(b) after “for” substituted “use in a private fish pond licensed under 87-4-603” for “such purposes”; at end of (2)(c) substituted “rules of the commission” for “rules and regulations of the department”; near middle of (2)(d) after “rules” deleted “and regulations”; inserted (3) authorizing person to possess and sell legally taken nongame fish; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 20, 2003.

Chapter 333 in (3)(a) at beginning inserted “Until June 30, 2018” and after reference to railroad bridge at Glendive substituted “North Dakota state line” for “confluence of Cottonwood Creek and the Yellowstone River”; at beginning of (3)(d)(i) substituted “Thirty percent” for “Forty percent”; at beginning of (3)(d)(ii) substituted “Seventy percent” for “Sixty percent”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 15, 2003.

Termination Provision Repealed: Sections 2 and 3, Ch. 333, L. 2003, amended sec. 5, Ch. 409, L. 1989, which terminated the 1989 amendments to this section June 30, 1993, by deleting the termination date and amended sec. 2, Ch. 196, L. 1993, which extended the termination date to June 30, 2003, by deleting the termination date. Effective April 15, 2003.

Extension of Termination Date: Section 2, Ch. 196, L. 1993, amended sec. 5, Ch. 409, L. 1989, by extending the termination date imposed by that chapter. Amendment effective March 25, 1993.

1991 Amendments — Name Change: Section 2, Ch. 28, L. 1991, directed the Code Commissioner to change the name of the Fish and Game Commission to the Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission wherever the name appears in the MCA. Accordingly, the name was changed in this section as directed.

Chapter 68 in (3)(a) of temporary version inserted second through fifth sentences defining Intake fishing access site and clarifying paddlefish and roe that are acceptable for donation to the program. Amendment effective March 13, 1991.

1989 Amendment: In (1), near beginning, inserted reference to subsection (3); and inserted (3) providing rules and procedure for donation of paddlefish roe to nonprofit corporation for use in caviar production and designating how profits are to be used (see 1989 Session Law for text). Amendment effective July 1, 1989, and terminates June 30, 1993.

1989 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 409, L. 1989, provided: “A statement of intent is required for this bill because 87-4-601(3) grants rulemaking authority to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks to implement the paddlefish roe donation program. The legislature intends that the priority in implementing the provisions of this bill be on maintaining the paddlefish fishery. At a minimum, it is intended that the rules address the following:

- (1) a process for the selection of a Montana nonprofit corporation to accept roe donations and to process and market the paddlefish roe;
- (2) recordkeeping required of the selected corporation and commercial buyers to assure proper administration of the program;
- (3) a process for development of recommendations and review of projects in expending funds raised through the paddlefish roe program;
- (4) a provision that the total number of paddlefish taken in the Yellowstone River Basin may not exceed 3,500 in any year; and
- (5) any other topics necessary for administration of the program.”

87-4-603. Fish pond license for artificial lake or pond — records.Compiler's Comments

1999 Amendment: Chapter 108 in first sentence in (1) and in (2)(a) after reference to artificial lake or pond inserted reference to private fish pond; in (2)(a) substituted current definition of artificial lake or pond or private fish pond for former text that read: "does not include a natural pond or body of water, including streams and rivers, created by natural means or any portion of the streambed or lakebed of a natural pond or body of water. It includes only bodies of water created by artificial means or diversion of water that do not exceed 500 acres of surface area"; inserted (2)(b) excluding certain water from definition of artificial lake or pond or private fish pond; inserted (3) requiring applicant to provide verification regarding game fish or fish species in instream private fish pond; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 18, 1999.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 425 in (1), in second sentence after "pond with", substituted "fish" for "fry"; in (2), after "water", inserted "including streams and rivers"; inserted (5) concerning request for inspection to determine presence of disease or illegal introduction of species and notice of intent to enter; inserted (6) concerning action taken because of disease or illegal introduction, including emergency action; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 13, 1995.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 425, L. 1995, provided: "WHEREAS, whirling disease was recently discovered in the world famous fishery of the upper Madison River and is the leading suspect for the 90% reduction in the numbers of wild rainbow trout in those waters; and

WHEREAS, Governor Racicot, in a recent communication to concerned parties, stated, "There is genuine reason to believe whirling disease is the worst disease threat our wild trout have ever faced"; and

WHEREAS, Governor Racicot has further stated that it is essential for the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to mobilize an unprecedented effort to research and combat this disease; and

WHEREAS, the wild trout fisheries in Montana provide in excess of $125 million in annual benefits to the state's economy; and

WHEREAS, the wild trout fisheries provide inestimable recreational pleasures for the citizens of the state; and

WHEREAS, there is significant potential for whirling disease to spread to other blue ribbon trout waters of the state; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks currently lacks both the authority and the staffing to combat a similar spread of disease; and

WHEREAS, whirling disease primarily results from the introduction of infected hatchery or wild fish; and

WHEREAS, the illegal introduction and movement of fish pose a serious threat to Montana's wild fisheries, including native fisheries; and

WHEREAS, many landowners with fish ponds and hatcheries need reassurance that their fish are disease-free."

1989 Amendment: In (1), in third sentence after "pond", inserted "and otherwise condition the license", in fourth sentence, after "this state", inserted "or violate the conditions of his license", after "will" inserted "submit an annual", after "report" inserted "on transactions", after "director" deleted reference to quantity of fish, eggs, and spawn taken, and deleted former fifth and sixth sentences regarding requirement for annual oath, requirement for record of species and pounds of fish, eggs, and fry sold, date of transaction, and purchaser; inserted (3) authorizing Department to condition license to require device to prevent escape of fish; inserted (4) requiring licensed seller to keep and file annually a record of species and quantities sold or purchased, date of sale or purchase, purchaser's or seller's name, and transfer locations; and made minor changes in style.

2005 Amendment: Chapter 157 inserted (1) providing that, with some exceptions, a private fish pond license is valid for 10 years; inserted (2) providing for a $10 application fee and a $10 renewal fee; inserted (3)(a) providing for license expiration; in (3)(b) in second sentence after "expires on" substituted "February 28" for "January 31"; inserted (3)(c) regarding renewal of a license that has been in effect for more than 10 years as of April 8, 2005; in (3)(d) at end of second sentence after "granted" inserted "and if the licensee has met all of the requirements governing private fish ponds in 87-4-603 and this section"; in (4) at beginning after "A" deleted "licensee who does not sell fish or eggs is not required to renew his license"; in (5)(a) at beginning inserted exception clause; inserted (5)(b) and (5)(c) regarding license transfer; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 8, 2005.

Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 157, L. 2005, provided: "[This act] applies to any private fish pond license application pending review and approval by the department on [the effective date of this act] and applies prospectively to any fish pond license as of [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 8, 2005.

87-4-609. Regulation of commercial taking of fish or aquatic organisms — permit — rulemaking authority.

Compiler's Comments

2011 Amendment: Chapter 258 in (2) before "to enable the department" substituted current text for "It is unlawful for a person to take fish or aquatic organisms for commercial purposes without obtaining a permit from the department. A permit applicant shall provide the department with sufficient details of the proposed operation to take any fish or aquatic organism for sale or commercial distribution". Amendment effective October 1, 2011.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 258, L. 2011, provided: "WHEREAS, the 2007 Legislature passed House Joint Resolution No. 16, urging that revision of the criminal codes within Title 87 of the Montana Code Annotated be given priority; and

WHEREAS, House Joint Resolution No. 16 noted that practitioners, judges, and citizens find that the criminal codes intertwined within the fish and game laws in Title 87 are difficult to read, understand, and prosecute; and

WHEREAS, House Joint Resolution No. 16 directed that revision of the Title 87 criminal code should not include policy changes to current laws and should adhere to the intent of the legislatures that crafted the laws; and

WHEREAS, in 2008, the Director of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks appointed a Title 87 criminal code revision working group, consisting of Justices of the Peace, County Attorneys, an Assistant Attorney General, legal counsel and the enforcement administrator of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, and legislative staff; and

WHEREAS, the working group met numerous times and spent countless hours crafting a revision that makes the Title 87 criminal code more understandable without making substantive or policy changes to present law; and deleted “that provide a food source for fish”; in first and second sentences in (2) and near beginning of (5) substituted references to taking fish or aquatic organisms for references to taking aquatic fish food organisms; near middle of (5) after “requirements” deleted “for a particular aquatic fish food organism, in order”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 20, 2003.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 456 in (1), after “distribution, of”, inserted “crayfish for fishing bait” and after “crayfish” inserted “from private fish ponds regulated under 87-4-603”.

1989 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 246, L. 1989, provided: “A statement of intent is required for this bill because rulemaking authority is granted to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks in [section 1] [87-4-609] to regulate the taking, for sale or commercial distribution, of aquatic fish food organisms. Even though the bill provides for approval of permits for this activity on a case-by-case basis, the legislature anticipates that commercial activities for certain aquatic fish food organisms may increase to the extent that there is a need for general rulemaking. It is further anticipated that if this occurs, the department will have gathered sufficient information through the permit system and other monitoring to have sufficient knowledge to adopt appropriate rules to prevent overharvest of these organisms and conflicts with other uses of the waters.

[Section 2] [87-4-610] allows the department by rule to set reasonable fees for permits and for the use of traps, nets, or seines in the taking of aquatic fish food organisms for commercial purposes. It is intended that any fees should not exceed an amount necessary to meet administrative and monitoring costs of the department.”

WHEREAS, the State of Montana currently enjoys viable and widespread populations of the species, the second largest abundance of greater sage-grouse among western states; and

WHEREAS, the United States Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS) has determined that the greater sage-grouse species is warranted for listing as a threatened or endangered species under the Endangered Species Act (ESA) but is precluded by other higher priority species; and

WHEREAS, the United States District Court for the District of Idaho ruled on February 2, 2012, that the USFWS must reevaluate the status of the greater sage-grouse by September 30, 2015; and

WHEREAS, the United States Secretary of the Interior has invited Montana and other western states impacted by the potential listing of the greater sage-grouse to develop state-specific regulatory mechanisms to conserve the species and preclude the need to list it under the ESA; and

WHEREAS, the development of a state-specific strategy in Montana will be critical in demonstrating to the USFWS that the species does not warrant federal protection under the ESA; and

WHEREAS, the United States Bureau of Land Management (BLM) and the United States Forest Service (USFS) are currently implementing national instruction memoranda to guide interim management of public lands and to develop greater sage-grouse conservation measures for incorporation into the agencies' respective land use plans; and

WHEREAS, the development of a state-specific strategy will enable the BLM and USFS to incorporate relevant elements from the strategy into their land use plans and environmental analyses; and

WHEREAS, approximately half of greater sage-grouse habitat in Montana involves private property, and maintaining the species will require effective conservation strategies across property ownerships; and

WHEREAS, the State of Montana has management authority over greater sage-grouse populations in Montana; and

WHEREAS, the State of Montana in collaboration with stakeholders developed and adopted a state greater sage-grouse plan in 2004, pertaining to sage-grouse population responses to large scale changes in habitat; and

WHEREAS, the State of Montana has identified and will update, as appropriate, greater sage-grouse core areas, which include priority habitats for conservation; and

WHEREAS, it is in the interest of this state to bring stakeholders and experts together to recommend a course of action that will provide for conservation measures sufficient to preclude the need to list the greater sage-grouse; and

WHEREAS, the listing of the greater sage-grouse could have a significant adverse effect on the economy of the state of Montana; and

WHEREAS, it is appropriate and beneficial to fund the Greater Sage-Grouse Habitat Conservation Advisory Council established by Governor Steve Bullock in Executive Order No. 2-2013."

Chapter Case Notes

Media Coverage of Search Involving Alleged Wildlife Violation Outside Scope of Warrant — Open Fields Doctrine and Invited Informer Doctrine Inapplicable: Federal agents who suspected a wildlife violation searched the Bergers' ranch pursuant to a search warrant and to a written contract with two national broadcasting networks authorizing the filming and recording of the search for broadcast on environmental television shows. After Berger was convicted of one misdemeanor count of improper use of a pesticide, he sued both the networks and the federal agents for violations of constitutional rights. On appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court held that activities conducted pursuant to the search were not authorized by the open fields doctrine, which allows law enforcement officers to obtain evidence while on privately owned open fields, because Berger had a reasonable expectation of privacy with regard to outbuildings that were photographed and because that doctrine does not authorize trespass by third parties. Further, the invited informer doctrine, which allows the use of informers with recording devices to obtain information as part of a good faith government investigation, did not apply in this instance because the recording of Berger's conversations was used to assist commercial television, not to further law enforcement objectives. Pursuant to the joint action test, the networks were considered to be acting under color of law and, as such, were liable for damages as government actors for contractually engaging in a search enterprise that only the government could lawfully institute for the mutual benefit of both private and governmental interests in publicity. The case was reversed for further consideration of Berger's state claims of trespass and intentional infliction of emotional distress. Berger v. Hanlon, 129 F3d 505 (9th Cir. 1997).

2009 Amendment: Chapter 301 in definition of management in first sentence after "purposes of" substituted "conserving populations of wildlife consistent with other uses of land and habitat" for "increasing the number of individuals within species and populations of wildlife up to the optimum carrying capacity of their habitat and maintaining those levels", in second sentence following "improvement" inserted "control", and in third sentence following "periodic" deleted "or total"; deleted definition of optimum carrying capacity that read: "Optimum carrying capacity" means that point at which a given habitat can support healthy populations of wildlife species, having regard to the total ecosystem, without diminishing the ability of the habitat to continue that function"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 18, 2009.

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 301 inserted definition of commercial purposes; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Chapter 521 in definition of endangered species in (d) substituted "artificial factors" for "man-made factors"; in definition of management in first sentence substituted "conserving populations of wildlife consistent with other uses of land and habitat" for "increasing the number of individuals within species and populations of wildlife up to the optimum carrying capacity of their habitat and maintaining such levels", in second sentence after "improvement" inserted "control", and in third sentence after "periodic" deleted "or total"; in definition of nongame wildlife inserted third sentence providing that prairie dogs are nongame wildlife that may be managed, controlled, and regulated, inserted fourth sentence concerning management and control by counties and departments of agriculture and natural resources and conservation if consistent with approved management plan, and inserted fifth sentence prohibiting interpretation of law to limit landowner's control of prairie dog concentrations on private lands; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 2001, and terminates October 1, 2007.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 301, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, the Legislature finds it desirable to regulate or manage the collection, harvest, possession, or transportation of nongame wildlife for commercial purposes."

The preamble attached to Ch. 521, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana has a responsibility to ensure that a viable prairie dog population is maintained in the state for the long term, as well as to ensure the long-term existence of species associated with prairie dogs; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Prairie Dog Working Group is developing a conservation plan for prairie dogs in Montana to provide for management of populations and habitats in order to ensure both the long-term existence of prairie dogs and the control of prairie dogs to protect existing land uses; and

WHEREAS, the only existing statutory authority for prairie dog management is to control them as rodents under Title 7, chapter 22, part 22, MCA, and as vertebrate pests under section 80-7-1101, MCA; and

WHEREAS, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS) has found that the black-tailed prairie dog is warranted for listing under the federal Endangered Species Act (ESA) over an

11-state area that includes Montana, but that listing of this species is precluded at the present time because other candidate species have a higher priority for listing; and

WHEREAS, the USFWS finding is based in part on the inadequacy of regulatory mechanisms that Montana and other states currently possess to ensure maintenance of viable prairie dog populations for the long term; and

WHEREAS, Montana and 10 other states have entered into an agreement to jointly develop management plans that address the needs of the species across virtually its entire range, thus improving the status of the black-tailed prairie dog to the point that it can be removed from consideration for listing under the ESA; and

WHEREAS, the USFWS will review the status of the black-tailed prairie dog on an annual basis; and

WHEREAS, it is desirable to enable the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks and the Department of Agriculture to implement management actions contained in Montana's prairie dog conservation plan while specifically protecting the current ability of landowners to manage prairie dogs on their lands; and

WHEREAS, it is desirable to facilitate long-term conservation of prairie dogs according to the conservation plan for prairie dogs in Montana while simultaneously reducing the likelihood that the black-tailed prairie dog will be listed under the ESA."

1983 Amendment: Inserted (1) defining account; and in second sentence of (4) after "habitat" deleted "acquisition and".

2003 Amendment: Chapter 361 inserted (1) relating to constitutional obligations and legislative intent; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 16, 2003.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 361, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, Article II, section 3, of the Montana Constitution enumerates certain inalienable individual rights, including the right to a clean and healthful environment, the right of pursuing life's basic necessities, the right of enjoying and defending an individual's life and liberty, the right of acquiring, possessing, and protecting property, and the right of seeking individual safety, health, and happiness in all lawful ways; and

WHEREAS, the constitutionally enumerated rights are by their very nature bound to result in competing interests in specific fact situations; and

WHEREAS, Article IX, section 1, of the Montana Constitution provides that the state and each person shall maintain and improve a clean and healthful environment in Montana for present and future generations and directs the Legislature to provide for the administration and enforcement of this duty and also directs the Legislature to provide adequate remedies for the protection of the environmental life support system from degradation and to provide adequate remedies to prevent unreasonable depletion and degradation of natural resources; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature has reviewed the intent of the framers of the 1972 Montana Constitution as evidenced in the verbatim transcripts of the constitutional convention; and

WHEREAS, there is no indication that one enumerated inalienable right is intended to supersede other inalienable rights, including the right to use property in all lawful means; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature, mindful of its constitutional obligation to provide for the administration and enforcement of the constitution, has enacted a comprehensive set of laws to accomplish the goals of the constitution, including the Montana Clean Indoor Air Act of 1979, Title 50, chapter 40, part 1, MCA; the Montana Environmental Policy Act, Title 75, chapter 1, parts 1 through 3, MCA; the Clean Air Act of Montana, Title 75, chapter 2, parts 1 through 4, MCA; water quality laws, Title 75, chapter 5, MCA; The Natural Streambed and Land Preservation Act of 1975, Title 75, chapter 7, part 1, MCA; The Montana Solid Waste Management Act, Title 75, chapter 10, part 2, MCA; The Montana Hazardous Waste Act, Title 75, chapter 10, part 4, MCA; the Comprehensive Environmental Cleanup and Responsibility Act, Title 75, chapter 10, part 7, MCA; the Montana Megalndfill Siting Act, sections 75-10-901 through 75-10-945, MCA; the Montana Underground Storage Tank Installer and Inspector Licensing and Permitting Act, Title 75, chapter 11, part 2, MCA; the Montana Underground Storage Tank Act, Title 75, chapter 11, part 5, MCA; the Montana Major Facility Siting Act, Title 75, chapter 20, MCA; the Open-Space Land and Voluntary Conservation Easement Act, Title 76, chapter 6, MCA; the Environmental Control Easement Act, Title 76, chapter 7, MCA; The Strip and Underground Mine Siting Act, Title 82, chapter 4, part 1, MCA; The Montana Strip and Underground Mine Reclamation Act,

Title 82, chapter 4, part 2, MCA; The Opencut Mining Act, Title 82, chapter 4, part 4, MCA; and The Nongame and Endangered Species Conservation Act, Title 87, chapter 5, part 1, MCA."

Severability: Section 39, Ch. 361, L. 2003, was a severability clause.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 41, Ch. 361, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to actions for judicial review or other causes of action challenging the issuance of a permit, petition for review, amendment, license, arbitration, action, certificate, or inspection that are pending but not yet decided on or after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 16, 2003.

87-5-105. Regulations to manage nongame wildlife.

Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendment: Chapter 316 in (1) at end deleted last sentence that read: "The department may from time to time amend such regulations on the approval of the legislature by adding or deleting therefrom species or subspecies of nongame wildlife"; in (2) before "limitations" deleted "proposed" and at end inserted "that is designated in need of management", and deleted former last sentence that read: "The department may make such changes in the proposed regulations as are consistent with effective management of nongame wildlife as designated by the legislature"; and made minor changes in style. Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 301, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, the Legislature finds it desirable to regulate or manage the collection, harvest, possession, or transportation of nongame wildlife for commercial purposes."

Effective Date: This section is effective October 1, 2001.

87-5-121. Nongame wildlife account.Compiler's Comments

1991 Amendment: At end of (2), after "account", deleted "except as provided in subsection (5)"; deleted former (5) that read: "(5) The department of revenue may deduct from collections an amount not to exceed $1 for each tax checkoff contribution for administering the voluntary checkoff program"; and made minor change in style.

1987 Amendment: In (2), at end, changed reference to subsection (6) to reference to subsection (5); deleted former (5) and (6) that read: "(5) Money derived from tax checkoff contributions to the account will replace license fee funding for nongame wildlife programs after June 30, 1985, and may not be used to replace money that would otherwise be appropriated for nongame wildlife programs.

(6) The department of revenue may deduct from collections an amount not to exceed $7,884 in fiscal year 1986 and $7,884 in fiscal year 1987 for administering the voluntary checkoff program. The department is authorized to spend the amounts and hire necessary personnel and shall provide an itemized accounting to the legislative finance committee of the cost of administering the checkoff program during fiscal years 1986 and 1987"; and inserted (5) based on contingency described below.

Contingency Authorization: Section 5, Ch. 589, L. 1987, provided: "The authorization for deduction of administrative costs for the department of revenue in 87-5-121(5) of this act is contingent on passage and approval by the 50th legislature of legislation to require a similar deduction for administrative costs for all voluntary income tax checkoff programs authorized by law." (This contingency did not occur.)

1985 Amendment: In (2) in middle, inserted "and all interest earned by the fund before being expended under this section"; and in (6) in first sentence, after "exceed", substituted "$7,884 in fiscal year 1986 and $7,884 in fiscal year 1987" for "$6,638 in fiscal year 1984 and $4,238 in fiscal year 1985", in middle of second sentence substituted "legislative finance committee" for "49th legislature" and at end, after "fiscal years", substituted "1986 and 1987" for "1984 and 1985".

1983 Amendment: In (1), substituted "state special revenue fund" for "earmarked revenue fund".

Applicability: Section 7, Ch. 627, L. 1983, provided: "(1) This act applies to tax returns which by law are required to be filed after January 1, 1984.

(2) This act shall terminate December 31, 1987."

87-5-122. Duties of commission.Compiler's Comments

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 377 (Ch. 627, L. 1983) provided: "A statement of intent is required of this bill because rulemaking authority is granted to the Fish and Game Commission [now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission] in section 4 [87-5-122] for the use of the nongame wildlife account and for the review and approval process for nongame wildlife program projects.

It is intended that the rules promulgated by the Commission would include adequate provisions for public notice and comment during the review and approval process. In addition, it is intended that the Commission would provide for adequate consultation with the Department of Agriculture prior to and during the review and approval process for nongame wildlife program projects."

2011 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 390 in (2) near beginning substituted "may expend any federal funds received" for "shall expend only the federal funds" and after "purposes" inserted "and the portion of money allocated from the wolf management account established in 87-1-623"; in (3) after "The department" substituted current text for "may collaborate and cooperate with other state and federal agencies to fulfill the requirements of this section". Amendment effective July 1, 2011.

Chapter 400 in (1) inserted "or a collar that uses global positioning system technology"; and in (2) substituted "may expend state and federal funds" for "shall expend only the federal funds". Amendment effective July 1, 2011.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 400, L. 2011, provided:

"WHEREAS, the gray wolf was listed as an endangered species under the Endangered Species Act (ESA) in 1973; and

WHEREAS, gray wolves were reintroduced in Yellowstone National Park and central Idaho in 1995 and 1996 by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS) to speed up recovery of the gray wolf population in the Northern Rocky Mountain region; and

WHEREAS, the biological requirement established by the USFWS for the recovery of the gray wolf population in the Northern Rocky Mountains is a minimum of 30 breeding pairs and 300 wolves in Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming combined or effectively 10 breeding pairs and 100 wolves per state; and

WHEREAS, the USFWS approved the Montana Gray Wolf Conservation and Management Plan in January 2004, under which Montana agreed to use adaptive management strategies to ensure its portion of the biological recovery goal is met; and

WHEREAS, the gray wolf population in Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming achieved the biological requirements of 30 breeding pairs and 300 wolves in 2002; and

WHEREAS, the most recent data available show that at the end of 2009, the estimated minimum number of wolves in Montana was 524 wolves with an estimated minimum of 37 breeding pairs in Montana; and

WHEREAS, the final environmental impact statement prepared by the Montana Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks (MDFWP) for the Montana Gray Wolf Conservation and Management Plan, submitted to the USFWS in October 2003, estimated that MDFWP's required budget for the wolf management alternative that was ultimately selected would be $924,739 to $1,062,399, of which 90% would be provided by the federal government under Section 6 of the ESA and 10% would be the responsibility of Montana; and

WHEREAS, the 90%-10% cost share was never implemented because the USFWS allocated funding directly to MDFWP rather than it being necessary for MDFWP to request funding under Section 6 of the ESA; and

WHEREAS, the USFWS allocated an average of $573,000 annually to Montana for wolf management under a 5-year contract that expired June 30, 2010; and

WHEREAS, that annual allocation was far below the estimate included in the final environmental impact statement; and

WHEREAS, under MDFWP's new contract for July 1, 2010, through June 30, 2015, the USFWS allocates only $626,000 to Montana for the entire 5-year period."

Effective Date: This section is effective October 1, 2005.

Vagueness: Where defendant was convicted of illegally possessing and transporting falcons, after having fraudulently obtained a permit to possess and transport falcons, conviction under 87-5-206(4) (repealed, 1991) and this section was sustained despite defendant's contention that the sections were unconstitutionally vague because they did not clearly prohibit possession or transportation with a fraudulently obtained permit. *U.S. v. 2011 Amendment: Chapter 258 in (1) deleted former last sentence that read: "Except as provided in 87-5-210, it is unlawful for any person to possess a raptor or to train a raptor in the practice of falconry without a license." Amendment effective October 1, 2011.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 258, L. 2011, provided: "WHEREAS, the 2007 Legislature passed House Joint Resolution No. 16, urging that revision of the criminal codes within Title 87 of the Montana Code Annotated be given priority; and

WHEREAS, House Joint Resolution No. 16 noted that practitioners, judges, and citizens find that the criminal codes intertwined within the fish and game laws in Title 87 are difficult to read, understand, and prosecute; and

WHEREAS, House Joint Resolution No. 16 directed that revision of the Title 87 criminal code should not include policy changes to current laws and should adhere to the intent of the legislatures that crafted the laws; and

WHEREAS, in 2008, the Director of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks appointed a Title 87 criminal code revision working group, consisting of Justices of the Peace, County Attorneys, an Assistant Attorney General, legal counsel and the enforcement administrator of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, and legislative staff; and

WHEREAS, the working group met numerous times and spent countless hours crafting a revision that makes the Title 87 criminal code more understandable without making substantive or policy changes to present law; and

WHEREAS, revision of the fish and game criminal statutes will benefit the hunting and fishing public, magistrates, and prosecutors by codifying crimes and penalties in a separate chapter of Montana law, rather than being intertwined throughout Title 87."

1991 Amendment: In (1), near beginning of first sentence, substituted "commission shall" for "department may", near middle, after "possession", inserted "by residents and nonresidents, selling or transfer of possession", at end, after "falconry", inserted "and set license qualifications and fees", and inserted second sentence requiring conformance with federal law; deleted former (2) and (3) that read: "(2) The fee for a falconry license is $3 a year or any part of a year. A license expires April 30 each year.

(3) A license may not be issued to a person under the age of 12 years"; and made minor changes in style.

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 243, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because 87-5-204 and 87-5-210 require the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] to adopt rules regarding certain aspects of the use and breeding of raptors and the sport of falconry. Because the regulation of raptors and the sport of falconry are in large part regulated by federal law and because detailed and precise standards are rapidly changing, the rules must comply with federal law and regulations as adopted or amended from time to time. The legislature recognizes that the commission has the power to determine the extent and nature of measures that control wildlife in Montana and that the commission's expertise makes it the proper forum for addressing the regulation of raptors and the sport of falconry. At a minimum, the rules must address:

(1) the regulation of raptors and restrictions on taking, possessing, and selling raptors, including:

- (a) the number of raptors that may legally be possessed;
 - (b) appropriate times and areas for trapping raptors and removing of raptors from the nest;
 - (c) notification requirements regarding transfer of ownership;
 - (d) permitting requirements regarding sale and transportation of raptors; and
 - (e) possession of and hunting with raptors by nonresidents;
- (2) licenses and rules for falconry and the allowable uses of raptors in the sport of falconry, including:

- (a) appropriate falconry license fees;
- (b) age requirements regarding issuance of falconry licenses;
- (c) the necessity of possessing other valid game licenses when practicing falconry; and
- (d) the transfer and revocation of falconry licenses; and
- (3) the regulation of captive breeding of raptors, including:
 - (a) appropriate breeding permit fees;
 - (b) transferability and revocation of breeding permits; and
 - (c) any other aspects of captive breeding considered appropriate by the commission."

1987 Amendment: In (4), in second sentence, inserted "upland" before "game" and following "license" inserted "or waterfowl stamp, as appropriate".

- (c) the necessity of possessing other valid game licenses when practicing falconry; and
- (d) the transfer and revocation of falconry licenses; and
- (3) the regulation of captive breeding of raptors, including:
 - (a) appropriate breeding permit fees;
 - (b) transferability and revocation of breeding permits; and
 - (c) any other aspects of captive breeding considered appropriate by the commission."

1987 Amendment: In (4) inserted "and the sale of progeny of" and made minor changes in grammar.

Report on Sale of Progeny of Raptors — 51st Legislature: Section 3, Ch. 532, L. 1987, read: "The department [of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks] shall report to the 51st legislature the results of the program regulating the sale of the progeny of raptors, including but not limited to the numbers of birds sold, a description of the enforcement efforts undertaken, and the cost of the program to the department."

Codification Without Instruction: This section was enacted without a codification instruction. The apparent intent was that it become an integral part of Title 87, chapter 5, part 2, and the Code Commissioner has codified it accordingly.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 94 (Ch. 297, L. 1983), first adopted by the House Fish and Game Committee, read: "House Bill No. 94 requires a statement of intent because the proposed amendments [to the bill enacting this section] would provide the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks with the authority to pass regulations on the taking and keeping of raptors for captive breeding purposes."

The reason for the Department to pass regulations controlling captive breeding is to avoid abuses which could endanger the birds captured or in some cases to protect species which are already rare or unusual in Montana. Accordingly, regulations may be adopted which would regulate the kinds of raptors which may be captured, the methods used to capture birds, the facilities in which the birds are kept and bred, the times of capture, the kinds of records to be kept regarding the bird, and the qualifications of the people requesting a captive breeding permit."

Part 5Stream Protection*Part Attorney General's Opinions

Application of Part to Government Projects Including Highway Contractor Discretionary Work Bridges: This part was enacted to regulate projects undertaken by governmental entities, and the Natural Streambed and Land Preservation Act of 1975 (Title 75, ch. 7, part 7) was enacted to control projects not subject to this part. Because highway projects are governmental undertakings, all activities in such a project that may impact upon a stream are within the jurisdiction of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks under this part, including activities such as temporary work bridges erected at a private contractor's discretion and not reflected on the Department of Highways' (now Department of Transportation's) construction plans. 40 A.G. Op. 71 (1984).

Application of Streambed Act: The Legislature did not intend to regulate any federally constructed projects under The Natural Streambed and Land Preservation Act of 1975. However, the mere location of a nonfederal project on federal land does not preempt state regulation under the Act. The Act is applicable to private projects on state lands, but state or local projects are regulated by the Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission) under applicable statutes. As to Indian reservations, the Act does not apply to projects constructed by Indians within the reservations, but projects constructed by non-Indians on non-Indian land within a reservation may be regulated by the state if it does not interfere with tribal self-government. 37 A.G. Op. 15 (1977).

It is contemplated that the department establish rules for instituting an award program, including criteria to be used in determining who will receive the rewards and the amount of the rewards in order to guarantee that the rewards be granted through a reasonable and consistent procedure.

It is also contemplated that the department draft rules for guaranteeing the confidentiality of persons providing crime-related information. The rules must comply with the constitutional right to know and the right of privacy; confidentiality will be maintained only when the demand of individual privacy clearly exceeds the merits of public disclosure.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 770 (Ch. 624, L. 1985) provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because section 10 [87-5-704] grants rulemaking authority to both the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] and the department of fish, wildlife, and parks. Section 10 [87-5-704] specifies what sections each entity may implement.

It is the intent of the legislature that the department adopt detailed rules pertaining to the procedure for accepting and processing applications for permission to import for introduction, introduce, or transplant wildlife. The department should address information such as names of applicants, species of wildlife, source of obtaining wildlife, purpose for introducing or transplanting, benefit to the public, potential for harm, and processing fee.

It is the intent of the legislature that the commission review proposals for the introduction or transplantation of wildlife species in the state on a case-by-case basis. It is also the intent of the legislature that the department develop a plan for those applications approved by the commission to assure that the population can be controlled if unforeseen harm should occur."

Case Notes

Transfer of Alternative Livestock to Unlicensed Tribal Lands Illegal: The Wallaces, licensed alternative livestock ranchers, sought to reduce the size of their elk herd by transferring about 500 elk to the Crow Indian Reservation for subsequent release into the wild. The elk had been certified as free of tuberculosis, brucellosis, and elk-red deer hybridization by the Department of Livestock (DOL). Despite notification by the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks (DFWP) that such an act violated state law, the Wallaces transferred 68 elk to the tribe. DFWP requested and received a permanent injunction prohibiting any further transfer of elk to the tribe, and the Wallaces appealed, questioning DFWP jurisdiction. The Supreme Court noted that DFWP has a statutory basis for its jurisdiction over the Wallaces as licensees. Based on DFWP jurisdiction over exterior fencing, and the Department's knowledge that the elk would not be contained behind a game-proof fence upon delivery to the tribe, DFWP had statutory authority to seek the permanent injunction to prevent the transfer. Also, the introduction or transplantation of any wildlife into the wild, including game farm elk, requires the approval of DFWP. Further, 87-4-414 provides that alternative livestock may be kept only on a licensed alternative livestock ranch, and because the tribe is not a licensed facility under Montana law, neither DFWP nor DOL had authority to permit the transfer. The Wallaces knew that the elk were destined for an unlicensed location where they would be released into the wild and could migrate back into Montana, so the transfer violated the Wallaces' duty as licensees to act in accordance with law, and the District Court correctly enjoined the transportation of the elk. Hagener v. Wallace, 2002 MT 109, 309 M 473, 47 P3d 847 (2002).

2009 Amendment: Chapter 429 in (3) at end of first sentence after "within" substituted "a time set by the department, not to exceed 6 months" for "6 months of a conviction or sooner if ordered by the court". Amendment effective July 1, 2009.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 429, L. 2009, provided: "WHEREAS, invasive species can wreak damage on the economy, environment, recreational opportunities, and human health; and

WHEREAS, aquatic invasive species, including Eurasian watermilfoil, the quagga mussel, and the zebra mussel, pose new and imminent threats, which if left unchecked could cost millions of dollars not only in damage to Montana waterways, rivers, and lakes, to water storage, delivery, and irrigation systems, to hydroelectric power structures and systems, and to aquatic ecosystems, but also to the entire state economy; and

WHEREAS, the enormous impact caused by the zebra mussel is clearly demonstrated in the eastern United States where the species was first observed in Lake Ontario in 1988 and spread to Lake Michigan and the Finger Lakes Region in New York State by the following year; and

WHEREAS, the United States Geological Survey estimates that $5 billion has been spent thus far in the Great Lakes Basin alone for damages caused by and control efforts for the zebra mussel; and

WHEREAS, the zebra mussel was first discovered in Lake Mead in January 2007 and has now spread to Lakes Mojave and Havasu and the Colorado River, impacting the states of Arizona, Nevada, and California, as well as to Pueblo Reservoir in Colorado, San Justo Reservoir in California, and Electric Lake in Utah; and

WHEREAS, Eurasian watermilfoil, the zebra mussel, and the quagga mussel are easily carried on vessels used in infested water and then transported to another body of water if the vessel has not been properly cleaned; and

WHEREAS, Eurasian watermilfoil is already present in Montana and unless Montana takes action now to prevent the infestation of its waters with the zebra mussel and quagga mussel it is only a matter of time before their introduction in this state occurs; and

2005 Amendment: Chapter 281 inserted (3) relating to the disposition of illegally held exotic wildlife. Amendment effective April 19, 2005.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 344 in (2)(a), in first sentence, substituted "an offense" for "a misdemeanor" and substituted "$5,000 and imprisonment for up to 1 year" for "$1,000 or imprisonment for not more than 6 months, or both" and inserted second and third sentences allowing sentencing court to consider community service in lieu of imprisonment and prohibiting the sentencing court from deferring or suspending $500 of the fine amount.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 223 in (2)(a), after "$500", substituted language concerning $1,000 fine or imprisonment for "and may be fined up to the amount necessary to eliminate or mitigate the effects of the violation"; inserted (2)(b) regarding civil liability and damages; and made minor changes in style.

1991 Amendment: At beginning of (1) inserted exception clause; and inserted (2) relating to penalty for illegal importation, introduction, or transplantation of fish.

Case Notes

Fish and Game Restitution Not Within Jurisdiction of Justice Court: The Justice Court imposed a $515 fine, suspended fishing privileges, and ordered restitution in an amount necessary to mitigate the effects of the violation to be paid by a plaintiff who had intentionally introduced fish into Lake Mary Ronan. On appeal, the Supreme Court vacated the conviction and sentence, holding that the potentially limitless fine that could be imposed to mitigate the effects of a violation of the fish and game statute is inconsistent with the statute that grants Justices' Courts jurisdiction over violations of fish and game statutes that are punishable by a fine not exceeding $1,000. Moseley v. Lake County Justice Court, 256 M 206, 845 P2d 732, 50 St. Rep. 28 (1993).

CHAPTER 6
FISH AND WILDLIFE
CRIMINAL PROVISIONS

Chapter Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 258, L. 2011, provided: "WHEREAS, the 2007 Legislature passed House Joint Resolution No. 16, urging that revision of the criminal codes within Title 87 of the Montana Code Annotated be given priority; and

WHEREAS, House Joint Resolution No. 16 noted that practitioners, judges, and citizens find that the criminal codes intertwined within the fish and game laws in Title 87 are difficult to read, understand, and prosecute; and

WHEREAS, House Joint Resolution No. 16 directed that revision of the Title 87 criminal code should not include policy changes to current laws and should adhere to the intent of the legislatures that crafted the laws; and

WHEREAS, in 2008, the Director of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks appointed a Title 87 criminal code revision working group, consisting of Justices of the Peace, County Attorneys, an Assistant Attorney General, legal counsel and the enforcement administrator of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, and legislative staff; and

WHEREAS, the working group met numerous times and spent countless hours crafting a revision that makes the Title 87 criminal code more understandable without making substantive or policy changes to present law; and

WHEREAS, revision of the fish and game criminal statutes will benefit the hunting and fishing public, magistrates, and prosecutors by codifying crimes and penalties in a separate chapter of Montana law, rather than being intertwined throughout Title 87."

Effective Date: This chapter is effective October 1, 2011.

Source — Reorganization and Recodification: The 62nd Legislature, through the enactment of Senate Bill No. 124 (Ch. 258, L. 2011), significantly reorganized and recodified the fish and game criminal statutes. The following table provides numerical cross-references to former and new MCA sections.

Chapter 149 inserted definition of site of the kill; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2015.

87-6-104. Fish and game code not to supersede criminal code — statute of limitations.

Case Notes

Exclusivity of Title 87 as Remedy for Fish and Game Violations: Section 87-1-102(1) (1993) provided in part that a "person who purposely or knowingly violates any provision of this title, any other state law pertaining to fish and game, or the orders or rules of the commission or department is guilty of a misdemeanor, except if a felony is expressly provided by law, and shall be fined not less than $50 or more than $500, imprisoned in the county jail for not more than 6 months, or both, unless a different punishment is expressly provided by law for the violation". This provision limits penalties for fish and game violations to those provided in this title and precludes the charging of appellant with felony criminal mischief under Title 45. The portion of St. v. Fertterer, 255 M 73, 841 P2d 467 (1992), holding that this title does not provide the exclusive remedy for fish and game violations and allowing defendant to be charged with felony criminal mischief under Title 45, is manifestly wrong and is expressly overruled. St. v. Gatts, 279 M 42, 928 P2d 114, 53 St. Rep. 1042 (1996). (See 1997 enactment of this section.)

87-6-106. Lawful taking to protect livestock or person.

Case Notes

Claim of Defense of Person Invalid After Seventy-Two Hours: The District Court did not err in refusing to submit to the jury the issue of whether defendant shot a bobcat in defense of another person when defendant failed to notify the Department within 72 hours, as required by 87-3-130 (now repealed, but see 87-6-106). St. v. Gibbs, 244 M 251, 797 P2d 928, 47 St. Rep. 1584 (1990).

Part 2

General Hunting, Fishing, and Trapping Offenses

Part Case Notes

No Error in Suspending Hunting and Fishing Privileges for Outfitting Without License When Suspension Also Assessed for Fish and Game Violations: Ruiz was convicted of outfitting without a license and for several fish and game violations. The sentencing court suspended Ruiz's hunting and fishing privileges for both violations, designating the suspension periods to run concurrently. Ruiz appealed on grounds that it was error to suspend privileges for outfitting without a license. The Supreme Court agreed that 37-47-344 does not allow for the suspension of privileges for outfitting violations. However, 87-1-102 (now repealed) allows suspension for fish and game violations. The practical effect of the concurrent sentences was suspension in any event, and the District Court did not abuse its lawful discretion in suspending hunting and fishing privileges for Ruiz's violations. St. v. Ruiz, 2005 MT 117, 327 M 109, 112 P3d 1001 (2005).

Ten-Year Suspension of Accompaniment and Nongame Hunting Privileges Affirmed: Ruiz was convicted on numerous counts related to hunting, fishing, and outfitting. The District Court suspended Ruiz's privileges to accompany others and partake in nongame hunting for 10 years. Ruiz appealed on grounds that the 10-year suspension of privileges had little connection to and were not statutorily authorized for the underlying charges. The Supreme Court disagreed. Under 87-1-102 (now repealed), a long suspension period is authorized when warranted, and 46-18-202 also allows imposition of sentencing conditions that are reasonably related to the rehabilitation of the offender and the protection of the victim and society. The sentencing court was influenced by the fact that Ruiz attended college and majored in forestry, resource conservation, and wildlife biology and yet deliberately disregarded the hunting laws and regulations, in which he was well-versed, for money and personal benefit. In order to protect wildlife and slow down Ruiz's behavior, the significant restrictions of Ruiz's ability to engage in hunting were warranted. The 10-year suspension of privileges was legal and was affirmed. St. v. Ruiz, 2005 MT 117, 327 M 109, 112 P3d 1001 (2005).

Appeal to District Court Allowed Only After Trial in Lower Court, Not After Forfeiture of Bond — Exclusive Statutory Remedy for Appeals From Courts of Limited Jurisdiction: Kempin was charged in Justice's Court with seven fish and game violations but failed to appear for trial, so the appearance bonds that Kempin had posted were forfeited and Kempin's hunting, fishing, and trapping privileges were suspended for 10 years. Kempin appealed to the District Court within 10 days of the Justice's Court judgment, but the appeal was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction and because Kempin had no statutory right to appeal the forfeitures as a matter of law, so Kempin appealed to the Supreme Court. Under Art. VII, sec. 4, Mont. Const., District Courts must hear appeals from inferior courts as trials de novo unless otherwise provided by law, and appeal of a criminal conviction from a court of limited jurisdiction is governed exclusively by 46-17-311, which provides three circumstances under which a criminal defendant may appeal to District Court for a trial de novo: (1) when a defendant pleads guilty or nolo contendere but preserves legal issues raised by pretrial motion for appeal; (2) when a defendant files written notice of intention to appeal within 10 days after a judgment is rendered following a trial; and (3) when a defendant appeals revocation of a suspended sentence. Here, Kempin claimed that denial of a District Court trial by jury following forfeiture in Justice's Court violated his due process rights. However, Kempin raised no appealable pretrial issues, nor was the case an appeal of a suspended sentence, so the first and third circumstances did not apply. Kempin did appeal the judgment within 10 days, but there was no trial, so Kempin was not constitutionally entitled to a trial de novo when there had been no trial initially, nor is 46-17-311 unconstitutionally vague for not explicitly proscribing an appeal following a forfeiture. The Supreme Court agreed with the District Court's explanation in declining jurisdiction—that if a defendant was automatically entitled to a trial de novo on appeal without first having a trial in Justice's Court, a defendant could avoid Justice's Court altogether by not appearing and forfeiting the Justice's Court bonds and then pursuing a trial in District Court, which would render the Justice's Court system meaningless. Kempin's other due process arguments were also not compelling because Kempin waived his trial rights by failing to appear in Justice's Court to assert any constitutional rights and in light of his stated intention to forfeit the bonds and the advance notice of the suspension of the hunting, fishing, and trapping privileges. Absent any statutory basis for an appeal, dismissal of the appeal by the District Court was affirmed. St. v. Kempin, 2001 MT 313, 308 M 17, 38 P3d 859 (2001). See also St. v. Feight, 2001 MT 205, 306 M 312, 33 P3d 623 (2001), and St. v. Schulke, 2005 MT 77, 326 M 390, 109 P3d 744 (2005).

Exclusivity of Title 87 as Remedy for Fish and Game Violations:

Section 87-1-102(1) (1993) (now repealed) provided in part that a "person who purposely or knowingly violates any provision of this title, any other state law pertaining to fish and game, or the orders or rules of the commission or department is guilty of a misdemeanor, except if a felony is expressly provided by law, and shall be fined not less than $50 or more than $500, imprisoned in the county jail for not more than 6 months, or both, unless a different punishment is expressly provided by law for the violation". This provision limits penalties for fish and game violations to those provided in this title and precludes the charging of appellant with felony criminal mischief under Title 45. The portion of St. v. Fertterer, 255 M 73, 841 P2d 467 (1992), holding that this title does not provide the exclusive remedy for fish and game violations and allowing defendant to be charged with felony criminal mischief under Title 45, is manifestly wrong and is expressly overruled. St. v. Gatts, 279 M 42, 928 P2d 114, 53 St. Rep. 1042 (1996). (See 1997 enactment of 87-1-110 (now repealed, but see 87-6-104) and 1999 amendment.)

Defendants Richard and David Fertterer were convicted of felony criminal mischief for illegally killing game. They contended on appeal that because of the differences in misdemeanor penalties under Title 87 and felony penalties under Title 45, it is manifestly unjust for them to be convicted under 45-6-101 and is contrary to the intent of the Legislature. Citing the language of 87-1-102 (now repealed), the Supreme Court held that the Legislature did not intend Title 87 to constitute the exclusive penalties for fish and game violations because the penalties under 45-6-101 constitute the "different punishment" contemplated by 87-1-102 (now repealed). St. v. Fertterer, 255 M 73, 841 P2d 467, 49 St. Rep. 846 (1992).

Hours of Hunting Sufficiently Clear to Withstand Due Process Challenge: After he shot a bull elk half an hour before sunrise, Johnston was arrested for hunting before the allowed time. Johnston challenged the rules of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks as being inconsistent, ambiguous, vague, and factually erroneous. The Supreme Court held that the rules establishing the time of sunrise within the hunting district where Johnston shot the elk were clear in that they precisely defined the time of sunrise on the day Johnston shot the elk, leaving no room to guess at what time a hunter could begin shooting. St. v. Johnston, 263 M 179, 867 P2d 1090, 51 St. Rep. 5 (1994).

Jurisdiction — Hunting and Fishing: Flathead Tribe had jurisdiction to regulate fishing upon Crow Creek Reservoir, and violation of tribal ordinance requiring permit for fishing constituted federal offense. U.S. v. Zempel, 32 St. Rep. 1130 (D.C. Mont. 1975). (Annotator's Comment: This case was not published in F. Supp.)

Seasons on Indian Reservation: Conviction of non-Indian for killing two bull elk on Crow Indian Reservation during season closed by state fish and game laws was not in conflict with act of Congress providing penalty for trespass to possessory rights of reservation Indians or in conflict with The Enabling Act providing that Indian lands shall remain under the absolute jurisdiction and control of Congress of United States. State ex rel. Nepstad v. Danielson, 149 M 438, 427 P2d 689 (1967), followed in U.S. v. Sanford, 547 F2d 1089 (9th Cir. 1976).

Failure to Tag Deer: When plaintiff lawfully killed a deer but failed to fill out the tag attached to his hunting license and attach it to the carcass, the deer was not unlawfully possessed and the Game Warden was without authority to seize and confiscate the carcass when he arrested plaintiff for failure to attach the tag. Shipman v. Todd, 131 M 365, 310 P2d 300 (1957).

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Duty of Judge to Notify Defendant of Potential Forfeiture of Hunting, Fishing, and Trapping Privileges — Notification of Loss of Privileges Duty of Department: In order to ensure that a knowing plea is entered by a defendant accused of a fish and game violation, a judge must inform the defendant of the potential forfeiture of hunting, fishing, and trapping privileges as a result of a conviction, guilty plea, or forfeiture of bond in the case of offenses for which the loss of privileges is a direct and immediate consequence of the violation. Notification of the loss of hunting, fishing, and trapping privileges is statutorily delegated to the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks. 49 A.G. Op. 20 (2002).

87-6-202. Unlawful possession, shipping, or transportation of game fish, bird, game animal, or fur-bearing animal.Compiler's Comments

2013 Amendment: Chapter 137 inserted (2)(f) relating to salvaged animals; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2013.

Case Notes

Supervisory Control Granted — Statute of Limitations Improperly Applied: The plain language of 87-6-202 makes it illegal to possess illegally taken wildlife. Because the illegal conduct is possession, the crime continues as long as the offender possesses the animal. The statute of limitations begins to run when the offender no longer possesses the animal and thus has stopped violating the law. St. v. Second Judicial District Court, 2015 MT 294, 381 Mont. 250, 358 P.3d 895.

Felony Convictions for Unlawful Possession of Game Animals Affirmed — Jury Instructions Proper: The jury found that Norman illegally possessed two buck mule deer, one antelope, and one bull elk in 2007, one cow elk and one buck mule deer in November 2004, and one antelope and one bull elk in 2003, in violation of either 87-1-111 or 87-1-115 (now repealed, but see 87-6-906 and 87-6-907). Under each count, the jury found that the value of the animals either individually or in the aggregate exceeded $1,000. Norman argued on appeal that the District Court improperly instructed the jury by not specifically instructing on the element of value. Norman also argued that, pursuant to the first count, the animals were not part of the "same transaction" under 87-3-111 (now repealed) because they were killed on different dates. Norman also objected to a special instruction that indicated that the jury needed to find Norman guilty of only one offense under each count. The Supreme Court affirmed. The court was not "firmly convinced" that its failure to review the instructions would result in a manifest miscarriage of justice, leave unsettled the question of the fundamental fairness of the trial or proceedings, or compromise the integrity of the judicial process. In addition, the prosecutor's grouping of the animals as part of the "same transaction," which allowed the value of the animals to be aggregated, was not improper, and Norman did not object at trial to the special instruction provided to the jury. St. v. Norman, 2010 MT 253, 358 Mont. 252, 244 P.3d 737.

Interpretation of License Suspension Requirements: Following Cotterell's conviction for possession of unlawfully killed game animals, the District Court suspended Cotterell's hunting, fishing, and trapping privileges for 2 years from the date of conviction. Cotterell objected on grounds that the court misinterpreted 87-1-102 (now repealed, but see 87-6-202) by concluding that it could not suspend the 2-year forfeiture with appropriate conditions and by suspending fishing privileges even though the convicted offenses were unrelated to fishing. The Supreme Court affirmed the license forfeiture. A violation of 87-1-102(2)(b) (now repealed) triggers a mandatory license forfeiture, and nothing in former subsection (2)(b) allows a sentencing court to suspend any portion of the forfeiture period. Further, the forfeiture of fishing privileges is not tied to violation of any fishing laws but was specifically tied to the offense for which Cotterell was convicted, and nothing in former subsection (2)(b) allows a sentencing court to sever fishing privileges from hunting and trapping privileges. St. v. Cotterell, 2008 MT 409, 347 M 231, 198 P3d 254 (2008).

Sufficient Corroborating Evidence to Testimony of Legally Accountable Witness: Corroborating evidence included testimony of the wife of a witness deemed legally accountable for offense, the hunting license records produced by a game warden, the testimony by a game warden as to the opening date of hunting season in 2002, a photo of defendant with the bear carcass, and the game warden's testimony that he inspected bear parts in a freezer located in a lodge owned by defendant. This was sufficient to support an accountable witness's testimony regarding unlawful possession of an illegally killed bear. St. v. Wendler, 2008 MT 370, 346 M 467, 197 P3d 932 (2008).

No Expectation of Privacy in Animal Cape Taken to Taxidermist: Bowman took an elk cape to a taxidermist for mounting, but the cape was seized without a warrant when wildlife officials received a tip that Bowman had taken the elk out of season. Bowman contended that the evidence should be suppressed because the search was unlawful. On appeal, the Supreme Court noted that a determination of whether a search is lawful depends in part on whether a person has an actual expectation of privacy that society is willing to recognize as reasonable and that one factor in determining a legitimate expectation of privacy is the extent to which the person took measures to shield the property from public view. Here, any expectation of privacy that Bowman had in the cape was relinquished when, without taking any measures to preserve a claim of privacy, the cape was taken to a public business and placed in possession of a third party, even if the transfer was only temporary. St. v. Bowman, 2004 MT 119, 321 M 176, 89 P3d 986 (2004).

Sufficient Evidence That Hunter Used Firearm to Take Elk During Archery Season — Conviction Affirmed: Following conviction for taking a game animal out of season by using a firearm to kill an elk during archery season and for illegal possession of a game animal, Bowman appealed on grounds that there was insufficient evidence to support the verdict. The Supreme Court disagreed, finding sufficient evidence establishing that: (1) the size of entrance wounds in the elk cape were similar to the caliber of more than one weapon found and seized in Bowman's home; (2) the elk Bowman possessed died in close proximity to the time that the bullet wounds were made; and (3) given the position of the entrance and exit wounds in the elk cape, bullets likely caused damage to a major artery, vein, or muscle tissue, caused shock to the spinal cord, and could also have hit the larynx and trachea. The arrow identified by Bowman as the one used to kill the animal had plant material on the blade that was probably from the elk's stomach. Based on the evidence, a jury could have found the essential elements of the crime beyond a reasonable doubt, and the Supreme Court declined to disturb the verdict. St. v. Bowman, 2004 MT 119, 321 M 176, 89 P3d 986 (2004).

Warrants Based on Anonymous Tip Sufficiently Corroborated by Inculpatory Information — Motion to Suppress Evidence Properly Denied: Wildlife officials received an anonymous tip that Bowman had taken an elk out of season and seized evidence at a taxidermy shop and at Bowman's home pursuant to two warrants. Bowman moved to suppress the evidence, contending that the warrant applications did not state probable cause. The motion was denied, and on appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed. After receiving the anonymous tip, the wildlife officials obtained independent data that revealed inculpatory information corroborating the criminal conduct disclosed by the tip, which provided a substantial basis to determine that probable cause existed to issue the warrants. Bowman's motion to suppress was properly denied. St. v. Bowman, 2004 MT 119, 321 M 176, 89 P3d 986 (2004).

Sale of Eagle Parts — Federal Violation Notwithstanding Claims of Religious Use: Frank and William Hugs admitted active involvement in purchasing and selling eagles and eagle parts but claimed that they did so for religious purposes. Following an undercover investigation, they were convicted of a violation of the federal Bald and Golden Eagle Protection Act (BGEPA), 16 U.S.C. 668(a), which prohibits the taking of eagle parts for religious purposes unless the person has obtained the proper federal permit. The Huges claimed that the BGEPA infringed on their constitutional guarantee of free exercise of religion and that actions of the undercover agent were so outrageous as to warrant dismissal of the prosecution. The Huges could challenge only the facial validity of the BGEPA, not the operation of the underlying administrative scheme, because they did not possess a permit and never applied for one. On appeal, it was held that the statute and permit system, while imposing a substantial burden on the practice of religion by restricting the ability of adherents to obtain and possess eagles and eagle parts, nevertheless provided the least restrictive means of conserving eagles while permitting access to eagles and eagle parts for religious purposes. Further, the undercover agent's conduct fell short of the level of outrageousness required to invalidate a prosecution under the due process clause. Judgment was affirmed. U.S. v. Hugs, 109 F3d 1375 (9th Cir. 1997).

Authority of Tribal Warden to Detain and Turn Nontribal Member Over to State Game Warden: Horseman was detained by a tribal warden and turned over to a state game warden, who had requested that Horseman be detained for possessing an illegally killed game animal. Horseman argued that he had been unlawfully extradited. The Supreme Court held that Horseman, although Indian, was not a member of the tribe on whose reservation he had been detained and that under Duro v. Reina, 495 US 676 (1990), the tribal game warden had the authority to detain a nontribal member and turn the person over to state authorities. St. v. Horseman, 263 M 87, 866 P2d 1110, 50 St. Rep. 1720 (1993).

No Treaty Hunting Rights Off Reservation: Horseman was charged with possessing unlawfully killed game. He argued that an 1855 treaty gave him the right to hunt on traditional tribal hunting grounds located outside the reservation. The Supreme Court held that the treaty Horseman based his argument on had only been for 99 years and had expired in 1954. St. v. Horseman, 263 M 87, 866 P2d 1110, 50 St. Rep. 1720 (1993).

Tribal Members Subject to State Hunting Laws Off Reservation: Horseman argued that he could not be charged with possession of unlawfully killed game because, as a tribal member, he was not subject to state game laws. The Supreme Court held that the game had been killed off the reservation and that the state may assume jurisdiction in disputes concerning Indians that arise outside the reservation. St. v. Horseman, 263 M 87, 866 P2d 1110, 50 St. Rep. 1720 (1993).

Market Value of Deer Taken in Violation of Lacey Act: The prohibition in the Lacey Act against offering guide services for the illegal taking of wildlife does not involve the "sale" of game in the traditional sense. Rather, the commodity being sold is the opportunity to illegally hunt game with the assistance of a guide. In determining the market value of illegally taken deer, the fine imposed under Montana law for illegal taking did not establish market value, nor was that value established by the value of the deer if sold in open market. Rather, the market value is the amount that hunters were willing to pay for the guide's services. U.S. v. Atkinson, 966 F2d 1270 (9th Cir. 1992).

Trafficking as Misdemeanor by Classification: Regardless of the statement in 87-3-111 (now repealed, but see 87-6-202), prior to 1991 amendment, that trafficking in game animals is a felony, because the jail sentence for a trafficking violation does not exceed 1 year, under classification rules provided by the Legislature prior to 1991, trafficking may not be considered a felony. St. v. Gibbs, 244 M 251, 797 P2d 928, 47 St. Rep. 1584 (1990).

Application of Federal Lacey Act to Outfitting and Guiding — Statute of Limitations on Charges of Conspiracy: While a prosecution under the federal Lacey Act, 16 U.S.C. 3371, et seq., which prohibits transportation or acquisition in interstate commerce of wildlife in violation of state laws, may not properly be had for the substantive acts of selling guiding services and hunting permits, a prosecution can be maintained for conspiracies to violate the Act while providing outfitting and guiding services, such as arranging for out-of-state hunters to use elk licenses and permits belonging to other hunters, knowing that any elk taken would be transported out of state. The Act applied when evidence was sufficient to establish the involvement of defendant, a hunting guide and outfitter, in a conspiracy to transport elk in interstate commerce in violation of Montana law. Further, the 5-year "catchall" statute of limitations set out in 18 U.S.C. 3282 applied to charges of conspiring to violate the Act. U.S. v. Thomas, 887 F2d 1341 (9th Cir. 1989), distinguishing U.S. v. Stenberg, 803 F2d 422 (9th Cir. 1986).

Provision of Guiding Service Not an Offer to Sell Wildlife Prohibited by Federal Law: The alleged provision of guiding services to an unlicensed hunter does not constitute an illegal sale or offer to sell wildlife under the federal Lacey Act (16 U.S.C. 3372, 3373). U.S. v. Stenberg, 803 F2d 422 (9th Cir. 1986).

Felony Offense Versus Misdemeanor Offense — Jury Instruction: Hankins was convicted of trafficking in the unlawfully obtained body parts of a protected species in violation of 87-3-111 (now repealed, but see 87-6-202). On appeal, Hankins argued that the court's jury instructions failed to distinguish between the felony and the misdemeanor offenses under 87-3-111 (now repealed, but see 87-6-202). When read together, however, the jury instructions clearly drew a distinction between the felony offense charged and the lesser included misdemeanor offense. St. v. Hankins, 209 M 365, 680 P2d 958, 41 St. Rep. 762 (1984). See also St. v. Gibbs, 244 M 251, 797 P2d 928, 47 St. Rep. 1584 (1990).

Trafficking — Jury Instruction: It is not reversible error to give a jury instruction defining "trafficking" that is taken directly from 87-3-111 (now repealed, but see 87-6-202). St. v. Hankins, 209 M 365, 680 P2d 958, 41 St. Rep. 762 (1984).

87-6-204. Hunting or fishing during closed season.

Case Notes

No Expectation of Privacy in Animal Cape Taken to Taxidermist: Bowman took an elk cape to a taxidermist for mounting, but the cape was seized without a warrant when wildlife officials received a tip that Bowman had taken the elk out of season. Bowman contended that the evidence should be suppressed because the search was unlawful. On appeal, the Supreme Court noted that a determination of whether a search is lawful depends in part on whether a person has an actual expectation of privacy that society is willing to recognize as reasonable and that one factor in determining a legitimate expectation of privacy is the extent to which the person took measures to shield the property from public view. Sufficient Evidence That Hunter Used Firearm to Take Elk During Archery Season — Conviction Affirmed: Following conviction for taking a game animal out of season by using a firearm to kill an elk during archery season and for illegal possession of a game animal, Bowman appealed on grounds that there was insufficient evidence to support the verdict. reasonable doubt, and the Supreme Court declined to disturb the verdict. St. v. Bowman, 2004 MT 119, 321 M 176, 89 P3d 986 (2004).

Warrants Based on Anonymous Tip Sufficiently Corroborated by Inculpatory Information — Motion to Suppress Evidence Properly Denied: Wildlife officials received an anonymous tip that Bowman had taken an elk out of season and seized evidence at a taxidermy shop and at Bowman's home pursuant to two warrants. Bowman moved to suppress the evidence, contending that the warrant applications did not state probable cause. The motion was denied, and on appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed. Bowman's motion to suppress was properly denied. St. v. Bowman, 2004 MT 119, 321 M 176, 89 P3d 986 (2004).

Road Hunter Pleading Ignorance: The defendant argued that the state did not prove that he knew road hunting was illegal or that he knew it was not hunting season. The Supreme Court ruled that ignorance of the law is no excuse. St. v. Lynn, 243 M 430, 795 P2d 429, 47 St. Rep. 1288 (1990).

Indians Hunting on Open and Unclaimed Land: Members of the Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes have a right to hunt free from the regulation of Montana game laws on "open and unclaimed lands" by virtue of Article II of the Treaty of Hell Gate and this includes National Forest Service land. St. v. Stasso, 172 M 242, 563 P2d 562 (1977).

Regulation Subject to Constitutional Guaranties: On appeal from a conviction of killing an elk out of season, defendant's defense was predicated upon the constitutional guaranties under sec. 3, 13, and 29, Art. III, 1889 Mont. Const. (now sec. 3 and 12, 1972 Mont. Const.), of the right to enjoy and defend one's property; held, under the facts presented, that legal justification may always be interposed as a defense by a person charged with killing a wild animal contrary to law, and that the general law on the right to use force, 49-1-103, must be construed in pari materia with 87-3-104 (now repealed, but see 87-6-204) when found inoperative, otherwise 87-3-104 (now repealed, but see 87-6-204) would be unconstitutional as denying an inalienable right. Reversed and remanded for a new trial. St. v. Rathbone, 110 M 225, 100 P2d 86 (1940).

Commission Empowered to Lengthen Hunting Season: A temporary order restraining the State Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission) from putting into effect its order lengthening the hunting season on elk in a certain locality, thus modifying the law on fixing of seasons, was improper since under section 26-104, R.C.M. 1947, declaring prior to amendment that the statutes governing "such subjects" should continue in force and effect except as altered or modified by the rules and regulations of the Commission, the Legislature so empowered the Commission, amounting to modification of existing statutes. State ex rel. Fish & Game Comm'n v. District Court, 107 M 289, 84 P2d 798 (1938).

2011 Code Commissioner Correction: In (4) the Code Commissioner substituted "87-3-131" for "87-3-110". Section 87-3-110 was repealed by Ch. 113, L. 2011, and 87-3-110(4) was enacted by Ch. 258, L. 2011. The Code Commissioner has codified 87-3-110(4) from Ch. 258 as 87-3-131.

Case Notes

Waste of Game Animal — Photos of Moldy Carcass Held Probative — No Substantial Change in Condition: Wilmer was charged with waste of a game animal under 87-3-102 (now repealed, but see 87-6-205) and objected to introduction of a photo of the carcass at trial because 3 days had passed between when the carcass was confiscated and when the photo was taken and because there may have been bite marks on it. The Supreme Court noted that roughly 70 days had passed between when the deer was shot and when it was confiscated and that the game warden insisted that the photo showed the condition of the carcass when it was confiscated. The Supreme Court held that the additional 3 days could not have altered the carcass significantly, that the lack of odor of the meat in the photographs went to the weight of the evidence and not its admissibility, that the photos were not unduly prejudicial, and that the District Court properly admitted the photographs. St. v. Wilmer, 2011 MT 78, 360 Mont. 101, 252 P.3d 178.

Crime of Waste of Game as Absolute Liability Offense: Defendant contended that because the offense of wasting game meat is punishable by a fine in excess of $500, the offense may not be classed as an absolute liability offense. However, the second element of 45-2-104, wherein a clear legislative purpose validates the imposition of absolute liability, was indicated by the obvious statutory intent to preserve game resources for the benefit of the public and by the recognition of the state's duty to protect public wildlife resources. The trial court did not err in failing to instruct the jury on criminal intent. St. v. Huebner, 252 M 184, 827 P2d 1260, 49 St. Rep. 210 (1992).

Forfeiture of Game Properly Applied in Case of Waste of Mountain Goat: Defendant was convicted of wasting game contrary to the provisions of 87-3-102 (now repealed, but see 87-6-205). He contended that it was improper to impose a penalty of forfeiture of the head, cape, and horns of the mountain goat he killed legally. Having failed to comply with the requirement that he not waste the meat, defendant was subject to the game warden's authority under 87-1-506 to seize any parts of the animal. Imposition of forfeiture was not contrary to law. St. v. Huebner, 252 M 184, 827 P2d 1260, 49 St. Rep. 210 (1992).

No Arbitrary Exceptions in Game Waste Statute: Unlike the spotlighting statute considered in St. v. Austin, 217 M 265, 704 P2d 55 (1985), 87-3-102 (now repealed, but see 87-6-205) does not contain exceptions that would permit arbitrary and irrational enforcement sufficient to render the statute unconstitutional. St. v. Huebner, 252 M 184, 827 P2d 1260, 49 St. Rep. 210 (1992).

Statute Not Vague or Overbroad: Defendant contended that 87-3-102 (now repealed, but see 87-6-205) was unconstitutionally vague because it did not clearly set forth the prohibited conduct. The Supreme Court disagreed, holding that the statute did not fail to give a person of ordinary intelligence a reasonable opportunity to know what was prohibited so that person could act accordingly. Defendant's contention that 87-3-102 (now repealed, but see 87-6-205) was overbroad, in that it could be construed to prohibit otherwise legal activities of a hunter or taxidermist who removed the head, horns, and cape at any time, was also disaffirmed. The court noted that it is not the removal of the specified body parts that is illegal, but rather the removal of only those parts without using the remainder of the animal. St. v. Huebner, 252 M 184, 827 P2d 1260, 49 St. Rep. 210 (1992).

87-6-206. Unlawful sale of game fish, bird, game animal, or fur-bearing animal.

Case Notes

Admission of Evidence of Prior Game Farm (now Alternative Livestock Ranch) Acts Proper: The District Court did not err in admitting evidence of prior game farm (now alternative livestock ranch) acts and in limiting references to those acts and not to any subsequent convictions since the earlier case was still pending on appeal because: (1) the prior acts were sufficiently similar, although not identical, to those for which defendant was presently charged; (2) the acts, although occurring 3 years prior, were not so remote as to be inadmissible because of the similarity of the acts; and (3) the state's purpose in introducing the evidence was to establish absence of mistake or accident regarding defendant's possession of unlawfully taken wildlife. St. v. Brogan, 272 M 156, 900 P2d 284, 52 St. Rep. 636 (1995). See also St. v. Matt, 249 M 136, 814 P2d 52 (1991), and St. v. Romero, 261 M 221, 861 P2d 929 (1993).

Statute Not Unconstitutionally Vague: Brogan challenged the constitutionality of 87-3-118 (now repealed) as being void for vagueness because it does not sufficiently define "constructive possession" and thus does not give a reasonable person notice of what conduct is proscribed and because no specific intent to possess unlawfully taken wildlife is required. Applying St. v. Crisp, 249 M 199, 814 P2d 981 (1991), the Supreme Court held that by incorporating the intent element of purposely and knowingly, which are statutorily defined terms, into the definition of the offense of possession of unlawfully taken wildlife, the Legislature has given fair warning of the mental state that is an element of the offense. Further, although the term "constructive possession" is not defined by statute, it has been defined in St. v. Meader, 184 M 32, 601 P2d 386 (1979), to mean that the goods are not in actual, physical possession but that the person charged with possession has dominion and control over the goods. Thus, 87-3-118 (now repealed) is not unconstitutionally vague by virtue of the mental state element of the offense or the absence of a statutory definition of "constructive possession". (See 1995 amendment.) St. v. Brogan, 272 M 156, 900 P2d 284, 52 St. Rep. 636 (1995). Meader was followed, as to constructive possession of a firearm, in St. v. Caekaert, 1999 MT 147, 295 M 42, 983 P2d 332, 56 St. Rep. 583 (1999).

2013 Amendment: Chapter 355 deleted former (1) and (2) that read: "(1) Except as provided in 87-3-126, a person may not:

(a) kill, take, or shoot at any game bird, game animal, or fur-bearing animal from an aircraft, including a helicopter;

(b) use an aircraft or helicopter for the purpose of concentrating, pursuing, driving, rallying, or stirring up any game bird, migratory bird, game animal, or fur-bearing animal; or

(c) if in an aircraft, including a helicopter, spot or locate any game animal or fur-bearing animal and communicate the location of the game animal or fur-bearing animal to any person on the ground by means of any air-to-ground communication signal or other device as an aid to hunting or pursuing wildlife.

(2) Unless permitted by the department, a person may not use an aircraft, including a helicopter, for hunting purposes within the boundaries of a national forest except when persons or cargo are loaded and unloaded at federal aviation agency approved airports, aircraft landing fields, or heliports that have been established on private property or that have been established by any federal, state, county, or municipal governmental body. Hunting purposes include the transportation of hunters or wildlife and hunting equipment and supplies. The provisions of this subsection do not apply:

(a) during emergency situations;

(b) when search and rescue operations are being conducted; or

Case Notes

Defendant Without Standing to Challenge Constitutionality of Hunter Harassment Law on Basis of Vagueness: Lilburn alleged that the hunter harassment law is unconstitutionally vague because it leaves several key terms undefined so that there is no statutory guidance to law enforcement officers or the public as to what type of conduct is prohibited. The Supreme Court held that Lilburn's conduct in standing between a hunter and a bison clearly was conduct that disturbed the hunter in the taking of game and that since Lilburn's conduct is clearly prohibited, he did not have standing to raise a facial vagueness challenge. St. v. Lilburn, 265 M 258, 875 P2d 1036, 51 St. Rep. 507 (1994), followed in St. v. Stubblefield, 283 M 292, 940 P2d 444, 54 St. Rep. 605 (1997).

Hunter Harassment Law Not Violation of Free Speech Rights or Overbroad: Lilburn challenged the hunter harassment law on the basis that its prohibition of "dissuading" a hunter from taking a wild animal is content-based and designed to prevent the message contained in the dissuading language. The Supreme Court held that the Legislature did not use the term "dissuade" in isolation and that, reading the statute as a whole, it is clear that the conduct proscribed is the "disturbance" of a hunter engaged in a lawful activity. The Supreme Court also held that the law is not overbroad and that, to the extent that the statute might reach constitutionally protected expression, whatever overbreadth might exist should be cured on a case-by-case analysis of the fact situations. St. v. Lilburn, 265 M 258, 875 P2d 1036, 51 St. Rep. 507 (1994).

Case Notes

Stopping Short of and Subsequent Failure to Stop at Game Check Station — Particularized Suspicion Justifying Traffic Stop: A game warden observed Clark stopping short of a game check station, exiting the vehicle, then reentering the vehicle and driving past the check station. Based on Clark's actions, the warden suspected that Clark might have stopped to hide or change something before reaching the check station, so wardens stopped Clark's vehicle. Clark exhibited signs of intoxication and was subsequently arrested by the Highway Patrol for DUI. Clark contended that wardens had no particularized suspicion to stop the vehicle for a possible fish and game violation and that evidence from the vehicle search should be suppressed. The District Court denied Clark's suppression motion, and on appeal the Supreme Court affirmed. The game warden possessed a reasonable suspicion based on articulable facts and experience from which to draw an inference that Clark might have committed a game violation sufficient to warrant stopping Clark's vehicle. St. v. Clark, 2009 MT 327, 353 M 1, 218 P3d 483 (2009).

Case Notes

Three-Year Statute of Limitations Reasonable for Prosecution of Misdemeanor Fish and Game Violations — Equal Protection and Due Process Not Violated: Defendant was charged with five misdemeanor fish and game and outfitter violations that occurred nearly 2 years earlier. Although misdemeanor violations must generally be charged within 1 year, 45-1-205(5) and (6) allow charges for misdemeanor fish and game crimes to be brought within 3 years of violation. Defendant contended that the extended statute of limitations for charging fish and game crimes violated equal protection and due process guarantees. The District Court reviewed the legislative history of 45-1-205(5) and (6) and concluded that the extended statute of limitations served a reasonable relation to the proper legislative purpose of protecting wildlife and that in order to effectively enforce fish and game laws, additional time to discover and investigate fish and game violations was warranted. The Supreme Court agreed. A separate class of misdemeanors for fish and game violations did not violate equal protection because all persons who commit such crimes are in a similarly situated class and subject to the same treatment. Further, because fish and game and outfitter violations sometimes require investigation over several hunting seasons and involve perpetrators who reside out of state, an extended statute of limitations is a reasonable exercise of the state's legitimate police power in preserving wildlife and does not violate substantive due process. St. v. Egendorf, 2003 MT 264, 317 M 436, 77 P3d 517 (2003).

Taking Elk Without Valid License — Consent Defense Invalid: Undercover government agents did not consent to defendant's shooting of elk without a valid Montana hunting license when they provided defendant with a false hunting license. Defendant did not know that the persons who provided him the license were government agents but did know that he was shooting elk without a valid license. Defendant's proposed consent instruction improperly propounded a theory akin to entrapment without stating the proper elements of entrapment and was correctly disallowed. U.S. v. Heuer, 916 F2d 1557 (9th Cir. 1990).

Case Notes

Game Warden May Reasonably Request Production of Hunting or Fishing License — Particularized Suspicion of Criminal Activity Inapplicable: Initially concerned for the safety of the occupants of a seemingly unoccupied watercraft, a game warden was assured of Boyer's safety, but when Boyer told the warden that he had been fishing, the warden asked to see Boyer's fishing license. Boyer contended that the warden needed a particularized suspicion of wrongdoing to effectuate detention and the request for the license. However, under 87-2-109 (now repealed, but see 87-6-304) it is unlawful to refuse to show one's fishing license upon demand, and the warden had authority under 87-1-502 to request production of the license. In light of these provisions, the Supreme Court declined to imply a particularized suspicion into the statutes, holding that a game warden may request production of a hunting or fishing license when circumstances reasonably indicate that an individual has been engaged in those activities. St. v. Boyer, 2002 MT 33, 308 M 276, 42 P3d 771 (2002).

Application of Federal Lacey Act to Outfitting and Guiding — Statute of Limitations on Charges of Conspiracy: While a prosecution under the federal Lacey Act, 16 U.S.C. 3371, et seq., which prohibits transportation or acquisition in interstate commerce of wildlife in violation of state laws, may not properly be had for the substantive acts of selling guiding services and hunting permits, a prosecution can be maintained for conspiracies to violate the Act while providing outfitting and guiding services, such as arranging for out-of-state hunters to use elk licenses and permits belonging to other hunters, knowing that any elk taken would be transported out of state. The Act applied when evidence was sufficient to establish the involvement of defendant, a hunting guide and outfitter, in a conspiracy to transport elk in interstate commerce in violation of Montana law. Further, the 5-year "catchall" statute of limitations set out in 18 U.S.C. 3282 applied to charges of conspiring to violate the Act. U.S. v. Thomas, 887 F2d 1341 (9th Cir. 1989), distinguishing U.S. v. Stenberg, 803 F2d 422 (9th Cir. 1986).

Illegal Sale of Special Season Elk Tag Not an Offer to Sell Wildlife Prohibited by Federal Law: The alleged sale of a special season elk tag in violation of 87-2-110 (now repealed, but see 87-6-304) did not constitute an illegal sale or offer to sell wildlife under the federal Lacey Act (16 U.S.C. 3372, 3373). U.S. v. Stenberg, 803 F2d 422 (9th Cir. 1986).

Case Notes

Court Not to Imply Mental State Requirement: The Supreme Court will not imply a mental state in a statute prohibiting spotlighting while hunting when that statute (87-3-122, now repealed) does not include a mental state. To do so would arbitrarily make some persons guilty of an offense, while excepting others committing the offense. St. v. Austin, 217 M 265, 704 P2d 55, 42 St. Rep. 1186 (1985).

Invalid Classification: The classification created by 87-3-122's (now repealed) exemption from its coverage of landowners, lessees, or their agents is not rationally related to the state interest involved, that is, protection of its wildlife. Section 87-3-122 (now repealed) allowed exceptions that would permit arbitrary and irrational enforcement by law enforcement officers and was a nullity. It was inadequate to serve the legislative purpose of prohibiting the use of artificial light with the intent to hunt for animals. St. v. Austin, 217 M 265, 704 P2d 55, 42 St. Rep. 1186 (1985).

Validity of Statute Under Which Defendant Not Charged: In ruling 87-3-122 (repealed, 1991) inadequate to serve its legislative purpose and a violation of equal protection, the Supreme Court stated that 87-3-101 (now repealed, but see 87-6-401) correctly prohibits spotlighting in connection with hunting. St. v. Austin, 217 M 265, 704 P2d 55, 42 St. Rep. 1186 (1985).

Case Notes

Road Hunter Pleading Ignorance: The defendant argued that the state did not prove that he knew road hunting was illegal or that he knew it was not hunting season. The Supreme Court ruled that ignorance of the law is no excuse. St. v. Lynn, 243 M 430, 795 P2d 429, 47 St. Rep. 1288 (1990).

Shooting From Public Highway or Its Shoulder: The defendant argued that the state had not proved that he had fired at game from a public highway. The Supreme Court stated that the elements of an offense can be proved by circumstantial evidence, including in the case before it the fact that casings of the same brand as those used by the defendant were found beside the road. St. v. Lynn, 243 M 430, 795 P2d 429, 47 St. Rep. 1288 (1990).

2015 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 408 substituted current (1) through (3) concerning unlawful use of vehicle for former (1) through (4) that read: “(1) Except as provided in 87-2-803(4), a person may not:

(a) hunt or attempt to hunt any game animal or game bird from any self-propelled or drawn vehicle; or

(b) use a self-propelled vehicle to intentionally concentrate, drive, rally, stir up, or harass wildlife, except predators of this state. This subsection (1)(b) does not apply to landowners and their authorized agents engaged in the immediate protection of that landowner's property.

(2) Except as provided in 87-2-803(4), a person may not, while hunting a game animal or bird:

(a) drive or attempt to drive, run or attempt to run, molest or attempt to molest, flush or attempt to flush, or harass or attempt to harass a game animal or game bird with the use or aid of a motor-driven vehicle;

(b) use a motor-driven vehicle other than on an established road or trail unless the person has reduced a big game animal to possession and cannot easily retrieve the big game animal. In that case, a motor-driven vehicle may be used to retrieve the big game animal, except in areas where more restrictive regulations apply or where the landowner has not granted permission. After the retrieval, the motor-driven vehicle must be returned to an established road or trail by the shortest possible route. For purposes of safety and allowing normal travel, a motor-driven vehicle may be parked on the roadside or directly adjacent to a road or trail.

(c) drive through any retired cropland, brush area, slough area, timber area, open prairie, or unharvested or harvested cropland, except upon an established road or trail, unless written permission has been given by the landowner and is in possession of the hunter.

(3) The restrictions in subsection (2) on motor-driven vehicle use off an established road or trail apply only to hunting on state or private land and not to hunting on federal land unless the federal agency specifically requests or approves state enforcement.

(4) A person convicted of a violation of this section shall be fined not less than $50 or more than $1,000 or be imprisoned in the county detention center for not more than 6 months, or both. In addition, the person, upon conviction or forfeiture of bond or bail, may be subject to forfeiture of any current hunting, fishing, or trapping license issued by this state and the privilege to hunt, fish, or trap in this state or to use state lands, as defined in 77-1-101, for recreational purposes for a period of time set by the court"; and made minor changes in style. The tag, coupon, or other marker must be"; deleted former (2) that read: "(2) A person who kills any game animal by authority of any license issued for the killing of the game animal may not fail or neglect to cut out the day and month of the kill or provide any other information that is required and attach the tag, coupon, or other marker provided with the license issued to the carcass of the game animal or portion of the game animal"; in (3) and (4) substituted "license or tag" for "tag, coupon, or other marker"; in (5) before "tag restricted" inserted "license or"; in (6) in first sentence inserted "or who forfeits bond or bail after being charged with" and in last sentence after "fish" substituted "and" for "or"; and made minor changes in style. Case Notes

Failure to Keep Tag Attached to Animal Hide — Continuous Offense: Defendant argued that the statute of limitations on the misdemeanor offense of failing to keep a tag attached to a hide is 1 year under 45-1-205. However, the language of 87-2-509 (now repealed, but see 87-6-411) indicates that the offense continues as long as any considerable portion of the hide remains unconsumed, which in this case was interpreted to mean as long as the bear hide remained in preparation for taxidermy. St. v. Earl, 242 M 279, 790 P2d 464, 47 St. Rep. 691 (1990).

Sufficient Evidence of Failure to Keep Tag on Bear Hide: In the freezer of a taxidermy shop, fish and game inspectors found a frozen bear hide without a tag attached. Defendant was cited for failure to keep a tag attached to the hide but argued that the state failed to prove she was in possession of the hide at any time when it was not tagged. However, a rational jury could have found possession beyond a reasonable doubt, based on defendant's testimony that she knew where the hide was at all times and had not given it away or abandoned control over it. St. v. Earl, 242 M 279, 790 P2d 464, 47 St. Rep. 691 (1990).

Tagging Game Killed by Another: Under statute requiring tagging, the word "take" does not mean that one can tag animal someone else has killed, so if one person illegally killed elk, another person cannot gain ownership by tagging it and ownership of elk remains in state. State ex rel. Visser v. St. Fish & Game Comm'n, 150 M 525, 437 P2d 373 (1968).

Seizure and Confiscation of Untagged Carcass: In a case which arose while section 26-205, R.C.M. 1947 (subsequently repealed), was in effect, it was held that when plaintiff lawfully killed a deer but failed to fill out the tag attached to his hunting license and attach it to the carcass, the deer was not unlawfully possessed and the Game Warden was without authority to seize and confiscate the carcass when he arrested plaintiff for failure to attach the tag. Shipman v. Todd, 131 M 365, 310 P2d 300 (1957).

Attorney General's Opinions

Hunting of Specific Animal — Violation if Other Animal Hunted: A landowner may refuse permission entirely or give limited permission to hunt at certain times, in certain areas, or for certain kinds of animals. A hunter given explicit permission to hunt only for a specific kind of big game animal who exceeds the permission by hunting another kind of animal may be charged under this section with failure to obtain the landowner's permission. 41 A.G. Op. 65 (1986).

Hunting Trespass Not Repealed: Montana's criminal trespass statutes, 45-6-201 and 45-6-203, do not repeal or affect 87-3-304 (now repealed, but see 87-6-415), which makes it unlawful to hunt big game animals on private property without permission, because the statutes do not relate to the same conduct. 37 A.G. Additional Sentencing Provisions

87-6-906. Restitution for illegal killing, possession, or waste of certain wildlife.Case Notes

Felony Convictions for Unlawful Possession of Game Animals Affirmed — Jury Instructions Proper: The jury found that Norman illegally possessed two buck mule deer, one antelope, and one bull elk in 2007, one cow elk and one buck mule deer in November 2004, and one antelope and one bull elk in 2003, in violation of either 87-1-111 or 87-1-115 (now repealed, but see 87-6-906 and 87-6-907). Under each count, the jury found that the value of the animals either individually or in the aggregate exceeded $1,000. Norman argued on appeal that the District Court improperly instructed the jury by not specifically instructing on the element of value. Norman also argued that, pursuant to the first count, the animals were not part of the “same transaction” under 87-3-111 (now repealed) because they were killed on different dates. Norman also objected to a special instruction that indicated that the jury needed to find Norman guilty of only one offense under each count. The Supreme Court affirmed. The court was not “firmly convinced” that its failure to review the instructions would result in a manifest miscarriage of justice, leave unsettled the question of the fundamental fairness of the trial or proceedings, or compromise the integrity of the judicial process. In addition, the prosecutor’s grouping of the animals as part of the “same transaction,” which allowed the value of the animals to be aggregated, was not improper, and Norman did not object at trial to the special instruction provided to the jury. St. v. Norman, 2010 MT 253, 358 Mont. 252, 244 P.3d 737.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 348 inserted (2) requiring department by January 1, 2003, to have developed and published examples of subdivision regulations that provide incentives for and remove disincentives for cluster development, requiring department to seek advice of interested parties, and requiring department to provide technical assistance to local governments developing cluster development regulations; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 21, 2001.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 348, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, agricultural land is increasingly being taken out of production for development and becoming unavailable for production of food; and

WHEREAS, farmers and ranchers are often forced to sell their land to generate sufficient income to retire; and

WHEREAS, cluster development can facilitate the preservation of Montana's unique landscape; and

WHEREAS, cluster development can reduce local government costs for infrastructure and provision of services by concentrating building sites on smaller lots so that services and utilities can be concentrated in a smaller area; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Department of Commerce is charged with providing technical assistance and information related to community development; and

WHEREAS, local governments need mechanisms to encourage development approaches that minimize costs to local citizens and that promote effective and efficient provision of public services."

1993 Amendment: Chapter 148 in second sentence of (4), after "analyses", inserted "and in providing technical assistance to communities" and before "problems" inserted "planning and financing of public facilities and to the"; and made minor changes in style.

1985 Amendment: Inserted (5) referring to federal community development block grant program.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 230, L. 1985, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it authorizes the department of commerce to adopt administrative rules necessary to administer the federal community development block grant (CDBG) program.

The purpose of this bill is to formalize within the context of the Montana Administrative Procedure Act the department's promulgation of policies, guidelines, ranking criteria, and requirements governing the CDBG program which the department has administered since it was authorized to do so by the November 1981 special session of the legislature. It is not the intention of this bill, however, to add unnecessarily to the cost or complexity of administering the program.

Currently the department's requirements for the program are contained in the publications described below:

1. The Montana Community Development Block Grant Program Application Guidelines describe the policies governing the program, the threshold requirements for CDBG applicants, and the procedure and criteria for evaluating applications.

2. The Montana Community Development Block Grant Program — Grant Administration Manual describes the administrative procedures for local project start up, environmental review of project activities, procurement of goods and services, financial management, protection of civil rights, assuring fair wages for labor, and acquisition of property and relocation of persons displaced thereby. It also discusses special administrative considerations peculiar to public facilities, housing rehabilitation, and economic development projects.

3. The Montana Community Development Block Grant Program — Requirements Notebook is a compilation of the federal and state statutes, regulations, and other standards which govern the CDBG program but which have been promulgated by agencies other than the department.

Because the conversion of these three lengthy publications to a rule format and their inclusion in the Montana Administrative Register or the Administrative Rules of Montana would be unduly cumbersome, expensive, and inexpedient, the legislature contemplates that the rules promulgated pursuant to this bill would be adopted by reference to the publications themselves as is authorized by section 2-4-307, MCA."

1981 Amendment: Substituted "department of commerce" for "department of community affairs" in the section introductory clause.

Department of Commerce Authorized to Administer Housing Assistance Payments Program — No Restriction in Area Served by Municipal Housing Authority: The Montana Department of Commerce fits the description of a public housing authority under regulations of the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and is authorized to contract with HUD to administer HUD's Housing Assistance Payments Program, including federal Section 8 certificate and voucher programs. The restriction in 7-15-4414 applies only to municipal housing authorities operating in the same geographic location and therefore does not restrict the administration of federal Section 8 housing programs in the same area by an authorized state agency. 44 A.G. CHAPTER 3 RESEARCH AND COMMERCIALIZATION

Research and Commercialization Projects

Part Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 563, L. 1999, provided: "WHEREAS, dedication to ongoing research and commercialization funding provides Montana with the opportunity to effectively compete in a rapidly changing global economy; and

WHEREAS, nonstate funding sources, including federal research and commercialization funding entities, seek a lasting commitment from the state to ensure that research and commercialization efforts are a funding priority in Montana; and

WHEREAS, the intention behind the coal severance tax and the coal tax permanent fund was to invest in the future of Montana and its citizens by strengthening the state's economic foundations; and

WHEREAS, productive economic possibilities, access to frontline research, and quality educational opportunities require an active and competitive research and commercialization base in Montana; and

WHEREAS, the development of a stable and diversified research and commercialization effort will help provide for a vibrant and diversified Montana economy."

Effective Date: Section 25, Ch. 563, L. 1999, provided that this part is effective July 1, 1999.

90-3-1002. Research and commercialization account.Compiler's Comments

2015 Amendment: Chapter 176 in (2) in second sentence at beginning deleted “Except as provided in 90-3-1003(5)(b)” and at end substituted “90-3-1003(3), (4), and (7)” for “90-3-1003(3) through (5) and (8)”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2015.

2007 Amendment: Chapter 438 in (2) at beginning of second sentence inserted exception clause and at end substituted “90-3-1003(3) through (5) and (8)” for “90-3-1003(3), (4), and (7)”. Amendment effective July 1, 2007.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 539 in (1) at end of second sentence inserted clause concerning costs of administering projects. Amendment effective July 1, 2003.

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 34 in (1) in first sentence substituted “commercialization special revenue account” for “commercialization expendable trust fund” and in second sentence after “purpose of the” substituted “account” for “fund”; and in (2) in first sentence substituted “commercialization account” for “commercialization expendable trust fund” and in second sentence after “Earnings on the” substituted “account” for “expendable trust fund” and after “deposited in the” substituted “account” for “fund”. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

Chapter 431 in (2) substituted reference to 90-3-1003(3), (4), and (7) for reference to 90-3-1003(3) and (5). Amendment effective April 30, 2001.

90-3-1003. Research and commercialization account — use.Compiler's Comments

2015 Amendment: Chapter 176 deleted former (5) that read: “(5) (a) At least 30% of the account funds approved for research and commercialization projects must be directed toward projects that enhance clean coal research and development or renewable resource research and development.

(b) If the board is not in receipt of a qualified application for a project to enhance clean coal research and development or renewable resource research and development, subsection (5)(a) does not apply”; deleted former (11) that read: “(11) For the purposes of this section:

(a) “clean coal research and development” means research and development of projects that would advance the efficiency, environmental performance, and cost-competitiveness of using coal as an energy source well beyond the current level of technology used in commercial service;

(b) “renewable resource research and development” means research and development that would advance:

(i) the use of any of the sources of energy listed in 69-3-2003(10) to produce electricity; and

(ii) the efficiency, environmental performance, and cost-competitiveness of using renewable resources as an energy source well beyond the current level of technology used in commercial service”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2015.

2011 Amendment: Chapter 337 in (3)(b) after “agriculture research” inserted “development”; inserted (3)(d) regarding Montana food and agricultural development program; in (4) substituted current text for former text that read: “At least 20% of the account funds approved for research and commercialization projects must be directed toward projects that enhance production agriculture”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2011.

2009 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 30 in (11)(b)(i) after “listed in” substituted “69-3-2003(7)” for “69-3-2003(6)”. Amendment effective March 20, 2009. The amendment by Ch. 232 rendered the amendment by Ch. 30 void.

Chapter 118 in (11)(b)(i) substituted “69-3-2003(7)” for “69-3-2003(6)”. Amendment effective April 1, 2009. The amendment by Ch. 232 rendered the amendment by Ch. 118 void.

Chapter 232 in (11) in definition of renewable resource research and development in (b)(i) substituted “69-3-2003(10)” for “69-3-2003(6)”. Amendment effective April 16, 2009.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 4, Ch. 118, L. 2009, provided: “[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to competitive electricity suppliers during the compliance year beginning January 1, 2009, for the renewable energy standard pursuant to 69-3-2004.”

Section 6, Ch. 232, L. 2009, provided: “[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to the compliance year beginning January 1, 2009.”

2007 Amendment: Chapter 438 in (3)(b) near middle after “commercialization projects” inserted “clean coal research and development projects, or renewable resource research and development projects”; inserted (5) directing a percentage of account funds toward projects that enhance clean coal or renewable resource research and development and providing an exception; inserted (11) defining clean coal research and development and renewable resource research and development; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2007.

Code Commissioner Correction: In (11)(b)(i) the code commissioner substituted “69-3-2003(6)” for “69-8-1003(6)” to reflect the directions to the code commissioner in Ch. 220, L. 2007.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 539 inserted (3)(d) concerning administrative costs; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2003.

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 34 throughout section substituted “account” for “expendable trust fund”; and in two places in (7) substituted “account” for “fund”. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

Chapter 431 in (3)(a) inserted “that are to be used for research and commercialization projects to be conducted at research and commercialization centers located in Montana”; inserted (3)(b) expanding use of account to grants used for production agriculture research and commercialization projects conducted at research and commercialization centers in Montana; in (4) substituted “trust funds approved for research and commercialization projects” for “investments made” and deleted former second sentence that read: “An amount allocated for matching funds must be matched by at least a 1-to-1 ratio”; inserted (5) requiring grant applicant to provide matching funds from nonstate sources equal to 25% of total project costs and providing that matching funds are a qualifier, not criterion, for grant approval; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 30, 2001.

Appropriation of Oil Overcharge Money for State Programs: Chapter 49, L. 1999, appropriated certain oil overcharge money to various state programs as an implementation of the policy stated in this section. The text of Ch. 49 provided: "Section 1. Policy. [Sections 1 through 13] [not codified] implement the policy stated in 90-4-210.

(1) "Carryover" means unspent oil overcharge funds previously appropriated and incorporated into an approved program plan for one of the federal energy conservation programs, but not included in unspent project funds as defined in subsection (8).

(2) "Cities service payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the consent agreement between cities service oil and gas and the U.S. department of energy, as affirmed by the federal energy regulatory commission, and any interest accrued on the payments.

(3) "Diamond shamrock payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana as the result of the final settlement agreement in the U.S. district court for the southern district of Ohio eastern division in civil action No. C2-84-1432 and any interest accrued on the payments.

(4) "Exxon payments" means the oil overcharge payments made by the Exxon corporation to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the order of the U.S. district court for the District of Columbia in civil action No. 78-1035 and any interest accrued on the payments.

(5) "Getty oil payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the order of disbursement issued in civil action No. 77-347 (MMS) in the U.S. district court for the district of Delaware and any interest accrued on the payments.

(6) "Stripper well payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana as the result of the final settlement agreement in the U.S. district court for the district of Kansas, Cause No. M.D.L. 378, and any interest accrued on the payments. The term also includes but is not limited to cities service payments, as defined in subsection (2), Getty oil payments, as defined in subsection (5), Texaco payments, as defined in subsection (7), and any unspent project funds, as defined in subsection (8).

(7) "Texaco payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the Texaco final consent order, 53 Fed. Reg. 32929, August 29, 1988, and any interest accrued on the payments.

(8) "Unspent project funds" means stripper well payments that were not expended or otherwise legally obligated during the 1999 biennium but were appropriated for the 1999 biennium in Chapter 526, Laws of 1997, in:

- (a) section 4;
- (b) section 5;
- (c) section 6;
- (d) section 7;

- (e) section 8;
- (f) section 9;
- (g) section 10;
- (h) section 11;
- (i) section 12; and
- (j) section 13.

Section 3. Deposit of oil overcharge revenue. All funds from stripper well and exxon payments must be deposited by the state treasurer in the federal special revenue fund. All interest earned on any of these funds or payments also must be deposited in the federal special revenue fund.

Section 4. Matching funds for low-income energy assistance — appropriation. (1) There is appropriated $300,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for the purpose described in subsection (2) and under the restrictions contained in subsection (3).

(2) The department of public health and human services shall match private contributions to energy share, inc. to be used to address home heating emergencies encountered by households with incomes between 0% and 150% of federal poverty guidelines who are not eligible for federal low-income energy assistance or who have not received federal low-income energy assistance in the current program year. All of the funds appropriated to the department for this purpose under subsection (1) must be used for clients' emergency energy needs.

(3) In the event a combination of the oil overcharge funds appropriated in subsection (1) and universal system benefits funds designated to energy share, inc. exceeds $400,000 in fiscal year 2000 or in fiscal year 2001, the excess amount must be subtracted from the appropriation of oil overcharge funds provided in subsection (1) for that fiscal year and a like amount shall be added to the oil overcharge funds appropriated in [section 5] [not codified] for low-income home weatherization, except that the biennial appropriation for low-income home weatherization provided in [section 5] [not codified] shall not exceed under any condition.

Section 5. Low-income home weatherization — appropriation. There is appropriated $500,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for use in the home weatherization program created in 90-4-201.

Section 6. Affordable, efficient housing plan book — appropriation. There is appropriated $40,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to assist in the preparation, production, and distribution of a plan book containing affordable, energy-efficient house designs developed in cooperation with the Montana building industries association, the department of commerce, local building code officials, and other entities.

Section 7. Food bank network transportation — appropriation. There is appropriated $15,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for use in assisting the Montana food bank network with coordinated energy-efficient transportation of food to drop sites and local food banks statewide.

Section 8. Transportation to nutrition sites — appropriation. There is appropriated $11,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for grants to the area agencies on aging to provide transportation for seniors to nutrition sites. The area agencies on aging shall apply to the department of public health and human services for these funds.

Section 9. Low-income weatherization — appropriation. In addition to the appropriations in [sections 4 and 5] [not codified], there is appropriated $200,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for use in the home weatherization program created in 90-4-201.

Section 10. Montana public and private organizations becoming consortium partners — appropriation. There is appropriated $50,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to provide a grant to the national center for appropriate technology to initiate the formation of a Montana advanced transportation technologies consortium focusing on vehicles traditionally powered by two-stroke engines. The national center for appropriate technology will integrate its transportation technology development services with other western regional consortium and national programs, as recommended by the western governors' association and the western interstate energy board, to provide specialized business assistance, to attract development financing and production capital, and to promote regional industrial growth for the clean transportation technologies fostered by the consortium.

Section 11. Carryover — reappropriations. There is reappropriated $28,000 from the stripper well payments, $51,000 from the Exxon payments, and $66,000 from the diamond shamrock payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to fund the state energy program administered by the department pursuant to 10 CFR 420. There is reappropriated up to $40,000 of stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund at the department of administration to help establish a refueling infrastructure that will support the use of ethanol-fueled vehicles.

Section 12. Conditions applied to appropriations. (1) The appropriations made in [sections 4 through 10] [not codified] are biennial appropriations. One-half of the total amount appropriated to each program in [sections 4 through 10] [not codified] is appropriated in fiscal year 2000, and the remainder is appropriated in fiscal year 2001. As biennial appropriations, the unexpended funds appropriated in fiscal year 2000 may be carried forward within each program to fiscal year 2001, subject to the specific conditions governing each appropriation.

(2) The appropriations in [section 11] [not codified] are limited to available funds. Expenditures of carryover funds for the state energy program may not exceed the actual amount of unspent funds available at the department of environmental quality. Total expenditures of stripper well funds to help establish a refueling infrastructure that will support the use of ethanol-fueled vehicles may not exceed $70,000 for

Section 13. Appropriations prioritized. (1) The appropriations in [sections 4 through 10] [not codified] are approved in order of priority as they appear in [sections 4 through 10] [not codified], with the appropriation in [section 4] [not codified] having the highest priority and the appropriation in [section 10] [not codified] having the lowest priority. If the U.S. department of energy does not approve one or more of the programs that are funded by [sections 4 through 10] [not codified], any stripper well payments that are not used to fund the higher priority program must be provided to the lower-ranked program up to the amounts appropriated in [sections 4 through 10] [not codified].

(2) If stripper well payments are insufficient to fully fund the appropriations made in [sections 4 through 10] [not codified], allocations to the lowest ranking program must be reduced until the deficiency is eliminated. If the deficiency is in excess of the appropriation to the lowest ranking program, the next lowest ranking program must have its appropriation reduced until the deficiency is eliminated and so forth as the programs are prioritized. These priorities must be applied to one-half of the total amount appropriated in [sections 4 through 10] [not codified] for fiscal year 2000 and to the remaining appropriation for fiscal year 2001.

(3) In order to provide continuity for the programs when establishing the appropriations for each fiscal year of the 2001 biennium, anticipated stripper well payments that will be received under terms of the stripper well agreement during the biennium may be considered as available to fund the activities.

(4) The expenditure of money appropriated by [sections 4 through 10] [not codified] may not exceed the amount of the stripper well payments available in the biennium."

Coordination. Section 14, Ch. 49, L. 1999, provided: "If House Bill No. 12 is passed and approved, the stripper well payments appropriated in House Bill No. 12 have a higher priority than any appropriation of stripper well payments in [sections 4 through 11] [not codified]." House Bill No. 12 was approved as Ch. 50, L. 1999.

Effective Date. Section 15, Ch. 49, L. 1999, provided: "[This act] is effective July 1, 1999."

Appropriation of Oil Overcharge Money for State Programs: Chapter 526, L. 1997, appropriated certain oil overcharge money to various state programs as an implementation of the policy stated in this section. The text of Ch. 526 provided:

"Section 1. Policy. [Sections 1 through 15] [not codified] implement the policy stated in 90-4-210.

Section 2. Definitions. As used in [sections 1 through 15] [not codified], the following definitions apply:

(1) "Amoco payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the decision and order of the U.S. department of energy in Case No. HQF-0588 and any interest accrued on the payments.

(2) "Carryover" means unspent oil overcharge funds previously appropriated and incorporated into an approved program plan for one of the federal energy conservation programs, but not included in unspent project funds as defined in subsection (9).

(3) "Cities service payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the consent agreement between cities service oil and gas and the U.S. department of energy, as affirmed by the federal energy regulatory commission, and any interest accrued on the payments.

(4) "Diamond shamrock payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana as the result of the final settlement agreement in the U.S. district court for the southern district of Ohio eastern division in Civil Action No. C2-84-1432 and any interest accrued on the payments.

(5) "Exxon payments" means the oil overcharge payments made by the Exxon corporation to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the order of the U.S. district court for the District of Columbia in Civil Action No. 78-1035 and any interest accrued on the payments.

(6) "Getty oil payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the order of disbursement issued in Civil Action No. 77-347 (MMS) in the U.S. district court for the district of Delaware and any interest accrued on the payments.

(7) "Stripper well payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana as the result of the final settlement agreement in the U.S. district court for the district of Kansas, Cause No. M.D.L. 378, and any interest accrued on the payments. The term also includes but is not limited to cities service payments, as defined in subsection (3), Getty oil payments, as defined in subsection (6), Texaco payments, as defined in subsection (8), and any unspent project funds, as defined in subsection (9).

(8) "Texaco payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the Texaco final consent order, 53 Fed. Reg. 32929, August 29, 1988, and any interest accrued on the payments.

(9) "Unspent project funds" means stripper well payments that were not expended or otherwise legally obligated during the 1997 biennium but were appropriated for the 1997 biennium in Chapter 63, Laws of 1995, in:

- (a) section 4;
- (b) section 5;
- (c) section 6;
- (d) section 7; and
- (e) section 8.

Section 3. Deposit of oil overcharge revenue. All funds from stripper well, Amoco, and Exxon payments must be deposited by the state treasurer in the federal special revenue fund. All interest earned on any of these funds or payments also must be deposited in the federal special revenue fund.

Section 4. Matching funds for low-income energy assistance — appropriation. (1) There is appropriated $180,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for the purpose described in subsection (2).

(2) The department of public health and human services shall use the funds appropriated in subsection (1) to match private contributions to Energy Share, Inc., to be used to provide emergency energy assistance to residents with incomes between 125% and 150% of poverty guidelines who are not eligible for federal low-income energy assistance. All of the funds appropriated to the department for this purpose under subsection (1) must be used for clients' fuel bills or other emergency energy needs.

Section 5. Low-income home weatherization — appropriation. There is appropriated $230,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for use in the home weatherization program created in 90-4-201.

Section 6. Recommissioning state-owned buildings — appropriation. (1) There is appropriated $80,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to identify and implement low-cost maintenance activities and modifications to equipment and procedures that will enable state building systems to operate at their designed efficiencies, reducing energy consumption in buildings by 5% to 10%.

(2) Although the aggregate energy cost savings realized from this program could be significant, the amount of savings realized by individual agencies is not likely to be substantial. Therefore, it is the intent of the legislature that agencies be allowed to keep and use any energy cost savings realized as an incentive to participate in this program. The department of environmental quality shall report the amount of savings to the 1999 legislature, at which time this policy may be reevaluated.

Section 7. Infrastructure to support purchase and use of ethanol-fueled vehicles — appropriation. There is appropriated $70,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to help establish a refueling infrastructure that will support the use of ethanol-fueled (E-85) vehicles. A one-time investment of oil overcharge dollars will be used to leverage private sector funds to provide pilot alternative refueling stations to supply alternative-fueled vehicles.

Section 8. Reduce petroleum use in Yellowstone region — appropriation. There is appropriated $25,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to promote expanded use of alternative fuels within Yellowstone park and neighboring Montana communities.

Section 9. Small business and tribal environmental compliance loan fund program — appropriation. There is appropriated $180,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to provide a grant to the department of commerce microbusiness finance program to offer loans to small businesses and tribal communities for pollution control equipment, petroleum-based chemical product substitution, equipment replacement, pollution prevention, energy conservation, and waste minimization.

Section 10. Recycling for mercury-containing lamps — appropriation. There is appropriated $36,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to reduce disposal costs and enhance energy savings from lighting retrofits by providing equipment and training to establish a self-sustaining lamp recycling program.

Section 11. Low-income home weatherization — appropriation. There is appropriated another $295,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for use in the home weatherization program created in 90-4-201.

Section 12. Food bank network transportation — appropriation. There is appropriated $5,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for use in assisting the Montana food bank network with coordinated energy-efficient transportation of food to drop sites and local food banks statewide.

Section 13. Carryover — reappropriations. There is reappropriated $25,000 from the stripper well payments, $50,000 from the exxon payments, $57,000 from the diamond shamrock payments, and $1,500 from the amoco payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to fund the state energy program administered by the department pursuant to 10 CFR 420.

Section 14. Conditions applied to appropriations. (1) The appropriations made in [sections 4 through 13] [not codified] are biennial appropriations.

(2) One-half of the total amount appropriated to each program in [sections 4 through 13] [not codified] is appropriated in fiscal year 1998 and the remainder is appropriated in fiscal year 1999. As biennial appropriations, the unexpended funds appropriated in fiscal year 1998 may be carried forward within each program to fiscal year 1999.

(3) The appropriations in [section 13] [not codified] are limited to available funds. Expenditures of carryover funds may not exceed the actual amount of unspent funds available.

Section 15. Appropriations prioritized. (1) The appropriations in [sections 4 through 12] [not codified] are approved in order of priority as they appear in [sections 4 through 12] [not codified], with the appropriation in [section 4] [not codified] having the highest priority and the appropriation in [section 12] [not codified] having the lowest priority. If the U.S. department of energy does not approve one or more of the programs that are funded by [sections 4 through 12] [not codified], any stripper well payments that are not used to fund the higher-priority program must be provided to the lower-ranked program up to the amounts appropriated in [sections 4 through 12] [not codified].

(2) If stripper well payments are insufficient to fully fund the appropriations made in [sections 4 through 12] [not codified], allocations to the lowest-ranking program must be reduced until the deficiency is eliminated. If the deficiency is in excess of the appropriation to the lowest-ranking program, the next lowest-ranking program must have its appropriation reduced until the deficiency is eliminated and so forth as the programs are prioritized. These priorities must be applied to one-half of the total amount appropriated in [sections 4 through 12] [not codified] for fiscal year 1998 and to the remaining appropriation for fiscal year 1999.

(3) In order to provide continuity for the programs when establishing the appropriations for each fiscal year of the 1999 biennium, anticipated stripper well payments that will be received under terms of the stripper well agreement during the biennium may be considered as available to fund the activities.

(4) The expenditure of money appropriated by [sections 4 through 12] [not codified] may not exceed the amount of the stripper well payments available in the biennium."

Coordination: Section 16, Ch. 526, provided: "If House Bill No. 12 is passed and approved, the stripper well payments appropriated in House Bill No. 12 have a higher priority than any appropriation of stripper well payments in [sections 4 through 12] [not codified]." House Bill No. 12 was approved as Ch. 81, L. 1997.

Effective date: Section 17, Ch. 526, L. 1997, provided: "[This act] is effective July 1, 1997."

Policy: Section 1, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "[Sections 1 through 10] [not codified] implement the policy stated in 90-4-210."

Definitions: Section 2, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "As used in [sections 1 through 10] [not codified], the following definitions apply:

(1) "Amoco payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the decision and order of the U.S. department of energy in Case No. HQF-0588 and includes any interest accrued on the payments.

(2) "Carryover" means unspent oil overcharge funds previously appropriated and incorporated into an approved program plan for one of the federal energy conservation programs, but not included in unspent project funds as defined in subsection (9).

(3) "Cities service payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the consent agreement between cities service oil and gas and the U.S. department of energy, as affirmed by the federal energy regulatory commission, and includes any interest accrued on the payments.

(4) "Diamond shamrock payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana as the result of the final settlement agreement in the U.S. district court for the southern district of Ohio eastern division in Civil Action No. C2-84-1432 and includes any interest accrued on the payments.

(5) "Exxon payments" means the oil overcharge payments made by the exxon corporation to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the order of the U.S. district court for the District of Columbia in Civil Action No. 78-1035 and includes any interest accrued on the payments.

(6) "Getty oil payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the order of disbursement issued in Civil Action No. 77-347 (MMS) in the U.S. district court for the district of Delaware and includes any interest accrued on the payments.

(7) "Stripper well payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana as the result of the final settlement agreement in the U.S. district court for the district of Kansas, Cause No. M.D.L. 378, and includes any interest accrued on the payments. The term also includes but is not limited to cities service payments, as defined in subsection (3), Getty oil payments, as defined in subsection (6), texaco payments, as defined in subsection (8), and any unspent project funds, as defined in subsection (9).

(8) "Texaco payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the texaco final consent order, 53 Fed. Reg. 32929, August 29, 1988, and includes any interest accrued on the payments.

(9) "Unspent project funds" means stripper well payments that were not expended or otherwise legally obligated during the 1995 biennium but that were appropriated for the 1995 biennium in Chapter 496, Laws of 1993, in:

- (a) section 5(1);
- (b) section 6;
- (c) section 7;
- (d) section 8; and
- (e) section 9.

(10) "Warner payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the Warner amendment (section 155 of P.L. 97-377) and includes any interest accrued on the payments."

Deposit of Oil Overcharge Revenue: Section 3, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "All funds from stripper well, amoco, Warner, and exxon payments must be deposited by the state treasurer in the federal special revenue fund. All interest earned on any of these funds or payments must also be deposited in the federal special revenue fund."

Matching Funds for Low-Income Energy Assistance — Appropriation: Section 4, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "(1) There is appropriated $50,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of social and rehabilitation services [functions now transferred to department of public health and human services] for the purpose described in subsection (2).

(2) The department of social and rehabilitation services [functions now transferred to department of public health and human services] shall match private contributions to energy share, inc., to be used to assist persons not eligible for federal low-income energy assistance whose income is less than 150% of the federal poverty threshold published by the U.S. bureau of the census in the most recent edition of its publication, Poverty in the United States. All of the funds appropriated to the department for this purpose under subsection (1) must be used for clients' fuel bills or other energy needs."

Petroleum Substitutes From Agricultural Products — Appropriation: Section 5, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "There is appropriated $10,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of natural resources and conservation to foster expanded use of alternative transportation fuels derived from agricultural products that may reduce petroleum consumption, produce environmental benefits to Montana, and result in potential new cash crops for Montana farmers. Money expended under this appropriation must be matched at least dollar for dollar with private or federal revenue, or both."

Institutional Conservation Program — Appropriation: Section 6, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "There is appropriated $200,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of natural resources and conservation to fund the institutional conservation program for schools and hospitals administered by the department pursuant to 10 CFR 455."

Northern Montana College Tractor Resource Center (Now Montana State University-Northern) — Appropriation: Section 7, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "There is appropriated $125,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to northern Montana college [now Montana state university-northern] to support the ongoing activities of the northern Montana college [now Montana state university-northern] tractor resource center."

Carryover—Reappropriations: Section 8, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "(1) There is reappropriated $20,000 from the stripper well payments, $5,000 from the Exxon payments, $60,000 from the diamond shamrock payments, and $1,500 from the Amoco payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of natural resources and conservation to fund the state energy conservation program administered by the department pursuant to 10 CFR 420.

(2) There is reappropriated $100,000 from the stripper well payments, $5,000 from the Exxon payments, and $800 from the Warner payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of natural resources and conservation to fund the institutional conservation program for schools and hospitals administered by the department pursuant to 10 CFR 455."

Conditions Applied to Appropriations: Section 9, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "The appropriations made in [sections 4 through 8] [not codified] are biennial appropriations.

(1) One-half of the total amount appropriated to each program in [sections 4 through 7] [not codified] is appropriated in fiscal year 1996, and the remainder is appropriated in fiscal year 1997. As biennial appropriations, the unexpended funds appropriated in fiscal year 1996 may be carried forward within each program to fiscal year 1997.

(2) The appropriations in [section 8] [not codified] are limited to available funds. Expenditures of carryover funds may not exceed the actual amount of unspent funds available."

Appropriations Prioritized: Section 10, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "(1) The appropriations in [sections 4 through 7] [not codified] are approved in order of priority as they appear in [sections 4 through 7] [not codified]. If the U.S. department of energy does not approve one or more of the programs that are funded by [sections 4 through 7] [not codified], any stripper well payments that are not used to fund the higher priority program must be provided to the lower ranked program up to the amounts appropriated in [sections 4 through 7] [not codified].

(2) If stripper well payments are insufficient to fully fund the appropriations made in [sections 4 through 7] [not codified], allocations to the lowest ranking program must be reduced until the deficiency is eliminated. If the deficiency is in excess of the appropriation to the lowest ranking program, the next lowest ranking program must have its appropriation reduced until the deficiency is eliminated. These priorities must be applied to one-half of the total amount appropriated in [sections 4 through 7] [not codified] for fiscal year 1996 and to the remaining appropriation for fiscal year 1997.

(3) In order to provide continuity for the programs when establishing the appropriations for each fiscal year of the 1997 biennium, anticipated stripper well payments that will be received under terms of the stripper well agreements during the biennium may be considered as available to fund the activities.

(4) The expenditure of money appropriated by [sections 4 through 7] [not codified] may not exceed the amount of the stripper well payments available in the biennium."

Coordination Instruction: Section 11, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "If House Bill No. 12 is passed and approved, the stripper well payments appropriated in House Bill No. 12 have a higher priority than any appropriation of stripper well payments in [sections 4 through 7] [not codified]." House Bill No. 12 was passed and approved as Ch. 61, L. 1995.

Policy Restated: Section 1, Ch. 597, L. 1989, was a policy statement on distribution of oil overcharge money. Although not enacted as an amendment to 90-4-210, the text was essentially identical and was not codified. See 1989 Session Law for text of the statement.

Deposit of Oil Overcharge Revenue: Section 3, Ch. 597, L. 1989, provided that all funds from stripper well payments must be deposited in the federal special revenue fund and also required the deposit of all interest in the federal special revenue fund.

2007 Amendment: Chapter 4 in (2) deleted former second and third sentences that read: "However, the department may use the principal of the account only if the federal grants for either of those programs are reduced below the federal fiscal year 1987 level. The department may not use the principal to increase expenditures to either program above the level of the federal grant for that program for federal fiscal year 1987"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective February 5, 2007.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 389 in (2) in first sentence after "account" substituted "may be used by" for "are statutorily appropriated, as provided in 17-7-502, to"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 546 in (2) substituted "department of public health and human services" for "department of social and rehabilitation services"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 545 near middle, after "governor", deleted "with the advice of the committee". Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1995 Transition: Section 81, Ch. 545, L. 1995 provided: "(1) The members of the legislative council, as provided in 5-11-101, the members of the legislative finance committee, as provided in 5-12-202, the members of the legislative audit committee, as provided in 5-13-202, and the members of the environmental quality council, as provided in 5-16-101, must be appointed as soon as possible following [the effective date of this section] [effective April 27, 1995]."

(2) To implement the changes provided in [this act], the office of the legislative council, the office of budget and program planning, and the department of administration shall establish all necessary authorizations during the accounting preparation process known as the "turnaround" process, beginning in April or May 1995, to administer the several appropriations made by any means to programs of the legislative branch agencies consolidated under [sections 3 and 4] [5-2-503 and 5-2-504] for fiscal year 1996 or 1997 or the biennium ending June 30, 1997, as appropriations to a single legislative agency while maintaining the specific identification, legislative intent, and purpose for which the appropriations were made. During this transition, the executive director may authenticate documents as required to accomplish the purposes of [this act]. Appropriate changes on the statewide budgeting and accounting system and the payroll, personnel, and position control system must also be made and authorized as required to accomplish the purposes of [this act].

(3) Personnel and property of the environmental quality council are transferred to the legislative services division effective July 1, 1995."

Part 6

State Building Energy Conservation Program

Part Compiler's Comments

1989 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 473, L. 1989, provided: "This bill requires a statement by the department of natural resources and conservation that the estimated annual energy savings to be derived from the installation of the energy saving improvements are expected to equal or exceed the annual debt service to be paid on the bonds issued to fund the improvements. In developing this savings statement, the department shall determine which energy improvements yield sufficient return on investment to be included in the financing package. In making this determination, the department should consider the projected savings of the improvement, the impact on project cash flow, the expected useful life of the improvement and the facility, the state's long-range plans for the facility, the potential impacts on the utility system, and any additional monetary and nonmonetary benefits to be derived from the improvement.

The department shall consult with the utility or utilities that serve the facilities on which the improvements are to be made. If a fuel switching measure is proposed, the department must demonstrate that the benefits to the state exceed the costs to the utility and its customers."

Coordination Instruction: Section 13, Ch. 473, L. 1989, provided: "If House Bill No. 563 is not passed and approved, [this act] is void." House Bill No. 563 was approved April 20, 1989. See Ch. 597, L. 1989, for text.

Severability: Section 14, Ch. 473, L. 1989, was a severability clause.

2011 Amendment: Chapter 240 at beginning of (3)(b) deleted "If the estimated savings are determined to be greater than the bond payment costs for a particular project" and at end inserted "of each project for which"; inserted (3)(b)(i) and (3)(b)(ii) relating to savings funded from bonds and the general fund; in (3)(c) inserted "or funds from the general fund or the energy conservation capital projects account established in 90-4-617"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2011.

2005 Amendment: Chapter 310 in (1) near beginning of first sentence after "shall" deleted "work with state agencies to" and inserted second sentence requiring state agencies to provide information upon request. Amendment effective July 1, 2005.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 240 deleted former (3) that read: "(3) During the energy analyses, the department shall consult with the utilities that serve the selected facilities to discuss potential impacts on the utilities and their customers of making energy conservation improvements to these facilities"; in (3) in first sentence after "department shall" deleted "submit to the governor its findings and a list of projects recommended for funding under the energy conservation program" and inserted second and third sentences requiring department to notify department of administration of buildings that have a potential for energy savings and requiring department of administration to implement design and construction projects for those buildings; deleted former (5)(d) and (5)(e) that read: "(d) a description of measures taken by the department to address the issues that were raised in the consultation with the affected utilities; and

(e) if a fuel switching measure is proposed, an analysis of the costs to the affected utility and its customers and of the benefits to the state"; inserted (4)(d) requiring report to include additional projects under consideration; deleted former (6) that read: "(6) If a fuel switching measure is proposed, the department shall demonstrate through the analysis required by subsection (5)(e)

that the benefits to the state exceed the costs to the utility and its customers"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 50 in (1) deleted former first sentence that read: "Before June 30 of each odd-numbered year, the department shall inform, in writing, each state agency of the energy conservation program and request agencies interested in participating in the program to contact the department"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 61 substituted present (1) concerning participation in energy conservation program for former language that read: "Before June 30 of each odd-numbered year, state agencies shall submit to the department, on forms provided by the department, a list of any facilities operated by that agency that have a potential for energy savings, based on age, energy use, function, and condition of the building. Agencies may request assistance from the department to identify these facilities"; in (2), after "subsection (1)", inserted "and on the feasibility of leveraging other funds, such as federal and utility energy conservation program money"; in (4), in first sentence before "list", deleted "prioritized" and in second sentence, after "shall", substituted "identify estimated costs and savings" for "rank projects in terms of cost-effectiveness" and at end inserted "based on these analyses"; in (5)(a), after "listing of", substituted "contacts between the department and other" for "all requests submitted by"; in (5)(b), at end, inserted "and a selection of projects for in-depth analysis"; and in (5)(e), at end, deleted "of the fuel switching measure". Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1989 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 473, L. 1989, provided: "This bill requires a statement by the department of natural resources and conservation that the estimated annual energy savings to be derived from the installation of the energy saving improvements are expected to equal or exceed the annual debt service to be paid on the bonds issued to fund the improvements. 1999 Amendment Void: The amendment to this section made by sec. 13, Ch. 3, L. 1999, was rendered void by sec. 16, Ch. 3, L. 1999, a contingent voidness section, which provided that if Constitutional Initiative No. 75, enacting Article VIII, section 17, of the Montana constitution, was declared invalid, then [this act] was void. The initiative was declared invalid February 24, 1999.

Temporary Authorization of Bonds — 1990-91 Biennium: Section 10, Ch. 473, L. 1989, provided: "(1) At the request of the department, the board may issue and sell bonds of the state in an aggregate principal amount not exceeding $3 million to provide money for the 1990-91 biennium energy conservation program. The bonds are general obligations for which the full faith and credit and taxing powers of the state are pledged for payment of the principal and interest. The bonds must be issued as provided by Title 17, chapter 5, part 8.

(2) The proceeds of the bonds, other than any premiums and accrued interest received, must be deposited in the energy conservation program account. Any premium and accrued interest must be deposited to the debt service fund established in 17-2-102. Proceeds of bonds deposited in the energy conservation program account may be used to pay the costs of issuing the bonds and to pay costs of the energy conservation program, including the funding of the 1990-91 biennium energy conservation projects approved by the legislature. For purposes of 17-5-803 and 17-5-804, the energy conservation program account constitutes a capital projects account. Such proceeds must be available to the department and may be used for the purposes authorized in [sections 1 through 8] [Title 90, ch. 4, part 6] without further budgetary authorization."

Stripper-Well Payments — Reappropriation — Definition — Priority: Section 3, Ch. 50, L. 1999, provided: "(1) There is reappropriated from the stripper-well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality $100,000 to fulfill duties authorized by 90-4-605 and 90-4-607. The original appropriation was contained in section 9, Chapter 597, Laws of 1989. The reappropriation is a biennial appropriation.

(2) (a) "Stripper-well payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the United States treasury for distribution to the state of Montana as the result of the final settlement agreement in Cause No. M.D.L. 378, United States district court for the district of Kansas, and any interest accrued on the payments.

(b) The term does not include stripper-well payments that have been expended or legally obligated or that have been incorporated into any of the existing federal energy programs as the result of prior appropriations by the legislature.

(3) The stripper-well payments reappropriated in this section have a higher priority than any other appropriation of stripper-well payments for fiscal years 2000 and 2001." Effective July 1, 1999.

Appropriations of Bond Proceeds: Section 4, Ch. 50, L. 1999, provided: "There is appropriated from bond proceeds authorized by Chapter 571, Laws of 1991, Chapter 350, Laws of 1993, Chapter 61, Laws of 1995, Chapter 81, Laws of 1997, and [section 6] [not codified], $450,000 to the department of environmental quality to fulfill duties under 90-4-605 and 90-4-607. This appropriation is a biennial appropriation." Effective July 1, 1999.

Approval of Energy Conservation Projects — Definition: Section 5, Ch. 50, L. 1999, provided: "(1) Pursuant to Title 90, chapter 4, part 6, the legislature approves the following energy conservation projects for fiscal years 2000 and 2001.

University of Montana
Science Complex, Missoula
Montana State University
Cowan Hall Remodel, Havre
Special Education Building, Billings
Department of Administration
Justice Building
Department of Transportation
Signal Light Retrofit Project
University of Montana
Grizzly Pool
Department of Military Affairs
Maintenance Shop Building, Helena

(2) In addition to the energy conservation projects listed in subsection (1), the department of environmental quality may expend funds appropriated under [section 6] [not codified] to respond to lost energy saving opportunities. This includes coordination of energy improvement projects with the long-range building program's capital improvement projects.

(3) For purposes of this section, a "lost energy saving opportunity" means an opportunity to improve energy use that would provide significant energy and cost savings to the state and that will be technically infeasible or uneconomical if the department of environmental quality is delayed in providing the necessary funds until specific legislative approval can be obtained.

(4) If the costs of the projects authorized in subsections (1) and (2) are substantially below the bond amount authorized in [section 6] [not codified], the department of environmental quality may fund projects that otherwise would be proposed as part of the state building energy conservation package for fiscal years 2002 and 2003." Effective July 1, 1999.

Bond Authorization — Appropriation of Bond Proceeds: Section 6, Ch. 50, L. 1999, provided: "(1) The board of examiners may, pursuant to 90-4-611, issue and sell bonds of the state in an aggregate principal amount not to exceed $3 million for fiscal years 2000 and 2001 for the projects approved in [section 5] [not codified] and to fulfill duties authorized by 90-4-605 and 90-4-607, as provided in [section 4] [not codified]. The bonds are general obligations for which the full faith and credit and taxing powers of the state are pledged for payment of the principal and interest on the bonds. The bonds must be issued as provided by Title 17, chapter 5, part 8.

(2) The proceeds of the bonds, other than any premiums and accrued interest received, must be deposited in the energy conservation program account established by 90-4-612. Premiums and accrued interest must be deposited in the debt service fund established in 17-2-102. Proceeds of bonds deposited in the energy conservation program account may be used to pay the costs of issuing the bonds, to fulfill duties authorized by 90-4-605 and 90-4-607, and to fund the projects approved in [section 5] [not codified]. For purposes of 17-5-803 and 17-5-804, the energy conservation program account constitutes a capital projects account. The bond proceeds must be available to the department of environmental quality and may be used for the purposes authorized in this section without further budgetary authorization." Effective July 1, 1999.

Requirements for Approval of State Debt: Section 7, Ch. 50, L. 1999, provided: "Because [section 6] [not codified] authorizes the creation of state debt, Article VIII, section 8, of the Montana constitution requires a vote of two-thirds of the members of each house of the legislature for enactment of [section 6] [not codified]."

Stripper-Well Payments — Reappropriation — Definition — Priority: Section 1, Ch. 61, L. 1995, provided: "(1) There is reappropriated from the stripper-well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of natural resources and conservation $100,000 to fulfill duties authorized by 90-4-605 and 90-4-607. The original appropriation was contained in section 9, Chapter 597, Laws of 1989. The reappropriation is a biennial appropriation.

(b) The term does not include stripper-well payments that have been expended or legally obligated or have been incorporated into any of the existing federal energy programs as the result of prior appropriations by the legislature.

(3) The stripper-well payments reappropriated in this section have a higher priority than any other appropriation of stripper-well payments for fiscal years 1996 and 1997." Effective July 1, 1995.

Approval of Energy Conservation Projects — Definition: Section 3, Ch. 61, L. 1995, provided: "(1) Pursuant to Title 90, chapter 4, part 6, the legislature approves the following energy conservation projects for fiscal years 1996 and 1997:

(2) In addition to the energy conservation projects listed in subsection (1), the department of natural resources and conservation may expend funds appropriated under [section 4] [not codified, see 1995 compiler's comment] to respond to lost energy saving opportunities.

(3) For purposes of this section, a "lost energy saving opportunity" means an opportunity to improve energy use that would provide significant energy and cost savings to the state and that will be technically infeasible or uneconomical if the department is delayed in providing the necessary funds until specific legislative approval can be obtained.

(4) If the costs of the projects authorized in subsections (1) and (2) are substantially below the bond amount authorized in [section 4] [not codified, see 1995 compiler's comment], the department of natural resources and conservation may fund projects that otherwise would be proposed as part of the state building energy conservation package for fiscal years 1998 and 1999.

(5) The retrofit of Montana state university-northern must be conducted as a pilot project, using performance contracting. Montana state university-northern shall use state general obligation bonds authorized under [section 4] [not codified, see 1995 compiler's comment] to fund energy efficiency improvements in campus buildings used for instructional purposes. Montana state university-northern may provide financing other than state general obligation bonds for energy efficiency improvements in buildings supported by student fees and revenue. Whenever state general obligation bonds are used, resulting energy cost savings must be transferred to the energy conservation program account as provided in 90-4-614. If funding other than state general obligation bonds is used for improvements in buildings supported by student fees and revenue, a performance contract must be developed jointly by Montana state university-northern, the department of natural resources and conservation, and the department of administration and any resulting energy cost savings in these buildings in excess of debt service and program costs must remain with the auxiliary services at Montana state university-northern." Effective July 1, 1995.

Bond Authorization — Appropriation of Bond Proceeds: Section 4, Ch. 61, L. 1995, provided: "(1) The board of examiners may, pursuant to 90-4-611, issue and sell bonds of the state in an aggregate principal amount not to exceed $5.5 million for fiscal years 1996 and 1997 for the projects approved in [section 3] [not codified, see 1995 compiler's comment] and to fulfill duties authorized by 90-4-605 and 90-4-607 as provided in [section 2] [not codified, see 1995 compiler's comment]. The bonds are general obligations for which the full faith and credit and taxing powers of the state are pledged for payment of the principal and interest on the bonds. The bonds must be issued as provided by Title 17, chapter 5, part 8.

(2) The proceeds of the bonds, other than any premiums and accrued interest received, must be deposited in the energy conservation program account established by 90-4-612. Premiums and accrued interest must be deposited in the debt service fund established in 17-2-102. Proceeds of bonds deposited in the energy conservation program account may be used to pay the costs of issuing the bonds, to fulfill duties authorized by 90-4-605 and 90-4-607, and to fund the projects approved in [section 3] [not codified, see 1995 compiler's comment]. For purposes of 17-5-803 and 17-5-804, the energy conservation program account constitutes a capital projects account. The bond proceeds must be available to the department of natural resources and conservation and may be used for the purposes authorized in this section without further budgetary authorization." Effective July 1, 1995.

Requirements for Approval of State Debt: Section 6, Ch. 61, L. 1995, provided: "Because [section 4] [not codified, see 1995 compiler's comment] authorizes the creation of a state debt, a vote of two-thirds of the members of each house is required for enactment of [section 4] [not codified, see 1995 compiler's comment]." Effective July 1, 1995.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 350, L. 1993, provided: "WHEREAS, Chapter 473, Laws of 1989, established the state building energy conservation program; and

WHEREAS, recommended projects for the state building energy conservation program for fiscal years 1994 and 1995 have been analyzed and are submitted to the Legislature as required by Title 90, chapter 4, part 6."

Temporary Bond Authorization — 1994-95 Biennium: Section 4, Ch. 350, L. 1993, provided: "(1) The board of examiners may, pursuant to 90-4-611, issue and sell bonds of the state in an aggregate principal amount not to exceed $3 million for the energy conservation and lighting retrofit projects approved in [section 3] [not codified, see 1993 compiler's comment] for fiscal years 1994 and 1995. The bonds are general obligations for which the full faith and credit and taxing powers of the state are pledged for payment of the principal and interest on the bonds. The bonds must be issued as provided by Title 17, chapter 5, part 8.

(2) The proceeds of the bonds, other than any premiums and accrued interest received, must be deposited in the energy conservation program account established by 90-4-612. Premiums and accrued interest must be deposited in the debt service fund established in 17-2-102. Proceeds of bonds deposited in the energy conservation program account may be used to pay the costs of issuing the bonds and to fund the projects approved by the legislature in [section 3] [not codified, see 1993 compiler's comment]. For purposes of 17-5-803 and 17-5-804, the energy conservation program account constitutes a capital projects account. The bond proceeds must be available to the department of natural resources and conservation and may be used for the purposes authorized in this section without further budgetary authorization."

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 571, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, Chapter 473, Laws of 1989, established the state building energy conservation program and authorized the issuance of up to $3 million of general obligation bonds to provide money for the state building energy conservation program for fiscal years 1990-91; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation determined that the issuance of the bonds was not necessary during fiscal years 1990-91 and that portions of the projects identified in section 9, Chapter 473, Laws of 1989, were either funded from other sources or not in the state's best interest at the time; and

WHEREAS, recommended projects for the state building energy conservation program for fiscal years 1992-93 have been identified as required by Title 90, chapter 4, part 6."

Temporary Bond Authorization — 1992-93 Biennium: Section 3, Ch. 571, L. 1991, provided: "(1) The board of examiners may, pursuant to 90-4-611, issue and sell bonds of the state in an aggregate principal amount not to exceed $3 million for fiscal years 1992-93. The bonds are general obligations for which the full faith and credit and taxing powers of the state are pledged for payment of the principal and interest on the bonds. The bonds must be issued as provided by Title 17, chapter 5, part 8.

(2) The proceeds of the bonds, other than any premiums and accrued interest received, must be deposited in the energy conservation program account established by 90-4-612. Premiums and accrued interest must be deposited in the debt service fund established in 17-2-102. Proceeds of bonds deposited in the energy conservation program account may be used to pay the costs of issuing the bonds and to fund the projects approved by the legislature in [section 2] [not codified, see 1991 compiler's comment]. For purposes of 17-5-803 and 17-5-804, the energy conservation program account constitutes a capital projects account. The bond proceeds must be available to the department of natural resources and conservation and may be used for the purposes authorized in this section without further budgetary authorization."

Withdrawal of Authorization for Previously Authorized Bonds: Section 6, Ch. 571, L. 1991, provided: "The authorization granted by section 10, Chapter 473, Laws of 1989, for the issuance of up to $3 million in bonds to provide money for fiscal years 1990-91 energy conservation program is withdrawn."

90-4-614. Appropriation of energy cost savings.

Compiler's Comments

2011 Amendment: Chapter 240 in (1) near middle inserted "using money from the sale of energy conservation program bonds"; deleted former (1)(b) that read: "(b) a projection of the debt service on energy conservation program bonds that should be apportioned to that agency in each year of the biennium. Debt service is zero after the term of bond repayment"; in (2) at end substituted "energy cost savings to the energy conservation program debt service account established in 90-4-625. These transfers must be made for a period that is equal to the term of the bonds, plus 1 year" for "projected debt service to the energy conservation program account established in 90-4-612"; deleted former (2)(b) that read: "(b) authority for each participating state agency to transfer funds to the long-range building program fund in an amount equal to the difference between the estimated energy cost savings to the agency and the projected debt service apportioned to that agency"; in (3) substituted "each state agency" for "state agencies" and substituted "amount appropriated in subsection (2)" for "sum of the amounts appropriated in subsections (2)(a) and (2)(b)"; and made minor changes in style. 2011 Amendment: Chapter 385 inserted (1)(b) through (1)(x), (2)(b), (2)(c), and (2)(f) concerning state energy policy goal statements; in (2)(a) substituted "consider" for "recognize"; in (2)(d) substituted "consider reviewing" for "review"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 12, 2011.

2009 Amendment: Chapter 454 in (1) near beginning after "energy" inserted "efficiency"; in (2)(b) at beginning before "review" deleted "maintain a continual process to" and after "changes" inserted "pursuant to 90-4-1003"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 5, 2009.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 311 inserted (2)(c) promoting as a state policy the adoption and implementation of a state transportation energy policy and an alternative fuels policy.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 311, L. 1995, provided: "WHEREAS, in section 90-4-1003, MCA, the Legislature adopted a process for the incremental development of a comprehensive state energy policy; and

WHEREAS, under the provisions of that statute, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation recommended to the Environmental Quality Council the development of a transportation energy policy as one component of a comprehensive state energy policy; and

WHEREAS, the Environmental Quality Council assigned a broad-based working group of stakeholders in the issues relating to development of a transportation energy policy to use a collaborative, consensus process to develop that policy; and

WHEREAS, these stakeholders included the Montana Department of Transportation, members of the Montana Highway Commission [now Transportation Commission], the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation, representatives of state and local governments, highway users, railroad interests, utilities, commercial transportation interests, environmental groups, agricultural producers, bicycle and pedestrian interests, transportation planners, and representatives of petroleum producers; and

WHEREAS, the collaborative working group met regularly over an 8-month period to develop the following transportation energy policy goal statement and to recommend a specific component of a transportation energy policy on alternative fuels, along with implementing guidelines."

2011 Amendment: Chapter 43 in (1) at beginning substituted initial clause referring to first interim committee meeting for "Except as provided in subsection (1)(b), each interim", inserted "if determined necessary by the committee, discuss at future meetings issues to be included in a revised policy and", and at end deleted "to the state energy policy, pursuant to subsection (2)"; deleted former (1)(b) that read: "(b) During the 2009-2010 interim, the committee shall consult with a broad representation of stakeholders, including appropriate state agencies and the public, and focus on the following issues to be included in a revised state energy policy:

- (i) increasing the supply of low-cost electricity with coal-fired generation;
- (ii) rebuilding and extending electric transmission lines;
- (iii) maximizing state land use for energy generation;
- (iv) increasing energy efficiency standards for new construction;
- (v) promoting conservation;
- (vi) promoting energy efficiency incentives;
- (vii) promoting alternative energy systems;
- (viii) reducing regulations that increase ratepayers' energy costs; and
- (ix) integrating wind energy"; in (2) at beginning substituted "If the committee" for "Except as provided in subsection (1)(b), the committee", inserted reference to decision of committee to discuss and recommend potential changes, after "in developing the" deleted "issues to be included within the", and at end after "energy policy" deleted "each interim"; in (3) at beginning before "committee shall" substituted language regarding revisions proposed by committee for "Each biennium" and near middle inserted "for a proposed revised state energy policy"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 23, 2011.

2009 Amendment: Chapter 454 substituted current text relating to committee interim duties for former text that read: "(1) The department and the committee, in cooperation with the consumer counsel and the public service commission, shall maintain a continual process to develop the components of a comprehensive state energy policy.

(2) Because of limited state resources and the need to focus intensive effort on specific issues of importance, the development of a comprehensive state energy policy must occur on an incremental basis. As the need arises, the department, in cooperation with the appropriate state agencies and with extensive public involvement, shall identify and recommend to the committee specific components of a state energy policy for development under the consensus process described in subsection (3).

(3) (a) Upon selection of a specific energy policy component, the committee shall assign to a working group composed of representatives of the parties with a stake in that specific component the task of developing consensus recommendations for that component of state energy policy.

(b) The working group must include the broadest possible representation of stakeholders in the issues to be included within the specific component of state energy policy.

(c) Whenever possible, the working group shall use a consensus process to develop recommendations for a specific energy policy component to be submitted to the committee. Recommendations that are not based upon consensus must be so noted by the working group. Upon consideration of the working group's recommendations, the committee shall forward its recommendations to the legislature and to the appropriate state agencies for adoption.

(d) The department shall:

(i) provide staff support to the working group, including policy analysis, data gathering, research, technical analysis, and administrative support;

(ii) provide administrative coordination among the appropriate state agencies in the energy policy development process;

(iii) prepare reports for and make recommendations to the committee; and

(iv) consult regularly with the committee to coordinate each agency's activities.

(4) In carrying out their responsibilities under this section, the department and the committee may contract with experts, consultants, and facilitators and may seek funding from a variety of private and public sources for technical and other assistance necessary to accomplish their responsibilities." Part 12Montana Clean Renewable Energy Bond Act*Part Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 378, L. 2007, provided: "WHEREAS, the Montana Legislature has previously determined that Montana is blessed with an abundance of diverse renewable resources, that renewable energy production promotes and sustains economic development activity in local communities across the state, that increased use of renewable resources will enhance Montana's energy self-sufficiency, that economic and environmental benefits from renewable energy production accrue to the public at large, and that the expanded development of these resources to meet Montana's electricity demand and stabilize electricity prices should be encouraged and promoted; and

WHEREAS, Congress, pursuant to the Energy Tax Incentives Act of 2005, codified in part as section 54 of the Internal Revenue Code and referred to as the Federal Act, has created a federal tax credit program that would enable qualified issuers to issue clean renewable energy bonds for which the holder would receive a federal tax credit, in lieu of interest, to finance the capital costs of qualified projects as described in the Federal Act; and

WHEREAS, qualified issuers and qualified borrowers under the Federal Act include governmental bodies, which are defined as any state, territory, or possession of the United States, the District of Columbia, an Indian tribal government, or any political subdivision of those entities; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature, in enacting the Montana Renewable Power Production and Rural Economic Development Act, has required Montana public utilities to establish graduated renewable energy standards and to purchase renewable energy from the community renewable energy projects and has allowed Montana political subdivisions or governmental bodies to be owners of community renewable energy projects; and

WHEREAS, several Montana cities, towns, and counties have expressed a desire to issue clean renewable energy bonds and to acquire and construct qualified projects under the Federal Act that would provide the energy for their own needs at a stable price and have applied to the Internal Revenue Service for allocations under the Federal Act; and

WHEREAS, the purpose of this legislation is to authorize Montana local governmental bodies and Indian tribal governments to participate as qualified issuers or qualified borrowers under the Federal Act and to enable governmental bodies and Indian tribal governments to better access financial investments for community renewable energy projects or alternative renewable energy sources."

Composite Section: This section was amended by Ch. 51 and Ch. 656, L. 1979, and a composite section was prepared by the Code Commissioner, 1979. Chapter 51 was a Code Commissioner bill and was not intended to make substantive changes in the law. Therefore, a conflict of language in subsection (2) between Ch. 51 and Ch. 656 has been resolved in favor of the language in Ch. 656.

Case Notes

Judicial Review: When project was entirely within county, court would not consider hypothetical conflict between 7-1-2101 and provision in this section allowing project partially outside county. Fickes v. Missoula County, 155 M 258, 470 P2d 287 (1970).

Constitutionality: Provision for issuance of revenue bonds under this part does not violate Art. XIII, sec. 1, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VIII, sec. 10, 1972 Mont. Const.), since it is done for a public purpose, despite the fact that certain individual associations or corporations may benefit from the legislation. Fickes v. Missoula County, 155 M 258, 470 P2d 287 (1970).

Attorney General's Opinions

Community College District Statutory Borrowing Authority: A community college district may enter into an agreement with a city whereby the city would loan the district the proceeds from the sale of an industrial development revenue bond and the district would repay the loan from college revenues. A district may also enter into a promissory note loan agreement with a private lender whereby the district would repay the loan from college revenues. A college district election is not required to approve these construction project financing arrangements; however, a city is required to hold a public hearing prior to issuing industrial development revenue bonds. A district is subject to the election requirement in 20-6-603 when acquiring or constructing sites or buildings. 42 A.G. Op. 78 (1988).

County Revenue Bonds to Finance Community College District Construction: Flathead Valley Community College District may use funds that Flathead County raised by issuing revenue bonds for school construction either by borrowing the funds from the county or by leasing the buildings constructed by the county, subject to applicable school law. 42 A.G. Op. 29 (1987).

Payment Directly to Purchaser Not Considered Interest: A payment made directly to the purchaser of industrial development revenue bonds by the user-beneficiary of the bond proceeds from the user-beneficiary's own funds need not be considered in applying the interest limitation of 17-5-102. 38 A.G. Op. 78 (1980).

Sale of Bonds of Less Than Face Value: The sale of industrial revenue bonds issued pursuant to Title 90, ch. 5, part 1, at a price less than the face value of the bonds does not violate 17-5-102 if the yield of the bonds exceeds 9%. 38 A.G. Op. 78 (1980).

90-5-103. Limited obligation bonds — form and contents — sale — negotiability — filing.Compiler's Comments

2009 Amendment: Chapter 489 inserted (6) concerning tax credit bonds, recovery zone economic development bonds, or qualified energy conservation bonds. Amendment effective May 14, 2009.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 423 in (2) extended term of payment of bonds from 30 years to 40 years; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 13, 1995.

Applicability: Section 53, Ch. 423, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] applies to bonds issued under the provisions of [this act] after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 13, 1995.

1981 Amendment: Inserted (5) referring to filing of bonds with Securities Commissioner.

Case Notes

Constitutionality: This section does not violate Art. XIII, sec. 5, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VIII, sec. 10, 1972 Mont. Const.), since it provides for revenue bonds and does not create debt or liability within the meaning of Art. XIII, sec. 5, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VIII, sec. 10, 1972 Mont. Const.). Fickes v. Missoula County, 155 M 258, 470 P2d 287 (1970).

Attorney General's Opinions

Payment Directly to Purchaser Not Considered Interest: A payment made directly to the purchaser of industrial development revenue bonds by the user-beneficiary of the bond proceeds from the user-beneficiary's own funds need not be considered in applying the interest limitation of 17-5-102. 38 A.G. Op. 78 (1980).

Sale of Bonds of Less Than Face Value: The sale of industrial revenue bonds issued pursuant to Title 90, ch. 5, part 1, at a price less than the face value of the bonds does not violate 17-5-102 if the yield of the bonds exceeds 9%. 38 A.G. Op. 78 (1980).

90-5-104. Hearing.Compiler's Comments

1981 Amendment: In the first sentence of (1), inserted "to pay the costs of acquiring or improving a project" after "or county"; inserted "or user of the project" after "borrower" near the middle of (1); inserted "to pay the costs of acquiring or improving a project" after "issue the bonds" in the last sentence of (1); and inserted (2) referring to refunding bonds.

Attorney General's Opinions

Revenue Bonds: A community college district may enter into an agreement whereby the city would loan the district the proceeds from the sale of an industrial development revenue bond and the district would repay the loan from college revenues. However, a city is required to hold a public hearing under this section. 42 A.G. Op. 78 (1988).

90-5-106. Determination of costs — terms of lease.Attorney General's Opinions

Payment Directly to Purchaser Not Considered Interest: A payment made directly to the purchaser of industrial development revenue bonds by the user-beneficiary of the bond proceeds from the user-beneficiary's own funds need not be considered in applying the interest limitation of 17-5-102. 38 A.G. Op. 78 (1980).

90-5-107. Refunding of bonds.Compiler's Comments

1981 Amendment: Inserted "including without limitation short-term bonds issued in anticipation of the issuance of long-term bonds" after "any time outstanding" in the first sentence of (1); deleted "unpaid" after "together with any" near the middle of (1); deleted "and 90-5-104" after "90-5-103" near the end of (2); inserted (3) referring to use of principal proceeds from refunding bonds; inserted (4) referring to investment of trust fund money; and inserted (5) referring to limitation on duration of deposit in trust for the retirement of certain bonds.

Erroneous Reference: The compiler has substituted the reference to 90-5-106(1) for an apparently erroneous reference to "subsection (5)" in the first subsection.

90-5-108. Use of proceeds of bond sales.Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendment: Chapter 353 in (1) at end of first sentence and middle of second sentence inserted reference to a family services provider facility; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

1986 Amendment: In (1) in two places after "long-term care facility" inserted "or higher education facility".

Case Notes

Equipment Acquired: Pollution controls or other equipment useful in industrial project created under this part may be acquired under provisions of this section from the proceeds of bond sales. Fickes v. Missoula County, 155 M 258, 470 P2d 287 (1970).

90-5-110. Taxation of projects.Compiler's Comments

1983 Amendment: In (2), substituted "warrant for distraint" for "distress warrant".

Case Notes

Constitutionality: This section does not violate provisions of Art. XII, sec. 2, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VIII, sec. 5, 1972 Mont. Const.), against taxing property of county or municipality, since county or municipality has only trust as opposed to beneficial interest, and taxation is based on use of property. Fickes v. Missoula County, 155 M 258, 470 P2d 287 (1970).

90-5-112. Economic development levy.Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 495 in (1)(a) at end substituted "as provided in 15-10-425" for "voting in a city, county, or town election". Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Chapter 574 in (1) in first sentence after "levy" substituted "a tax upon the taxable value of all taxable property in the city, county, or town" for "up to 1 mill upon the taxable value of all the property in the city, county, or town subject to taxation"; at end of (1)(a) substituted "as provided in 15-10-425" for "voting in a city, county, or town election"; and deleted former (4) that read: "(4) A tax authorized by a vote of the electorate, as provided in subsection (1)(a), may be levied for a period not to exceed 6 years." Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 584 at beginning of (1) inserted reference to 15-10-420; at end of (4) after "years" deleted "and is not subject to the provisions of Title 15, chapter 10, part 4"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 10, 1999.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 175, Ch. 584, L. 1999, provided that this section applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to tax years beginning after December 31, 1998.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 279 in (4) increased from 5 years to 6 years the time in which an economic development levy is effective. Amendment effective March 29, 1995.

Applicability: Section 2, Ch. 279, L. 1995, provided: "[Section 1] [90-5-112] applies to all levies approved by the electorate after [the effective date of this act] [effective March 29, 1995]."

1993 Amendment: Chapter 386 substituted (1) authorizing 1-mill economic development levy by public vote or vote of governing body for former (1) that read: "Upon an affirmative vote of a majority of the qualified voters voting in a city, county, or town on the question of whether the governing body may levy a tax for economic development, the governing body of that city, county, or town is authorized to levy in any one election up to 1 mill upon the taxable value of all the property in the county, city, or town subject to taxation for the purpose of economic development for a period not to exceed 5 years"; and at beginning of (4) substituted language authorizing tax with a public vote for "The authorization to levy up to 1 mill for the purpose of economic development, as provided in subsection (1)".

1991 Amendment: At end of (4), after "part 4", deleted "if voter authorization for the levy occurred prior to December 31, 1990". Amendment effective April 16, 1991.

1989 Special Session Amendment: Inserted (4) exempting economic development levy from property tax freeze if approval by voters occurs prior to December 31, 1990. Amendment effective July 11, 1989.

90-5-114. Preference of Montana labor.Compiler's Comments

1993 Amendment: Chapter 464 inserted (2) requiring that a contract contain a statement that the contractor will pay the standard prevailing wage for work on certain projects financed from bond proceeds. Amendment effective April 21, 1993.

1987 Amendment: Deleted reference to subsection (4) of 18-2-401.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 10 at beginning inserted "Upon request by an employee group or organization" and after "department of commerce shall" deleted former (1) through (4) that read: "(1) compile, organize, and make available to the public a library of resources on the subject of employee ownership and participatory management;

(2) research the role of employee ownership in successful state and local economic development programs of other states;

(3) provide public education on the beneficial aspects of employee-owned enterprises;

(4) conduct seminars, workshops, and conferences to increase awareness of the benefits found to be common to employee-owned enterprises. At least one seminar must be held annually for public officials dealing with economic development, business assistance, and business financing programs"; and made minor changes in style. 2003 Amendment: Chapter 89 in (4) in third sentence after "annual" inserted "or semiannual"; at end of first sentence in (5) increased total amount of outstanding notes and bonds from $975 million to $1.5 billion; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

1985 Amendment: In (5) near beginning, after "outstanding at", substituted "any time" for "any one time", raised limit from $675 million to $975 million, and inserted last sentence making issue price of bonds sold at discount countable against statutory ceiling.

1983 Amendment: In (4), inserted second to last sentence referring to tax status of bond interest payments; and in (5), deleted former last two sentences, which read: "The rate of interest on bonds or notes issued by the board may not exceed an interest rate equal to 1% less than the interest rate established from time to time by the U.S. department of housing and urban development (HUD), federal housing administration (FHA). The interest rate shall be determined for each issue of bonds or notes according to the HUD/FHA rate in effect 30 days prior to the sale of the bonds or notes."

1981 Amendments: Chapter 53, in (5), substituted language tying interest rate limitation to HUD rate for "9% per annum".

Chapter 64 increased the bond debt limit in (5) from $375 million to $675 million.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to SB 91 (Ch. 64, L. 1981) provided: "A statement of intent was requested for this bill by the Senate Committee on Business and Industry.

It is the intent of the legislature that SB 91 not conflict with SB 90 [Ch. 53, L. 1981]. The bills are not in apparent conflict but both amend section 90-6-111. Both bills are effective on passage and approval. It is the intent of the legislature that should both SB 90 and SB 91 be enacted into law, section 90-6-111 should read as follows:

"90-6-111. Bonds and notes. (1) The board may by resolution, from time to time, issue negotiable notes and bonds in a principal amount as the board determines necessary to provide sufficient funds for achieving any of its purposes, including the payment of interest on notes and bonds of the board, establishment of reserves to secure the notes and bonds, including the reserve funds created under 90-6-119, and all other expenditures of the board incident to and necessary or convenient to carry out this part.

(2) The board may by resolution, from time to time, issue notes to renew notes and bonds to pay notes, including interest, and whenever it deems refunding expedient, refund any bonds by the issuance of new bonds, whether the bonds to be refunded have or have not matured, and issue bonds partly to refund bonds outstanding and partly for any of its other purposes.

(3) Except as otherwise expressly provided by resolution of the board, every issue of its notes and bonds shall be obligations of the board payable out of any revenues, assets, or moneys of the board, subject only to agreements with the holders of particular notes or bonds pledging particular revenues, assets, or moneys.

(4) The notes and bonds shall be authorized by resolutions of the board, shall bear a date, and shall mature at times as the resolutions provide. A note shall not mature more than 10 years and a bond shall not mature more than 50 years from the date of its issue. The bonds may be issued as serial bonds payable in annual installments or as term bonds or as a combination thereof. The notes and bonds shall bear interest at a rate, or rates, be in denominations, be in a form, either coupon or registered, carry registration privileges, be executed in a manner, be payable in a medium of payment, at places within or without the state, and be subject to terms of redemption as provided in resolutions. The notes and bonds of the board may be sold at public or private sale at such prices, which may be above or below par, as are determined by the board.

(5) The total amount of notes and bonds outstanding at any one time, except notes or bonds as to which the board's obligation has been satisfied and discharged by refunding or for which reserve for payment or other means of payment have been otherwise provided, may not exceed $675 million. The rate of interest on bonds or notes issued by the board may not exceed an interest rate equal to 1% less than the interest rate established from time to time by the U.S. department of housing and urban development (HUD), federal housing administration (FHA). The interest rate shall be determined for each issue of bonds or notes according to the HUD/FHA rate in effect 30 days prior to the sale of the bonds or notes."

1981 Appropriations Act — Bona Fide Local Effort — Grants: Section 19, HB 500 (1981), provided in part: "Coal impact grants may be granted to local government units only to remedy a situation resulting from coal development. The local government unit must be making a bona fide local effort to provide for its own needs through normal financing channels (taxes, service fees, or bonds)." Because HB 500 was an appropriations bill for the biennium ending June 30, 1983, the above-quoted language is likely to have direct authoritative application only to that period.

Attorney General's Opinions

Limitation on Appropriation: The legislative interpretation of 90-6-205, as established by past appropriations, suggests that the Legislature intended to limit the Coal Board appropriations to $\frac{1}{15}$ of the income projected to the local impact and education trust fund in each fiscal year and not up to $\frac{1}{15}$ of the entire aggregate amount in the trust fund. 40 A.G. Op. 4 (1983), prior to 1987 amendments.

Governmental Service or Facility: The city of Billings and Yellowstone County proposed to purchase and renovate a building for use by a nonprofit corporation providing treatment for alcohol and drug-related problems. The city proposed to issue industrial revenue bonds (IRBs) to fund a portion of the project, and the county sought a grant from the Montana Coal Board. Under the proposal, title to the building would vest in the nonprofit corporation once the IRBs have been retired. The questions presented were whether: (1) the building in question is a "governmental facility"; (2) a city or county has the power to expend funds for a building the title to which will eventually vest in a private corporation; and (3) contracting with a private corporation is a legitimate means of providing a governmental service. In the opinion of the Attorney General, a local government unit with self-government powers and counties with general government powers are authorized to provide alcohol and drug abuse treatment services under Title 53, ch. 24. Local governments may contract with nonprofit corporations for the provision of such services. A program of alcohol and drug abuse treatment services provided by contract with a private nonprofit corporation is a "governmental service or facility" under 90-6-205 for the purpose of determining eligibility for coal impact assistance. 39 A.G. Op. 31 (1981).

Eligibility for Coal Impact Grants: "Local governmental units" eligible to receive impact grants from the Coal Board under 90-6-205 and 90-6-206 include counties, incorporated cities and towns, consolidated local governments, school districts, and any other statutorily created governmental unit or district empowered to exercise delegated sovereign powers over a defined geographical region of the state, viz., county water and sewer districts, rural improvement districts which include areas of more than one county and have separate governing bodies (counties may apply for grants to pay for rural improvement district expenses), and special improvement districts within cities, towns, and consolidated units. Opinion No. 74, Volume 36, of the Official Opinions of the Attorney General is overruled except that portion excluding Indian tribes from impact grant eligibility. 37 A.G. 1983 Amendment: Near beginning of (1), inserted "annually"; after "counties," inserted "incorporated cities and"; in middle of first sentence, substituted "as a result of the impact of coal development a net increase" for "an increase"; at end of first sentence, substituted "over one of the 3-year periods specified in subsection (2)" for "during any 3 years since 1972 as a result of the impact of coal development"; and inserted (2) listing five 3-year periods.

Attorney General's Opinions

Reversion of Coal Board Funds: The provision of 17-7-304, requiring the reversion of unexpended and unencumbered portions of appropriations at the close of the fiscal year, applies to the appropriations to the Coal Board from the local impact and education trust fund. The Legislature appropriates money to the Coal Board as a discretionary matter under 90-6-207. There is no constitutional impediment to the reversion of the funds, nor is there any indication of legislative intent to except the Coal Board grant money from the operation of 17-7-304. The Board must follow the legislatively created financial requirements. 40 A.G. Op. 4 (1983), prior to 1987 amendments.

Chapter 619, in (1)(b), inserted "and determinations"; inserted (1)(d) referring to grants and loans made from hard-rock mining impact trust account of the version effective July 1, 1985; and in (1)(f) inserted "90-6-321 and 90-6-322".

The amendments made by Ch. 619 are effective July 1, 1985.

1983 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 472 (Ch. 489, L. 1983) provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it expands the rulemaking authority of the hard-rock mining impact board.

(1) The legislature intends, under Section 2 [which amended this section], that the hard-rock mining impact board be authorized to adopt rules under the Montana Administrative Procedure Act that will facilitate and effectuate its role as a Quasi-Judicial Board responsible for administering the Hard-Rock Mining Impact Act. The rules must ensure that implementation of the act is consistent with the purpose of mitigating local government impacts that may result from the commencement of large-scale hard-rock mineral developments in this state.

(2) The legislature intends that the board adopt rules for implementing Section 3 [which amended 90-6-307] by establishing criteria that the board will use when making decisions on whether or not to grant a requested 30-day extension to an impact review period.

(3) The legislature further intends that the board adopt rules implementing Section 5 [which enacted 90-6-311] that provide:

(a) a procedure for conducting hearings on objections to proposed impact plan amendments that is consistent with the Montana Administrative Procedure Act; and

(b) a list of factors that will be used to determine the validity of objections to the proposed impact plan amendments.

The rulemaking authority granted in this bill is intended to supersede the existing authority that the hard-rock mining impact board has pursuant to Chapter 617, Laws of 1981."

1981 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 718 (Ch. 617, L. 1981) provided: "A statement of intent is required for HB 718 because [90-6-305] grants rulemaking authority to the hard-rock mining impact board.

The legislature intends that the rules adopted by the board governing its proceedings be procedural in nature.

(1) The legislature intends that the board may adopt forms for notice required by the board and to be given by the board.

(2) The board is intended to act as a "referee" in hearing disputes between local government units and large-scale mineral developers over the impact plan submitted to the board under the provisions of [90-6-307]. The hearings are subject to Montana Administrative Procedure Act and any rules adopted by the board governing the hearings must be consistent with that act.

(3) The legislature intends that the rules adopted by the board governing the awarding of grants shall be consistent with the criteria set out in [90-6-306] [now repealed]."

1995 Amendment: Chapter 418 in (11) and (14) substituted "department of environmental quality" for "department of state lands"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

Saving Clause: Section 503, Ch. 418, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1991 Amendment: In (2), in middle of first sentence, after "industrial" substituted "local government facility" for "educational". Amendment effective March 29, 1991.

1987 Amendment: In (1), at end of introductory material, substituted reference to the mineral developer and the affected local government units ensuring contents of impact plan for "The impact plan shall include"; inserted (4) requiring public hearing on impact plan; inserted (5) allowing objection by affected local government unit not identified in impact plan; in (6), in fourth sentence, substituted "the impact plan is approved without any review by the board" for "the impact plan shall be approved by the board" and inserted last sentence referring to alteration of approved plan; and in (13) substituted "subsections (5) and (6)" for "subsection (4)".

1987 Amendment of Rule: Rule 8.104.203A, ARM, was amended by sec. 6, Ch. 311, L. 1987.

1987 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 311, L. 1987, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill in order to clarify the role of the hard-rock mining impact board. The amendments to section 3 of this bill [90-6-307] are designed to ensure that the board is not involved in reviewing the plan unless objections are filed under 90-6-307 or amendments are sought under 90-6-311.

The amendment of Rule 8.104.203A, Administrative Rules of Montana, does not indicate a legislative intent to define population changes associated with a mineral development. This matter should be determined by the mineral developer and the affected local governments. The amendment further indicates that the legislature desires that the hard-rock mining impact board should not influence this determination by enacting rules on matters that should be the product of discussions between the mineral developer and the affected local governments, except when the board is required to address impact plan concerns during the objections and amendment processes.

This bill also attempts to stress the cooperation role of the mineral developer and the affected local governments in formulating the impact plan. The impact plan, as a result, should reflect the concerns and agreements among these entities. Furthermore, to ensure public involvement in the planning process, a mandatory public hearing is required."

Applicability: Sections 8 and 9, Ch. 311, L. 1987, provided that the amendments made by that chapter were effective on passage and approval (approved March 31, 1987) and apply to all impact plans submitted after that date.

Chapter 582 in (1)(c) after "services" deleted "including but not limited to police and fire protection, sewage, water treatment, schools, road construction and upkeep, education, and medical care"; in (2) in first sentence inserted "as identified in the impact plan" and inserted second sentence referring to other revenue sources and funding mechanisms; in first sentence of (3) substituted "the end" for "commencement"; in (5) in second sentence substituted language referring to extension of 30-day period for "If within 30 days the local government unit and the developer cannot resolve the objection", and in third sentence inserted "If the objections are not resolved"; in (7) substituted "guarantee" for "guaranty", and substituted "meet the increased costs of public services and facilities as specified" for "make all the payments to the board required"; in (8) substituted reference to payment to a local government unit or the Board and deposit and verification of payments for "The board shall deposit all payments received from the developer into the hard-rock mining impact account established by 90-6-304"; in (9) substituted "guarantee" for "guaranty", and after "payment" deleted "of each required payment"; in (10) inserted "if the hard-rock mining impact account is used to deliver payments to the local government unit"; in (11) inserted "or 90-6-311(3)"; inserted (12) referring to waiver of impact plan requirement; and inserted (13) referring to certification of compliance and failure to comply.

1983 Amendment: In (1), in first sentence substituted “After” for “When” and made minor change in sentence structure, and inserted second sentence referring to cooperation to eliminate duplication of effort in data collection; inserted (3) referring to financial assistance to prepare for and evaluate the impact plan; in (4), inserted second and third sentences referring to extension of 90-day period and in last sentence inserted “or any extension thereof”; in (5) near beginning substituted “within 10 days” for “promptly”; and in (11), in first sentence inserted “and it results in some remedial order by the board or court of competent jurisdiction”, and near end inserted “administrative or judicial”.

In (11) the Code Commissioner corrected subsection reference from “(3)” to “(4)” which was apparently overlooked when new (3) was inserted and former (3) renumbered as (4). Only (4) relates to filing of objection.

Case Notes

Issue Not Raised Before Agency Not Allowed to Be Raised on Judicial Review: Lincoln County argued in District Court that Sanders County had not objected to an impact plan before the Hard-Rock Mining Board and therefore had no standing to appeal the Board’s decision in District Court. The Supreme Court held that Lincoln County had not argued that Sanders County was without standing when the issue was before the agency; therefore, Lincoln County could not raise the standing issue for the first time in District Court. Lincoln County v. Sanders County, 261 M 344, 862 P2d 1133, 50 St. Rep. 1352 (1993), followed in Hilands Golf Club v. Ashmore, 2002 MT 8, 308 M 111, 39 P3d 697 (2002).

Mining Board’s Amendment of Mine’s Allocation of Taxes Not Beyond Its Authority: Lincoln County argued that the Hard-Rock Mining Board had exceeded its authority in amending Noranda’s tax allocation plan because it allocated an additional amount of the taxes to Sanders County, which was not anticipated to be negatively impacted by an influx of workers. The Supreme Court ruled that the Board could modify tax allocation plans for any affected county not just counties impacted by an influx of workers and that the Board had not acted unreasonably in amending the plan on the basis that after 5 years, the majority of increased property valuation would be in Lincoln County and not Sanders County where the ore body was located. Lincoln County v. Sanders County, 261 M 344, 862 P2d 1133, 50 St. Rep. 1352 (1993).

1989 Special Session Amendment: In (1), after “university levy” inserted “established under 20-25-423” and after “foundation program” substituted “established in 20-9-331 and 20-9-333” for “of 45 mills”; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective August 11, 1989, and applies retroactively to July 1, 1989.

1985 Amendment: In (1) at end of first sentence substituted “as specified in the impact plan” for “in an amount equal to at least three times the estimated property tax due the year the large-scale mineral development facility commences operation” and in last sentence increased mills from 40 to 45; and in (5) after “shall provide for”, substituted reference to tax credit and limitations thereon for “repayment according to the following procedure:

(a) In each year after the commencement of mining, the local government shall:

(i) divide its budget by the average mill levy of its jurisdiction during the 3 years immediately preceding commencement of mining operations, to arrive at a taxable valuation needed to fund its budget using the average 3-year mill levy;

(ii) reduce the taxable valuation of property of a person who prepaid property taxes by the excess, if any, of the total taxable value of the taxing jurisdiction including the person’s property over the taxable value determined under subsection (5)(a)(i), but in no case by an amount greater than the taxable value of the person's property.

(b) The reduction in taxable value, if any, determined under subsection (5)(a)(ii) times the average mill levy used in subsection (5)(a)(i) equals the property tax prepayment credit allowed for the taxable year for that local government unit. Any local government unit not receiving a payment shall not be affected by this section, and no reduction in value shall be used in the computation of taxes due that unit of local government. In no event shall the credit allowed under this part extend more than 10 years beyond the date the prepayment is made under this section.

(c) The procedure established under subsection (5)(a) shall continue from year to year until the total credit allowed the person who prepaid property taxes equals the total property taxes prepaid".

The legislature intends that the rules adopted by the board recognize the necessity for some elderly Montanans to draw income for essential living expenses and other purposes from the equity accumulated in their single-family homes during their lifetimes while continuing to enjoy the shelter and security afforded by those residences. The rules must afford the elderly homeowner monthly payments over 10 years, as provided in the loan agreement, under terms that assure life tenancy and the right to repay the loan balance at any time. Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 349, L. 2011, provided: "WHEREAS, the Legislature finds that members of the Montana National Guard, residents of Montana in the federal reserves, and Montana residents serving on active duty in the armed forces have all made sacrifices of various kinds in order to serve the state and their country in times of war or national emergency; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature further finds that while those sacrifices may be difficult to quantify or compare because they range from loss of time with family and friends due to demands of reserve duty to loss of life in the service of the country, those sacrifices have in common that they occurred because of the status of the individual as a member of the armed forces; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature further finds that it has the authority pursuant to Article II, section 35, of the Montana Constitution to recognize and reward this status by providing special consideration to the status of service members and veterans; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature finds that it is appropriate to reward this status and the sacrifices the status represents by facilitating the fulfillment of the American dream of home ownership for those who serve or have served in the American armed forces; and

WHEREAS, the purpose of the Montana Veterans' Home Loan Mortgage Program Act is not to provide the most substantial return on the investment of money in the coal tax trust fund used for the program but to use some of the money in the trust fund for a mortgage loan program so that first-time home buyers who are eligible veterans can acquire a mortgage loan at a rate lower than prevailing market rates and in this way reward those eligible veterans who have served this country well and reward the unremarried spouses of eligible veterans who have made the ultimate sacrifice in service to their country."

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 721 (Ch. 703, L. 1983) provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it grants the Health Facility Authority the power to adopt rules to administer this chapter. The Legislature intends that these rules include:

- (1) procedural rules to govern the Authority;
- (2) procedures for assessing applications;
- (3) the establishment of fees to be charged by health institutions [before amendment by Ch. 477, L. 1997] using the procedures of the authority; and
- (4) procedures for determining the eligibility of a facility.

The legislature declares that the purpose of this bill is health care cost containment [before amendment by Ch. 477, L. 1997]. By making this bonding authority available, the legislature intends that health care costs will be contained by reducing the costs of facilities and equipment so that these savings may be passed on to consumers."

1989 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 284, L. 1989, provided: “A statement of intent is required for this bill because [section 9] [90-9-203] grants rulemaking authority to the Montana agriculture development council to implement the agricultural development project loan program.

It is the legislature’s intent that the council adopt rules:

- (1) governing the conduct of council business;
- (2) establishing application procedures that, at a minimum, require the submittal of an executive summary for an agricultural development project loan, a business plan for a seed capital project loan, a research and development project proposal for a research and development project loan, and other documents necessary to meet the criteria established in the act;
- (3) establishing procedures to be followed by the council in its review process prior to making an agricultural development project loan;
- (4) establishing postdisbursement activities that describe the ongoing involvement or follow-along management of the council that may be required in an agricultural development project loan agreement.”

Effective Date: Section 20, Ch. 284, L. 1989, provided that this section is effective March 23, 1989.

Chapter Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble attached to HB 785 (Ch. 650, L. 1983) provided: "WHEREAS, various departments of state government, including the Departments of Natural Resources and Conservation; Fish, Wildlife, and Parks; State Lands [functions now transferred to Department of Environmental Quality]; Health and Environmental Sciences [functions now transferred to Department of Environmental Quality]; and Agriculture and various branches of the university system independently collect natural resource information for different purposes, using manual and automated methods; and

WHEREAS, although ideally there should be an integrated natural resource information system, such a sophisticated system would be extremely costly because of the unique and distinctly different requirements of each department; and

WHEREAS, efforts should be made to expedite the development of separate but compatible systems and to catalog this data and make it available for department and statewide use; and

WHEREAS, a natural heritage program begins by developing a classification system to conceptually organize the elements of natural diversity in the state, and this classification serves as a framework for categorizing natural landscape information to facilitate comparison of similar elements and recognize dissimilar elements; and

WHEREAS, 33 states have already developed programs to collect and manage information on their natural heritage, and the methods used by those state programs are available to Montana; and

WHEREAS, the classification system embodied in the natural heritage program should be a working one that retains the flexibility to be changed as need dictates so that new categories may be added or preexisting categories subdivided and, within classes, elements may be added or deleted as new information becomes available; and

WHEREAS, a natural heritage program is needed to eliminate costly duplication and enhance the efficiency of natural resource data collection and to provide a valuable source of that information for state government, industry, and other groups.

THEREFORE, the State of Montana, as a first step in developing a natural resource information system establishes a Montana Natural Heritage Program."
